MENUS

By Sister Mary
BREAKFAST—Orange juice, cereal cooked with dates, cream, egg toast, milk, coffee.
LUNCHEON—Creamed celery on toast, caramel custard, granola cookies, lemonade.

DINNER—Stuffed shoulder of lamb, eggplant fritters, succotash, curly endive with bacon dressing, apple snow with baked custard, sponge cake, milk, coffee.

These are simple menus that should meet the needs of the average family with small children under school age as well as older ones. With the exception of the fritters in the dinner menu there are no dishes unsuitable for children as young as four years of age. If the stuffing is not too highly seasoned and rich a small amount can be served even the four-year-olds.

Eggplant Fritters
 One eggplant, 2 eggs, grated cheese, dried bread crumbs, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon mustard, 1/2 teaspoon pepper, 1/2 cup flour, 1/2 teaspoon baking powder, 1/2 cup milk, 2 teaspoons melted butter, 1/2 teaspoon salt.

Wash and slice eggplant. Sprinkle each slice with salt, pile on a plate and cover with a weight of one pound or more. Let stand one hour, drain and throw away water. Sauté as usual. Put slices of eggs into a bowl without beating. Use half as much bread crumbs as there is grated cheese and add enough of this mixture seasoned with salt, pepper and mustard to the egg yolks to make a stiff paste. Spread one side of half the eggplant slices with the mixture. Cover with remaining slices. Press firmly together and dip in the batter. Sauté in a hot well-greased frying pan until nicely browned on both sides. To make the batter mix and sift flour, salt and baking powder. Add milk and melted butter slowly, stirring vigorously to make smooth. Fold in whites of eggs well beaten.

HEALTH

WHY PEOPLE ARE DEAF BEFORE THEY KNOW IT.
 By John McCoy, M. D., New York City

Member Gorham Memorial Inst. The sense of hearing is one of the most important assets in the enjoyment of life and at the same time is one of the most neglected. The reason is that we are endowed by nature with two or three times as much hearing as is required for the ordinary pursuits of life.

What happens, therefore, in that we may lose more than half of our hearing for fine sounds before we realize that any of our hearing is gone.

What is normal hearing? A person with normal hearing should hear a watch from 40 to 50 inches from each ear. He should hear the conversational voice and whisper at a distance of 50 to 75 feet. This can be tested by any individual. If there is a loss of hearing the doctor must determine whether the loss is in the transmitting part of the hearing apparatus or in the receiving apparatus, and also the cause.

With an instrument known as the Audiometer we measure the percentage of loss of hearing. It also aids in determining what part of the hearing apparatus is at fault.

Right here it is well to emphasize that surprisingly large numbers of people from 30 to 25 years of age are quite deaf, who have no previous history of ear trouble. This is the reason so many people think one becomes deaf suddenly, or why people are "deaf before they know it". Many of these people have head noises which are variously described as a ringing or singing, an escaping steam, or a beating or blowing sound. Head noises are a danger signal that the hearing is going.

Our hearing mechanism consists of the transmitting apparatus composed of the external ear and the middle ear and a receiving apparatus which is the internal ear.

The transmitting or conducting apparatus is composed of the ear lobe, the ear canal, leading from the lobe to the drum, the ear drum, a thin, parchment-like membrane somewhat circular in shape and about three-eighths of an inch in diameter, and a series of three small bones (called the ossicles) which amplify the air vibrations between the drum and the internal ear.

Another important part of the transmitting apparatus is the Eustachian Tube which leads from the back of the nose to the middle ear. It is of fine caliber and conveys air from the back of the nose to the middle ear so that there is the necessary equal atmospheric pressure on each side of the eardrum.

Properly counterbalanced by the air from without and within, the drum vibrates and conveys the vibrations through the chain of three little bones to the fluid of the internal ear, the receiving apparatus. Reduced to its simplest form, the internal ear consists of thousands of little nerve endings suspended in a watery liquid contained in a snail-like spiral of bone. These nerve endings receive the sound vibrations and carry them by way of the auditory nerve to the brain.

According to popular notion a perfect ear drum is essential for hearing. This is decidedly not so, because a large part of the drum may be destroyed by inflammation and yet it is possible to hear for the ordinary occupations of life. The internal ear is the essential part of the hearing apparatus and if destroyed deafness must follow. A perfect drum is only necessary for perfect hearing.

There is no doubt that you have heard of the Gardin Roof Paint company, as they are one of the largest roof coating manufacturers in the United States. We have a large shipment of around 500 gallons of the very best roof coating that is almost fireproof and crack-proof. We can sell it to you cheaper than you could send and get it direct yourself and at the same time make a little something out of it. There is not one drop of cost in this product, neither is there any asphalt. Now you will perhaps wonder what in the world it is made of. It is made of gilsinite and China wood oil, and a few other things that we can't find words in the dictionary to express. The gilsinite is supposed to be a product formed of old rubber trees long before Claud Pratt was ever heard of, the same way that coal is supposed to be formed from great forests. That accounts for the gilsinite being very elastic—expanding in the summer time and contracting in the winter without cracking. You can depend on it. If we say it is good, it must be very good. You can take a piece of gilsinite that looks in appearance like coal, hold a match under it until it starts to melt, then stick the butt end of the match into the soft gilsinite and pull out enough threads to sew up a hole in the most critical place in a pair of pants. However, it is not recommended to mend trousers with it, but it certainly does keep leaks in your composition roofing. It is also recommended to coat cedar shingles. If you don't believe it, come and get you a pad of it and it won't cost you anything. I would just like to have the fun of proving to you that you never saw anything like it. Then on the other hand a little pad of it wouldn't do your job anyway. You would have to come back and buy some more to finish.

POTATO SOUP
 An acceptable emergency soup is made by cutting two medium sized potatoes into small pieces and cooking in one quart of boiling salted water. Meantime, fry two thin slices of bacon crisp. Take them out of the pan and in the same fat cook two tablespoons of minced onion for five minutes, but do not fry.

When the potatoes are done, drain and wash them, saving the water. Blend some of the potatoes with the bacon fat and onion. Add a little flour if thick soup is wanted.

Gradually add all the potato water, cut the bacon into small pieces, add it, and season with pepper and minced parsley, if desired.

 Left-over meat and vegetables may be used for stuffed tomato salad.

Put the tomatoes cut a round piece from the stem end, and remove enough of the pulp to leave a hollow cup. Season inside with salt and turn the tomato upside down to drain. Set in the ice box until ready to serve.

A good filling can be made from chopped meat, such as chicken, veal, or tomato, cooked peas a few pickles, or cucumbers chopped fine; and salad dressing—celery, dates and apples, all chopped fine, make a good stuffing. Cottage or cream cheese, with chopped nuts may be used.

Serve on a lettuce leaf, or shredded lettuce. Pass mayonnaise salad dressing, or put a spoonful on each tomato.

CREAM DRESSING

Whipped cream dressing is especially good with cabbage salad, but it may be used for any salad.

mer salad desired. To make it, beat half a pint of heavy whipping cream until stiff, add 1/2 tablespoons lemon juice, 2 tablespoons fresh grated horseradish, a grating of onion, a few drops of tabasco, and salt to taste.

A dash of cayenne pepper may be used instead of tabasco. If horseradish is in vinegar, use only two tablespoons of lemon.
