Mrs. E. L. Holmes Honor Guest At Social Affairs

Complimenting Mrs. E. L. Holmes, who is a member of Chapter 1 of P. E. O., the chapter members entertained at a tea Saturday afternoon from 2:30 until 4:30 o'clock at the home of Mrs. H. S. Brockton. Mrs. Holmes left La Grande yesterday for Tacoma, Wash., where she will make her home, and the tea was in the form of a farewell.

Roses made up a centerpiece for the table, and were also used in other parts of the home. Mrs. Hall K. Wallis, president of the chapter, presided. During the afternoon the guest of honor was presented with a P. E. O. sash, Mrs. Emma Kibbe making the presentation.

About 25 women called during the afternoon, which was spent visiting.

The social committee of the chapter, of which Mrs. C. L. H. Soltz is chairman, had charge of the afternoon. Other members of the committee are Mrs. E. H. Appleby, Mrs. Emma Kibbe, Mrs. Robert Eakin and Dr. Margaret Inghe.

Allott, 2013 Oak street. The purpose of the meeting was to initiate one candidate, Miss May Donnan.

After the initiation and business meeting the remainder of the afternoon was spent in a social. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Allott.

WISHEMAN, Alaska (AP)—Having made by airplane in three hours a journey from Fairbanks that would have taken a dog team a month, the federal judge has opened court here. It is the first to penetrate the Arctic circle and the Eskimos welcomed the judge, the marshal, the federal attorney and stenographer, with dances in an igloo. And the natives were delighted with the watermelons that the plane brought.

TULPEHOCKEN, Pa.—When Caspar Wistar, 182 years ago, gave enough land for the building of a church he stipulated in the deed that the annual rental be one red rose. Heirs of the donor received the rent this year from the congregation of the Trinity Reformed church in an auditorium decorated with roses. Payment of one white rose was made for other concessions from the Wistar family in recent years.

Tra-La! 'Tis Said Victorian Girls Led A Gay Life

LONDON, July 5 (AP)—Girls of the Victorian era were just as frivolous as the flapper of today, believes Dowager Lady Raglan, a descendant of Charles II through her grandmother, Lady Lavina Cornwallis.

Lady Raglan was a member of the Victorian society in its most exclusive period. She also edits the prevailing idea that the Victorian girl was strictly chaperoned, and never received a proposal unless her suitor had first asked permission from the adzeblacked father of fiction.

Direct Proposals
"The truth is in three days most proposed direct to the girl of their choice," Lady Raglan said. "In some ways the girls of that period had far more opportunity of knowing men than in the case nowadays."

"The London season started directly after Easter and ended in July, after which young people met at country house parties. Here they were given plenty of opportunity to know each other."

"Tons, debauches were chaperoned at home. But that fact did not prevent them from dancing as frequently as they chose with their favorite partners."

Another Fallacy
"The idea that girls in the Victorian era spent their days in sewing rooms and practicing scales is another fallacy. On the contrary those who came to London for the season spent their days in a whirl of social engagements."

"Dress, not sex, was the great topic of conversation in those days."

"Another popular delusion is that the Victorian girl never indulged in sport. Lawn tennis was a most popular game, which was played extensively. Another favorite pastime was water parties. Chaperones were dispensed with, and the girls and young men used to go down the river Thames in boats and picnic on the river banks."

"Clarence," she called. He stopped the car and looked around. "I am not accustomed to call my chauffeurs by their first name, Clarence. What is your surname?" "Darling, madam."

"Drive on, Clarence."

MENUS

By Sister Mary
BREAKFAST—Sections of grape fruit, ready-to-serve cereal, cream, creamed fish on toast, crisp whole wheat toast, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON—Baked spinach, raisin bran bread, raspberry bismark, drop cakes, milk, tea.

DINNER—Boiled mutton cutlets, scalloped potatoes, kale in lemon butter, head lettuce with Thousand Island dressing, oatmeal bread, strawberries with sponge pudding, milk, coffee.

The dinner dessert can be served to small children and invalids as well as adults and perfectly healthy persons. Of course the fruit must be used with discretion but the sponge pudding is regular invalid fare.

Two cups rich milk, 1/2 cup sugar, few grains salt, 1 tablespoon granulated gelatine, 4 tablespoons cold water, 2 eggs (whites), 1/2 teaspoon vanilla.

Soften gelatine in cold water for five minutes. Scald milk, add sugar, salt and gelatine, gelatine. Stir until sugar dissolved. Let stand until cool and beginning to thicken. Beat until light. Add whites of eggs beaten until stiff. Turn into individual molds and put on ice to chill and become firm. Serve with strawberries and whipped cream.

GREEN OR YELLOW BEANS?
There has been a debate as to the relative merits of green and yellow or wax string beans for years. Of late years the verdict has swung to the green podded varieties, chiefly because of the development of the stringless green pod. The popularity of the wax bean when both the wax and the green pods had strings and plenty of them was due to the attractive appearance of the handsome yellow pods.

The wax bean seems to be gaining something of its old-time popularity and this may be because it makes an attractive display in the show window of the green grocers. There is a slight difference in flavor, according to connoisseurs in beans, but to most of us there isn't much difference. It is claimed for the wax bean that it has more flavor than the green sorts. The test is in the cooking, perhaps, as the green beans can be brought out shining green by blanching, the most approved way of cooking green vegetables, that is, dropping them in boiling water and permitting them to boil and then turning them out, draining, pouring cold water over them and then returning to complete the cooking. The wax beans can never be cooked to look as waxy as in their natural state but will be closer to it if blanched.
