HELEN WILLS IS TENNIS CHAMPION

Defeats Betty Nuthall, 6-1, 6-4, in Finals in Forest Hills Today

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Aug. 29 (AP)—Helen Wills won the American women's tennis championship today for the fourth time in five years when she vanquished the brilliant English star, 16-year-old Betty Nuthall 6-1, 6-4 in a colorful and sparkling title match.

The 21-year-old California girl, completing an unbroken sweep of triumph abroad and at home this year, overpowered her young rival decisively but not before "beaming beauty" had thrilled a gallery of 8000 spectators with a plucky rally in the second set.

Miss Nuthall's uphill fight against heavy odds in this set prevented the match from being a rout.

Picture Match

It was a picturesque match as the blonde, agile English girl fought to stem the withering fire that swept over from the American's side of the net. It was evident from the start that Miss Wills had entirely too much "punch" in her strokes for her rival to handle.

But Betty, spurred on by the cheers of a crowd whose sympathies seemed to be with her in spite of a desire of an American triumph, never quit trying.

Trailing at 1-4 in the second set, Miss Nuthall spurred and took three out of four games as she held her own in long range duels, mixed her pace craftily and avoided from Miss Wills in the American's control. It looked for a few moments as though the English girl was about to snare one of her characteristic uphill battles, possibly to capture the set, but she was unable to sustain her rally.

It was the fifth American title quest for Miss Wills and her first victory. She wore the crown from 1923 to 1925 but was obliged to default last year because of an operation for appendicitis. Her victory today, an ten of her triumph at Wimbledon, puts the American one at the peak of women's tennis for the year.

Shepherd Is Found Dead In Lonely Cabin

ROSEBURG, Aug. 29 (AP)—The body of Orville Glasgow, aged about 25 years, of Prineville, was found in a lonely sheep camp about 18 miles west of Diamond Lake last night, according to Clarence Mitchell, camp tender, according to word relayed to Roseburg this morning by G. C. Houser, central dispatcher on the Umpqua national forest. The young man met his death, it is believed, Sunday night about 8 o'clock. He was killed either by the accidental discharge of his rifle or by suicide.

Glasgow was in the employ of Ralph Porfily, a Prineville sheep man, and was in charge of a band of sheep grazing in the Diamond Lake district about 18 miles west of the lake. Sunday night about 8 o'clock a herder in a camp about two miles away, in the same district, heard a shot at Glasgow's camp but gave the matter no further thought.

Yesterday evening Clarence Mitchell, the camp tender, visited Glasgow's camp to remove him to a new location and fresh range and found the body of the young man upon the bed, his rifle on the ground. It is thought that the gun was accidentally discharged, although there is a possibility of suicide.

It will not influence the present location as the first limit of the development would not be in full operation for 20 years. It does not involve in any way the already established reclamation fund, but must be dealt with in an independent way.

The reclamation of 1,500,000 acres which is the ultimate goal, will not be fully developed for 25 years. In its final development the Columbia basin will constitute the greatest reclamation project yet contemplated in the country. But it is not calculated to force production beyond the reasonable necessity of reclaiming land to care for the natural growth of the country.

Some lined oil left the yard this morning in a Ford car. Also a little black paint.

We still have quite a bunch of extra Star-A-Sun shingles—the very best we have ever sold out of the yard. They are absolutely clear vertical grain.

Monarch paint is going fast. We didn't make it, but we know what it is made of. There is absolutely no adulteration. It is 100 per cent pure.

There is a customer sitting here in the office that told me I have sold plenty for one day so I guess I will say good-bye.
