MENUS

By Stacy Marx

BRICKPART—Orange juice, cereal, cream, broiled fresh fish with watermelon, crisp toast, milk, coffee.
LUNCHES—Vegetable hash, lettuce sandwiches, oatmeal cookies, chocolate eye slices.
DINNERS—Broiled sweetbreads, beans in cream, jellied cucumber salad, chilled cantaloupe, tiffed with peach cream, milk, coffee.

During the hot weather many housekeepers prefer to serve iced coffee in place of the usual hot black coffee at the end of the dinner. Hot coffee poured over chilled ice assures a delicious beverage of its delicate aroma in the hot sun.

Chocolate Egg Shake

Two eggs, 2 tablespoons sugar, 1/4 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon cocoa, 1/2 teaspoon vanilla, 2 cups milk.
Mix and stir sugar, salt and cocoa. Beat yolks of eggs until thick, beating in sugar mixture. Add whites of eggs beaten until stiff, gradually beat in milk and vanilla. This milk should be thoroughly chilled since ice is not added to this drink.
The recipe will serve four persons.

BRITISH WOMEN COOL TOWARD LAW CAREER

LONDON (AP)—There is a noticeable falling off in the number of women candidates at the bar examinations since the pioneer bar-entrants, Miss Fay Kyle and Miss Helena Normanton, were called to the bar.

University women of today declare the examinations are not nearly so difficult as at first thought. They prefer to put their energies into something which pays better than waiting upon the law courts for work which comes up only slowly.

Lloyd George rises from obscurity to remark that not more than 200 of the 500 members of the House of Lords have sufficient mental capacity to administer government. Great Britain certainly has been playing in luck of late.

KING FERDINAND IS LAID TO REST

Queen Shudders as She Views Grave Beside Ruler's Prepared for Her

BUCHAREST, Rumania, July 25 (AP)—One of the most dramatic moments of the funeral of King Ferdinand at Curtea De Agres yesterday took place when Queen Marie, following the coffin into the little church, caught sight of her own prepared grave immediately next to that of her late husband. She first gazed tremblingly into the deep pit dug in the floor of the church for Ferdinand's body, and then with a noticeable shudder of recoil glanced at her own tomb which the church and state authorities prepared long ago to receive her as the consort of the king.

It was the most tense moment of the whole ceremony. A profound quiet gloom enveloped the church and those who were privileged to witness the ceremony of entombment felt a sense of eternity.

The king's grave is the tomb of Carmen Sylvia Queen Elizabeth—for whom Marie has often openly expressed dislike.

Her Dream Tomb

When the ceremonies had ended, the queen, speaking to the correspondent for The Associated Press referred to the tomb waiting to receive her some day.

"Of course," she said, "the state and church authorities will bury me at Curtea, but if I could gratify my own heart's desire, I would like to rest at spot which I have fancied as the meeting point between the east and west—this would symbolize my English birth and training on the one hand and my later life and thus end my reign as queen of my beloved Rumania. I have already in my mind's eye placed a cross upon this imaginary spot. Perhaps some day my fancy will come true."

King Ferdinand's funeral, although carried out with magnificent pomp and order, was marred at its close by an incident which temporarily at least, made it impossible for the authorities to place the king's body in the sepulchre.

Hopes Forgotten

At the supreme moment of actual interment of the body when a profound hush had fallen over the little church and when Queen Marie in her grief and physical exhaustion seemed about to totter upon her husband's grave, it was suddenly discovered by the church authorities that the undertakers had forgotten to provide the customary ropes with which to lower the coffin into the grave. It was an intensely dramatic moment and undoubtedly gave acute pain to the queen. The time was too short

The good burgomaster of Cologne told visitors the United States was the only nation able to give Europe eternal peace. Still, it would be quite a job to kill them all off.

The oversight produced a painful impression, but mercifully shortened the queen's ordeal at the graveside, for she and her family left the church immediately after the coffin had been deposited upon the floor and prayers had been pronounced.

