FAME'S NEW DAUGHTER

Here you are, gentlemen—Loretta Lee herself, the very blonde of your legendary preference. The world knows her as Ruth Lee Taylor, her maiden name, and she is the most popular of the gold-digging Loretas in the forthcoming picture today version of "Kitty Lee". Loretta Lee was just about to give up her movie ambitions. Ruth Lee from Grand Rapids, Mich., and Portland, Ore., 2946 was born on a Friday, the thirteenth. She is 24.

Here Over Week End

Jeannine Shiver, Viola Lindsey and Emma Perkins, of Baker, spent the week-end visiting in La Grande.

Visited Here

Mr. and Mrs. H. Brundson and two daughters from Bagnaw, Mich., G. B. Brundson and Mrs. Grace Johnson and son, Donald, from Portland, were visitors over Labor Day at the H. A. Brundson home on Second street. Mrs. Johnson is the mother of Miss Viola Johnson who makes her home here with her uncle, Mr. Brundson. G. B. Brundson is a brother of H. A. Brundson and lived in La Grande about ten years ago. The party also visited at the H. A. Brundson home on Second street. Mrs. Brundson and Mrs. Ford have been friends for many years.

Former Residents Here

Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Ford, formerly of La Grande, but now of Hoodport, Ore., spent the week-end with relatives. Mr. Ford was in partnership with J. L. Smith, Meyer as owner of the Arcade and Star theaters for a number of years here, selling his interests about two years ago to A. H. Brown and later moving to Hoodport where he is owner of the Rainbow roller-skating rink. With Mr. and Mrs. Ford was their nephew Billy Aravis, who was spending the summer with them at Hoodport. He will remain in La Grande and will attend high school here this winter. Mr. Ford's mother, Mrs. Elma Reed accompanied them home to Hoodport for a visit. Following is an interesting clipping taken from the Port Townsend Courier at Hoodport, which will be of interest to their many friends here. "A birthday party honoring E. H. Ford, Hoodport business man, was held at the north beach of Winchester Bay during last Sunday. On the return trip from the mouth of the Umpqua river the party observed a young man swimming across the bay. The boat circled the annual which swam with all its might to reach the shore. The party proceeded on the way to the city, but watched the swimmer as he plowed his way through the water. The unfortunate part of the trip was in fact that the films for the cameras were used up and an opportunity for a fine picture was lost. Members of the party report a very enjoyable trip at the beach. They predict that the beaches in and near Winchester Bay will provide one of the most popular resorts on the coast."

LABOR DAY'S CELEBRATION

In his address Mr. Osborne dwelt upon the national and state conditions of labor, pointing out that they had no actual power in themselves but exerted only a moral influence which was extended for the good of the laboring people and for the general progress of the country.

She Can Run

Here's Miss Ellen Brouck, Metropolitan champion, who recently ran the 220 in 27 seconds for a new American record. She's due to compete at Eureka, Calif. in the women's championships on September 3.

The nation and state. Since the organization of the state federation in Oregon at the first of the 20th century, Mr. Osborne, stated, it has backed such laws as the employer's liability law, the workmen's compensation law, and the initiative and referendum. In closing he thanked the chamber of commerce and the community as a whole upon their excellent support of the entire show.

Mr. Coolidge, who also introduced the speaker praised the celebration. The large crowd continued to view the contests which followed.

Both dances in the evening were well attended.

The committee in charge of the celebration, of which Max Cullen was chairman, wished to express its appreciation to all who helped to make the day the success that it was. This was expressed to the school board for the use of the athletic grounds, to the volunteer band, to the chamber of commerce, to all business houses which helped in a financial way in the parade, and to the contestants for the queen'ship who gave so much time to put the celebration over and to others. Those who have little to present are requested to do so before tomorrow evening when a community meeting will be held.

Chairman Max Cullen said today that he will probably the celebration would be made an annual event.
