The advance of the Cincinnati Reds from the National league cellar found the team in fifth place today. Hendrick's team was stopped by the Boston Braves yesterday after having won six in a row, but the Reds came back to take the win of the double header 2-2. Kent Greenfield, traded to Boston by John McGraw, got a 7-2 decision in the first game. The Giants marched into Chicago and set the Cubs back, 6-4. This was sufficient to topple the McCarthy Bruins from their first place tie, as Pittsburgh was beating Bazy Vance and the Brooklyn Robins, 2-1.

Pirates Take Lead
The Pirates now lead the Cubs by one full game.

The St. Louis Cardinals opened a home stand against Philadelphia and had to work 11 innings to win 9-5.

The New York Yanks were against the St. Louis Browns did not run into two figures but the Huggins collected their quota of home runs, nevertheless, and won 4-1.

The White Sox rallied in the tenth inning to defeat Washington 7-4.

Earl Whitehall had the better of Sammy Gray and Detroit defeated Philadelphia 2-1. Cleveland and the Boston Red Sox were rained out.

Three Pitchers Baffle Batsmen In The Majors

NEW YORK, July 28 (AP)—Two pitchers found in the high leagues and one plucked from an obscure mid-western college also have appeared this year to quell the batsmen of the big leagues and confound the critics. By keeping well up in the series these teams that were given, but an outside chance.

Seeking the slight of hand which sent Chicago's two representatives and the Washington club to places surprisingly high in their leagues, the fan will find it in the pitching arms of Charley Root, "Red" Burke of the Cubs, "Doc" Lyons of the White Sox, pitcher of Baylor University, Texas, and Horace Lashburn, one of our leading Senators at 22.

For the first half of the campaign each member of the young trio had better than 70 per cent of victories with Lyons having the edge a little with his 14 wins in 18 starts.

While Lyons and Root gave signs of "arriving" in record beating form after four better-than-average years in the big time, Lashburn struck his stride at once in his first year in the big time, fanning American leaguers as energetically as he did the boys of the Southern association a season before.

Two of the three had from the south and the third from the middle west. Lashburn, whose pitching attracted the sagacious eyes of a Washington scout while the youth was with the Memphis team last year, comes from Clarksville, Tenn. while Lake Charles, La., claims the pride of the White Sox pitching staff. Now 27, Lyons was Lashburn's age when he broke into the majors from his college team.

Picked up by the St. Louis Browns from the semi-pro lute at Middletown, Ohio, his home, in 1924 at the age of 20, Root had an off-and-on career with the Browns and Cubs and "farms" in Terra Haute and Log Angeles before coming into his own.

Helen Wills Wouldn't Be A "Pro" Though Poor As A Church Mouse

LONDON (AP)—Professionalism in tennis horse Miss Helen Wills.

"If I were as poor as a church mouse I should not become a professional," Miss Wills asserted just before her departure for the United States.

"I cannot quite understand how anyone can play such a good game when he or she knows that the prize will be received whether the game is won or lost."

But Miss Wills, Langton thinks differently. She is quite certain that "sport, professional or otherwise, does not spoil a woman's femininity."

"For from it," was Miss Langton's reply to criticisms here that she was indulging in athletics and sport was tending to make women masculine. The French champion appeared in London, professionally, just after the close of the Wimbledon tournament where Miss Wills won the women's championship.

Miss Langton did not agree that tennis makes thick ankles. "So far as my experience goes," she said, "I have found tennis a most valuable aid to a perfect figure. I have never known any cases—either among amateur or professional players—where it has developed thick ankles."

"Every woman whose health permits ought to play some game or other. Even the risk of thick ankles is better than the risk of ill health. I have never known a woman yet whose femininity has been spoiled by sport."

Refund Dealers Subscriptions

DETROIT, July 28 (AP)—In apparent sympathy with earlier announcements that the Independent, a monthly magazine, considered the official mouthpiece of Henry Ford, would be turned into a humane organ, not for general criticism, Henry Ford has ordered dealers to discontinue subscriptions to the publication.

The order was contained in a letter received by most dealers Tuesday. Return of subscriptions already made to the publisher also was ordered. The agencies have been required to obtain subscriptions for the Independent as well as sell cars and tractors.

Official confirmation of any intention to restrict the Independent to the Ford organization was lacking at the business offices of the publication and distributor.
