Mrs. G. L. Dutton Is Honor Guest At P. E. O. Picnic

Among the many affairs given recently complimenting Mrs. G. L. Dutton, who plans to leave for Grande the last of this week to make her home in Portland, was a picnic luncheon given by the members of Chapter 1 of P. E. O. 6, Friday afternoon at Riverside park.

About 25 members of the chapter were present and during the afternoon the guest of honor was presented with a P. E. O. spoon, Mrs. Ed Kiddle making the presentation.

After a delicious luncheon the remainder of the afternoon was spent in a social way.

The committee in charge of the party consisted of Mrs. H. S. Brownson, chairman, Mrs. C. L. Seitz, Mrs. Ed Kiddle, Mrs. Herbert Eakin and Dr. Margaret Ince.

On Saturday afternoon Mrs. D. E. Weston, entertained a number of friends at tea at her home on N. avenue in honor of Mrs. Dutton.

MENUS

By Sister Mary
BREAKFAST— Fresh plum, cereal cooked with raisins, cream, toast, milk, coffee.
LUNcheon— Lettuce and peas au gratin, rye bread and cheese sandwiches, compote of fresh fruit, chocolate wafers, milk, tea.
DINNER— Veal butts with macaroni, en casserole, celery, and apple salad, steamed blackberry pudding, milk, coffee.

Always be sure that a fruit compote is thoroughly chilled. A spoonful of whipped cream can be dropped on top of each serving and a cube of bright jelly, used for garnishing if the dessert must be "served up," but a cold, not too sweet mixture of three or more fruits is delightful and needs no apologies.

Lettuce and Peas au Gratin
 Two cups sliced green peas, 2 heads lettuce, 1 tablespoon onion juice, 1/2 cup fresh mint leaves, 1/2 cup veal stock or water, 2 tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons flour, 1 cup top milk, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon pepper, buttered crumbs.

Chop mint leaves. Cut lettuce in slices. Put lettuce, peas, mint, onion juice and stock in a sauce pan, cover and cook twenty minutes over a low fire. Shake the pan frequently to prevent burning. Remove from fire and stir in butter and flour rubbed to a perfectly smooth paste. Add salt, pepper and top milk and stir until smooth. Turn into a well buttered baking dish, cover with buttered crumbs and bake twenty minutes in a hot oven.

Women Compile State Records of The Underworld's "Who's Who"

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP)—Women are proving able assistants to the Sherlock Holmes of New York state.

The Bureau of Criminal Identification of the New York State Department of Correction is "manned" by women, and a woman is chief of the bureau. Miss Clara L. Parsons, head of the bureau since 1914, was at one time a clerk in the same department.

Under her supervision, women's hands keep classified more than 200,000 cards that tell all there is to know about the "Who's Who" of the underworld, and here women's eyes look through microscopes at the prints fingers make on clean paper.

Miss Parsons does not know why the bureau relies entirely on women to do its work, but she does know they are as capable as men. She admits some phases of criminal investigation are best left to men.

Proud of the efficient way in which her office assists police departments in checking up on criminals who are arrested in the Empire State, Miss Parsons says: "Quite often criminals with records in other states try to cover up their delinquencies and evade severe punishments waiting for them as second, third and fourth offenders. But our check-up usually reveals their history."

Miss Parsons favors universal fingerprinting. This practice, she believes, would make it easy to identify anybody anywhere. The possibility of mistaken identity, she explains, is only one in 64 trillion.

HEALTH

INVISIBLE RAYS, NOT HEAT RAYS OF THE SUN, DO THE BURNING

By Charles M. Williams, M. D., New York City

What is the cause of sunburn? It is the part of the sun's rays at the blue end of the spectrum, and the invisible rays beyond the blue. The red rays of the sun have little chemical action, and little effect on the skin beyond making it feel warm, while the rays at the other end of the spectrum, the blue end, and those beyond them, have a powerful action and a very decided effect on the skin. It is these rays that cause sunburn.

These violet and ultraviolet rays, powerful as they are, have little penetrating power. They are much more easily stopped than the red rays.

Mountain climbers can be sunburned when the temperature is away below freezing, for the mystery vanishes when we remember that the presence or absence of heat rays does not count. It is the blue rays that are important, and on a snow-capped peak the air is thin and pure, so that there is nothing to stop the light almost as would a mirror.

Whenever the light is clear and the region about one's feet is bright, one sees the same result. The sea-shore is notorious for sunburn, partly on account of the pure air, partly on account of light reflected from the water and the white sand, and partly because it is a region where people love to dispense with the protection of clothing.

Light reflected from rocks and sand of the desert and arid mountain regions is very powerful, while the softer light reflected from green fields and forests is harmless. Most of the sun's rays are chemically active rays, and even a thin sheet of tissue paper will give a great deal of protection.

The effect of sunlight on the skin depends not only on the amount of light, but on the kind of skin, and dark skin suffers least. During exposure the skin is reddened because the blood vessels are enlarged and full of blood. The redness soon passes. The real red of sunburn, the kind that counts, comes on a few hours later.

Strong sunlight is so powerful that it actually destroys some of the tiny cells of which the skin is composed, and dead cells are poisonous. These poisons irritate the nerves, you all know how sunburn really burns after the sun has set, and they irritate the blood vessels, too. Nature tries to remove them by sending moribund to the skin, and so washing them away.

At the same time nature tries to protect the skin against further exposure by building a sunshade with the skin itself, and this sunshade is called a coat of tan.

It is a layer of little grains of pigment which appear in the skin, and the more there are of these pigment granules, the darker the coat of tan, and the less light can get through to injure the skin beneath.

In this day of labor-saving devices, why doesn't someone invent a note that will renew itself?

Twins Have Judges Stumped

When the Misses Vivian and Meredith Howard, Tulsa (Okla.) twins entered the city beauty contest to determine which girl should be Miss Tulsa at the Atlantic City pageant, they caused the judges plenty of grief. The judges quickly decided they were prettier than any other contestants—but which of the twins was the prettier they could not decide. Finally they picked Vivian, shown on the right in this picture.

Statistics say women spend forty million a year on beauty aids, and it doesn't seem half enough.

"What Martinelli Says Won Me to Luckies"

Regan Stewart remarks to Grace Dalton as he lights a Lucky Strike while waiting for a group of guests at The Riding Club.

Giovanni Martinelli, famous tenor of Metropolitan Opera, says:

"We who sing must be extra cautious about our throats. I get my greatest enjoyment from Lucky Strikes because I find they do not affect my voice."
