Robbed Mannequins May Lose Positions

PARIS (AP)—One Paris dress-making house is said to have sent out the command that all mannequins must have back hair enough to do into a knot in six weeks or lose their jobs.

The head of the particular house is a recent recruit to the group of Parisian women who are letting their hair grow. While her shingle grows out she is wearing a pit-on and take-off knot which Paris calls a chignon.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO—AND NOW! Children's Death Rate 300% Less Today

By Andrew J. Thornton, M. D., San Diego, Cal., Member Oregon Memorial Institute

We frequently hear people say, "When I was a child we did not die at these serious infections like measles and diphtheria and only rarely did we have typhoid." What is the answer? There are several.

Twenty-five years ago the death rate among children was 300 per cent higher than it is now. Scientific medicine has made it possible to save the lives of many children that formerly succumbed in early infancy. In other words, we are saving the weak. Whether or not this is the best thing for the human race is not a question for the scientific physician to discuss; his business is to heal the sick and save life.

Twenty-five years ago sanitary conditions were quite different from what they are today. Pools where all these serious infections had their necessities of life now live in comparative luxury and their children eat things that are anything but necessary. Their homes are comfortable to the point of over-comfort for the rearing of children with resistance to disease. Over-heated air predisposes to gonorrhea and adenoids, lowers resistance to infections, and generally weakens the resisting child.

Twenty-five years ago it was a day's journey with the horse and buggy to the city and back to the farm or village. Today rapid transportation makes contact with the masses easy for everyone. The danger of crowding into picture shows and other public gatherings is forgotten or ignored. This infection is spread with the rapidity of the automobile or the speed of the airplane. Most infections in childhood begin as a cold in the nose or throat. If these mild infections were treated more carefully most of them would never become serious.

Twenty-five years ago diagnostic methods were such that many conditions were promptly recognized were unknown or overlooked by the best physicians.

What to Do and What Not to Do. If you have a child that was premature at birth or for some other reason is delicate, see that everything is done that modern science can do to strengthen and build up their child's body.

These are the essentials: First of all, good food and plenty of it. Remember that you cannot over-feed the average growing child.

Good habits of life and health should be established early. This includes good food habits. Do not allow your child to select his diet or to choose the time to eat. Too many American homes are dominated by spoiled children.

Do not over-dress your child or

PHONOLM PROMPTER HAS DIFFICULT JOB

LONDON (AP)—Bernard Shaw, 89th Thonokle and her husband and manager, Lewis Casson, has been making a speaking film out of "St. Joan." Miss Thorncliffe carried "St. Joan" to success on the London stage.

"The problem of prompter becomes very acute in the speaking film," Casson says. "The actor who drops up and loses his lines is a great tragedy when he is speaking. At the same time a camera is registering his acting. Of course trained actors do not actually dry up very often, but they hesitate and hesitation is magnified so much on the phonofilm that it is almost enough to destroy the illusion."

Casson thinks the speaking film has an interesting future, but he says experiments with "St. Joan" have not advanced far enough to make it certain that the film will be released for general use.

Historical blight of filberts in Oregon is hard to detect, the experiment station declares. Its presence is not generally recognized by the filbert grower. Sanitation, cutting out and good care are essential to control, and late summer or fall spray of Bordeaux 4-6-5 is beneficial, particularly in preventing spread of moss and lichens.

KIMBALL 1857 1927

THE gradual advance to nation-wide favor by the Kimball piano is a far more convincing story than any sudden leap to popularity could have been.

It has won and held the esteem of individual owners—one by one. These have told their story to others without bias. The immense number of Kimballs now in use is cumulative proof of merit.

When you hear the rare tonal beauty of the Kimball, you will realize wherein the reputation of this wonderful instrument lies. May we give you a demonstration today?
