UNION SERVICE HEARS PARKER

M. E. Quarterly Conference Will Be Held in La Grande Tonight

"Victors Inheritance" was the theme on which the Rev. H. W. Parker, of the First Methodist Episcopal church, spoke last evening at the union church service, which was held in the English Lutheran church. Mr. Parker talked about overcoming obstacles and led the congregation in singing. The crowd was comparably small.

Conference Tonight

This evening the fourth quarterly conference of the First Methodist Episcopal church will be held in La Grande, presided over by the district superintendent of the Inter-Mountain conference, Harry S. Hamilton. At this time all officers of the conference and ministers will be chosen for the coming year.

The Rev. J. George Walz was the speaker at the South Methodist church, where the union service for the people living in that part of the city was held. "A fascinating study would be the maze of symbols and symbolism of ancient days and religions. That old picture language was luxuriant, and entering into it we easily lose our way in the labyrinth," Mr. Walz told his audience. "Ever we seem to read in these the outreach of humanity after God, if happily they might feel him," he said.

Cross Fascinating

"However, the most fascinating of all is the cross. This becomes fascinating only when men will stand, look, study, reason and accept. The cross in itself is a paradox, an absurd proposition for salvation from sin, yet in fact it is true. From the swastika evolved the idea of the cross, made forever holy by the highest heroism of love. When man climbed up out of the primeval night, with his face to heaven upturned, he had a cross in his hand. It is the cross of Calvary, the center cross, that comes, however, to mean something worthwhile to the race. It reveals the bigness of Christ as the savior of man. It enriches in all knowledge, in godliness, and enables man to give expression to the divine idea of holiness," the Rev. Mr. Walz told his audience.

Attendance was small in all of the churches of the city yesterday, because of the warm weather.
