...the greatest appeal and attractiveness. The result was very pleasing. All the available wall space was necessary to properly care for the handwork and culinary articles, and each group exhibit was deserving of some special mention. Had there been any exhibitors present as to the size, for, of the character of the work done through these sessions, these double must have been displayed yesterday. From little girls and big girls and boys as well, there were dainty and useful articles fashioned and finished with all neatness and care. And it was very interesting to note that the articles were, without exception, useful and practical. The matter of making any judgment of the displays was a very difficult one. The work was all so well done, the difference in the size of the exhibits, etc.—so many factors entered into the judging that this part of the program required considerable time. Miss

A TYPICAL SPANISH DESIGN

This beautiful new home, completed this summer at the corner of Second street and Pennsylvania avenue, is owned by Dr. J. L. Eagle. It is representative of the many fine homes that are rising in La Grande's residential district. This house is of a Spanish design, almost typical, originating many years ago from the Dutch houses and has been developed in America to its present substantial construction.

The money covering the above prize comes from an appropriation made by the state and comes through the channel of the Union Live Stock Show association. The greater part of the afternoon was devoted to the stock judging by the different clubs. Harry Avery, county agriculturist, 1st, had charge of this part of the work. There were 25 boys and girls competing in this event and they were divided into five groups. These five groups judged five classes of livestock, consecutively, and in that manner each class judged each of the five classes, cow, Jersey, Hampshire ewes, grade Jersey cattle, Poland China brood sows and market hogs. Preceding the judging by the young folks, L. J. Allen, assistant state leader, who was here from Corvallis, gave a talk on judging and gave a demonstration of the points in judging a dairy animal. The judging of the different classes of animals was under the immediate supervision of Mr. Allen, in charge of the dairy cattle, Lester Bickland, a club member for several years, in charge of one class of hogs, Mr. Griggs, Smith-Hughes instructor in the Union school in charge of the second class of hogs, Floyd Edwards of the Experiment station, one class of sheep and Harry Avery the second class of sheep. After each group had completed their judging of the five classes, the leader of each group placed the animals and gave his reason for so doing. The cards of each contestant are in the hands of the county agriculturalist and it will be a day or so before he has them completely checked and is able to announce the standings. Following the announcement of the designs, Mrs. Sayre asked the different exhibitors for permission to carry the prize winning articles to the State Fair at Salem, the latter part of next month, to make up a booth for the Union county clubs. This has never been done before, but Mr. Sayre felt that the quality and quantity of work done merited a booth at the state capital. All who saw the work yesterday were of the opinion that such an exhibit should rank well among similar exhibits from other counties over the state. It might be added that many articles intended for display yesterday were not completed in time to be entered. Some of these will be among those sent to Salem, however. The announcement of the winners from among the members of the different clubs, who will be given a trip to the State Fair, cannot be made for two or three days according to Mr. Sayre and Mr. Avery. Besides the points already taken into account, such as work done, exhibits made, etc., the final report which must be made by each individual club member has to be checked by the two super-
