THE INCONSISTENT HUSBAND
With his comparisons I fear
He's playing fast and loose;
One day he calls his wife a coozer,
Next day says she's a coozer.

Some people never stop reading four enough to think.

The brain refuses to digest food while the stomach is digesting food.

"Does my practicing make you nervous?" asked a man who was learning to play a saxophone.

"It did when I first heard the neighbors discuss it," replied the man next door. "But I'm getting so now that I don't care what happens to you."

Husband: "Mary, here's a hair in the pie crust."
Wife: "Looks like one of yours, John. It must have come off the rolling pin."

Some people who act like idiots can't help themselves; others do it because they want to be universally understood.

Long visits make short welcomes.

Charlie: "Can't you stay another day, Gladys?"
Gladys: "No, Charlie, I didn't remember to bring a change of partners."

If you wish to see a wife's valuation of her husband soon from practically nothing to uncounted thousands, just alienate his affections.

Advertisement writer: "What would you say if I kissed you?"
Stenographer: "I make no statement for publication."

HEALTH

HIS FATHER THOUGHT IT DID NOT MATTER, SO BILL HAS A "BAD HEART"
By D. H. Dunkin, M. D., Idaho Falls, Idaho

Member Gargis Memorial Inst.

A worried looking man entered the doctor's office and impatiently awaited his turn. "Doctor, Bill has a bad heart," was his greeting, even before the door was closed. "They just told me," discovered it when Bill had a 'spell' in the gymnasium. What do you suppose could have caused it?"

Shrewd, kindly Doctor Brown knew, though it had been ten years since he had visited Bill, then a little fellow with a severe cold and sore throat. Because he knew, his job was a hard one.

"Remember," he asked, "years ago when Bill had that bad cold, and I examined him?"

"Yes, Doctor."

"Do you also recall that I urged you to have the kid's tonsils and adenoids removed?"

There was a pause as the possibility seemed slowly to sink in. "But surely, Doctor, that can't be the cause of Bill's bad heart now," "Yes," replied the doctor, "just exactly that."

Many cases like this, thousands of them, are written into the book of mistakes which parents make; a youth of unusual ability, very bright as child of six, to whose parents a serious had passed unheeded. Now in the midst of a

ADDED FEATURE FRIDAY AT ARCADE

Knowing how well La Grande people love good music, the management of the Arcade theater has been able to arrange for Pay Ellett and his Brunswick Recording orchestra, who have been booked to play a dance in La Grande on Friday evening, to appear at the Arcade in concert both at the afternoon and evening performances.

AT THE THEATERS

Forest Riven Heroes of Picture at Star

The most picturesque country of the world furnishes the background for "The Understanding Heart," the Cosmopolitan production which comes to the Star today for three days. It is the land of the big timber in California, and numbers that band of faithful guardians who constantly watch over the country to save it from the ravages of fire.

The story was adapted from the popular novel by Peter H. Kyne, and it has been given an elaborate production by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. Expenses of scenic beauty that are literally breath-taking greet the eye constantly, and the spectator is given several exquisite views of Yosemite National park.

However, this is only the setting against which one of the most pulsing, virile dramas of the year is enacted. Jack Cunliffe, perhaps best known heretofore as the director of "Green of Harvard," has headed into the Kyne story importance and reality. The high point of interest is the spectacular forest fire that climaxes the tale.

The cast of the picture is headed by Joan Crawford as Monica, Francis X. Bushman Jr. as Tony, Carmel Myers as Keely and Lucille Foy as Bob Mason.

Francis X. Bushman Jr. justifies the promise he made in "Green of Harvard," and Carmel Myers is surprising in a part that gives her perhaps the best opportunity she has ever had.

"My Mistake" is the comedy showing.

WHAT A VOICE

NEW YORK—Armin Gerstel, of Brooklyn, has a count, weighs 82 pounds but what a voice! Because it is so powerful he won a competition to determine who should give the honor of swearing in Governor Moore, of New Jersey, Trustful, of Connecticut, Mathean, of Arkansas and sundry other notables, including Sir Thomas Lipton, who will become boy scout at an inspection of Marmontain camp.

Ed Wynn's First Film At Arcade Today

Whether you're addicted to leather sofa or rubber heels, you'll have a hard time refraining from laughing when you see "Rubber Heels" the picture which reached the Arcade theater today for a three day run. If the name, Ed Wynn, means nothing to you now—just wait till you see "Rubber Heels."

"Rubber Heels" is one of those things seldom seen, a genuinely funny comedy. As Amos Watt, Wynn comes to the front like a (to pardon our pun) bump on a log. The proud possessor of a correspondence school's diploma, Amos goes out in the cold, cold world, determined to demonstrate what real detecting is. He becomes involved with a gang of thieves who pose as private police, and Chester Conklin is the master mind of this tricky organization. It's not hard to imagine the laughter which is apt to be forthcoming when this ridiculous duo get together.

Amos takes a job safeguarding a lot of jewels at a society reception and Conklin's gang, disguised as servants, escape with the whole casket. Then begins a chase that is a chase! They start from New York and finish at Niagara Falls, with laughs planted every foot of the way.

Mr. Jameson is in a hurry. He is on his way to the Telephone office. Last night he and his wife agreed they "couldn't do without a telephone any longer."

This was just after he had to go out in the rain to make a telephone call.
