OLD INSCRIPTION FOUND ON WESTMINSTER ABBEY

LONDON (AP)—Workmen cleaning the outside of the west end of Westminster Abbey found an interesting inscription above the west window that is two centuries old. The letters are "A. R. GEORGE II. A. D. MDCCXXXV."

Translated it means "In the eighth year of King George II. Anno Domini 1735." This inscription refers to a restoration at Westminster Abbey at that time.

Dean Joseph Willocks completed the Abbey by the addition of the two western towers. The inscription commemorates the work.

GENTLE JURIES BLAMED FOR MANY LOVE CRIMES

PARIS (AP)—Sentimental juries and French sympathy with 'loves of passion' are resulting quite a bit among those who think a few exemptions and plenty of long prison terms would make life safer.

It is even suggested that murder cases be taken from juries and tried by judges who generally pay more attention to the law and the evidence than they do to the unbridled heart-throbs that move many. J. H. Rogers, novelist, is among those who feel French criminal jurisprudence has about broken down. Juries, says Rogers, cling toward those who kill their loved ones. He even if it is his observation that assault is more severely punished than murder, on the average.

WOMEN INVADING MASCULINE FIELD

Interest in Things Under the Earth and in the Soil Is Gaining

CORVALLIS, Ore. (AP)—In the air, on the earth and now at last under the earth, women are invading the fields for centuries held sacred to men.

For generations now, women have been factory workers and farmhands. Men and women alike have forgotten the clamor against their equality. In business offices and in the so-called dignified professions such as law, medicine and teaching, women are accepted to-day without any but a passing comment.

During the war they went in seriously for flying. Soon after Lindbergh proved that in the no-fear distant future, airplanes of the light transport type, members of the fair sex appeared on the scene anxious to be titled "transoceanic aviators." Then Russia of Germany and Alfred Russel of the United States were among the first to show practical interest in this field, although the lists have well-earned scores.

Now, an interest in things under the earth and in the soil seem to be making women both in America and abroad.

Mining, metallurgy and mechanics are the three latest professions whose ranks women are entering. To those for whom the three "M's" are chosen as a life work, their parents are taken in early spirit.

When Miss Ruth Curran of Los Angeles, Cal., decided to enter the mining game, her reason was simply given as:

"I am interested in geology and mineralogy. Scores of other young women are becoming mining students at Corvallis where I am a junior."

From England comes the announcement that Miss E. F. Elch, D. Sc., one of two women members of the Iron and Steel Institute, has been awarded a scholarship. Miss Elch is now at the Royal School of Mines. The scholarship was provided by Sir Robert Hadfield and includes attendance at the Second Triennial Empire Mining and Metallurgical Congress, opening in Canada Aug. 22.

It was purely by chance that I took up the study of metallurgy," Miss Elch says. "I do not know that I would advise women to take up this work. There is terrible competition. It is hard enough for a man to find a job. Unless a woman takes up a special line there is not much chance."

Taking, however, seems to be the right, member of the Electrical Association for Women, Miss Partridge claims to be the first woman to wire an English village for electricity.

Miss Partridge has lighted one village in Suffolk and three in Devonshire. While studying at Bedford college she took mathematics and mechanics in her college days, and mathematical frames in her D. Sc. Leaving college she entered the office of a consulting engineer and during her leisure hours took to wiring country houses for electric light.

STUDIES STATE MUSIC

NOWATA, Okla. (AP)—Music composers of their respective states are being studied by clubwomen of Illinois, Iowa and Texas. Mrs. E. J. Lawrence of Nowata, chairman of the division of music of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, announced that a report will be made soon on this special study.

During the summer vacation we have decided not to have a beginning class at midyear. However, in order that pupils who become six years of age at about the time of the opening of the second semester, may not be at a disadvantage, we will this year accept all children who become six years of age for only a half year for school for the year ending Jan. 1, 1928, a school official said.

short intervals. This does not mean that the patient should be neglected, rather that he should be protected from over-solicitous friends and relatives.

Another misplaced kindness is the sending of flowers. In recent days it has increased to such an extent that in many instances it does harm, though admittedly an intended kindness.

Originally, flowers were sent to the eye and to the sense of smell and possibly, before the days of aseptic surgery, to destroy some of the odors caused by disease. They are sent to show affection and sympathy, but today in many sick-rooms they have become a burden.

Many times a small fortune is spent in flowers while at the same time the invalid is wondering how he is to pay his hospital bill. In a sick room space is limited. Keeping cut flowers in the room vitiates the air and is harmful to the patient. Also flowers are usually sent during the acute stage of illness when the patient has no capacity to appreciate them, and many times the odor of the flowers is extremely distasteful to the patient.

These remarks do not apply to chronic invalids who are shut-ins. They need your visits. They should be taken for rides, entertained as best they can be. But how often they are forgotten!

Baker's Schools Are Scheduled To Open Sept. 12

BAKERT, Ore. (Special)—The Baker public schools will open on September 12. The high school building, Brooklyn, North Baker and South Baker have been thoroughly renovated and all of the rooms painted and kalsomined. It is the purpose of the board of education, not only to make all buildings as sanitary as it is possible for them, but also to have an environment in which the child studying should be conducive to good work.

Because of the fact that the classes which begin at midyear are always very small and because the average pupil who attends school for only a half year forgets most of what he has learned

This is partly due to habit and custom. In sparsely settled districts, where neighbors are few and where it is impossible to secure professional care, it is quite essential that assistance be given by those near at hand.

In rural districts, it is necessary to have the volunteer fireman, but as soon as conditions permit, this is replaced by an organized fire condition permit. It is far better for the patient to fight an illness with the assistance of expert nurses and qualified doctors than with the voluntary nursing by friends and relatives. When the patient is ill either from a disease or an accident he is fighting for his life. Whether this fight is a skirmish or a battle depends upon the nature of the difficulty, but in every combat it is essential not to exhaust the strength of the fighter with purposeless actions.

HEALTH

A SICK PERSON NEEDS REST AND QUIET—NOT CALLERS

When George Meerman, Ind., tells friends and relatives he is very sick to show sympathy to do what you can. Many times the method calculated to help does harm. My chief warning is to caution you not to make kindness a burden for the invalid. The mere fact that a person is ill whether in an institution or at home, is proof that he requires rest.

Rest should not be limited to the physical body. In the early days of an illness mental quiet and emotional calmness are equally and many times more important than just lying in bed and taking