Queen Near Collapse
Queen Marie appeared on the verge of collapse several times during the ceremonies at the mortuary. She swooned earlier in the day after kissing her husband before the coffin was sealed at the conclusion of a service in the royal chapel adjoining Cotroceni palace.

As the royal party was leaving the church six-year-old King Michael, ruler by reason of his father's renunciation of his royal prerogative, asked: "Are they going to leave grandpa here alone? Can't I stay with him?"

Queen Marie explained: "The poor little chap does not know what it is all about. He knows only that he has lost a dearest relative. It was the king's habit to give his grandson a little present every day."

Queen Marie is convinced Carol will not attempt to gain the throne of Rumania.

"I think," she told the correspondent, "that out of respect for the memory of his father, who sacrificed everything for him, Prince Carol will remain outside of the country, but what political intrigues may force him to do is another thing."

No Word From Carol
When she was asked if her son had expressed any repentance before the king died, she broke down and between sobs said:

"Neither the king nor myself received a single word from him. It was his pitiless indifference, silence and continued indiscretions in Paris which broke the king's heart and hastened his death. But the king in his will and final letter to Premier Bratianu expressed toward his first born the same extraordinary generosity and forgiveness which formed such a striking part of his character."

"Carol's single act when he learned that the king had died was to telegraph his sister Marie asking her to place white roses as near as possible to the king's body."

Capture Woman And Man After Exciting Chase

ROSEBURG, Ore., July 25 (AP)—George Ray, alias Harry Bender, aged 25, and a woman giving the name of Katherine Bulson, aged 26, were arrested here early yesterday morning after an exciting auto chase. According to Chief of Police Vaughn, Ray was seen attempting to steal a spare tire from a car belonging to H. L. Scofield, a resident of the south part of Roseburg. Mr. Scofield started in pursuit of Ray, who jumped into his car and played hide-and-seek in various parts of the city, while Mr. Scofield and city officer Dietrich pursued him. The chase finally led out on to the highway, where the machines reached a high rate of speed. The local officer climbed out on the running board of the pursuing car with a gun in his hand and when the fugitives saw the weapon they submitted to arrest. The woman, the chief of police said, tried to reach a gun, but was ordered by her companion to leave the weapon alone.

Ray, according to the city officers, has confessed that the car was stolen in Wisconsin and that he and the girl, posing as man and wife, went to California where they stole California license plates and a registration certificate from a car similar to their own and took the name of Bender. He has confessed to a term in the reformatory in Wisconsin and also to a one-year penitentiary sentence in the same state for robbery. The government has been notified and an investigation will probably be made into the case at once by federal authorities.

KLAMATH BEATEN

GRANTS PASS, Ore., July 25 (AP)—Grants Pass snapped out of its losing streak yesterday by defeating the Klamath Falls Pelicans two to one in the fastest game seen here this season. Grants Pass opened up on Benton, the Klamath hurler, in the first inning and marked up one run. In the fifth the visitors tied the score but several bunched hits in the seventh won for the home team. The game was played with the mercury well over the century point.

WASHINGTON PORTRAIT

HARTFORD, Conn.—Connecticut takes pride in owning a $100,000 Stuart portrait of George Washington today because it was willing to accept a painting rejected by another state. When the great artist, commissioned by South Carolina to paint the picture, turned it in it was a portrait of President Washington. South Carolina wanted one of General Washington or none. Connecticut bought the picture for $1,000.

This Range Watches Your Grocery Bill

ROASTS or vegetables cooked in this electric range serve more than they've every served before. For no moisture is lost in cooking. Instead of dried, shrunken roasts, you have big, juicy ones. And if you've been in the habit of buying a six-pound roast, a five-pound roast will go just as far. Just set the clock on this range at the hour you wish cooking to start. Then, place the food in the oven and forget it.

The Clock Is The Cook

The clock turns on the current at the time set. When the oven reaches the right temperature, the thermostat automatically turns it off—the oven retaining its heat, like a fireless cooker.
