

WHOLESALE EGGS SOLD AT A LOSS

Action Taken by Producers Said Damaging to Independent Dealers

PORTLAND, Ore., Aug. 18 (AP)—With the announcement of Pacific Cooperative Poultry producers that they would continue to abide by the dairy exchange rule of a 1c differential between retail prices and exchange quotations, but would sell extra at the locality, wholesale eggs are forced to sell at a loss, according to independent dealers. The small dealers complain that the cooperatives thereby take advantage of their situation in being able to hold the local market quotations at a low level in order to show a larger profit on car lot shipments to eastern markets.

Exchange prices on butter and eggs are unchanged today. With the local market quotations at a low level, it is estimated that a larger profit on car lot shipments to eastern markets.

Wholesale prices for eggs and vegetables were practically unchanged this morning.

A few local walnuts are being offered at retail for 35c per pound. First local Crawford pears sold at retail in the local market for 15c per box.

Receipts of wholesale country produce were almost absent on the local market this morning and dealers were generally cleaned out and taking orders in the "dry" basis. Choice seed was selling readily at a 20c to 15c. Apples were steady at 20c for the best.

Poultry prices continued steady, with hen receipts moderately plentiful. Broilers were very firm, with only a few coming in.
