From the diary of Enna Jettick

"Went for lunch to alumnae club meeting to decide whom to bring for our next concert. Marge Bolton said if we got McGorman again she would ask him to sing a song that I wrote, as an extra drawing card. Nobody volunteered to tell her that that would drive everybody away. So I said I'd better get a good orchestra instead, for variety. They elected me chairman to do it. I've called on eight leading citizens for advice, and written three orchestras already. Running a concert means a lot of work, but with these Enna Jettick shoes I never get tired any more."

After Bill Hughes had blanked Sacramento 7-0, the Solons came back to nose out Portland in the night cap 3-2. The Beavers, in completing six double plays in the first inning, are believed to have tied the world's record for two-play killings in a single game.

The Beavers handed the Missions a double header, 1-0 and 2-0.
Oakland made it six out of eight in the present series with Seattle by twice taking the northwestern into camp, 4-3 and 6-4.
Nine hits and two runs was all Hollywood could collect in a pair of games off the left edge hurling of Peters and Weathers, and the Angels dropped the Beavers twice, 2-1 and 5-1.

JACK AND GENE TRAIN SECRETLY

Dempsey Stages Night Session — Tunney Attends Church Sunday

LINCOLN FIELD, CHIEF, 41, Sept. 12 (AP)—And secrecy so strict that not even newspaper men will be allowed to watch workouts Jack Dempsey will complete training for his battle to win back the heavyweight crown from Gene Tunney at night and under the glare of ring lamps similar to those that will light Soldier Field, Sept. 22.

This radical departure from ring custom went into effect last night when the former champion worked four vicious rounds after all but one newspaperman had left the night.

Earlier in the day Jack worked lightly at the punching bags for four rounds and met the correspondence on a half hour "farming bee" without revealing the new departure worked out by Manager Leo P. Ryan.

Evening Session
Shortly before 9 p. m. when all newspapermen but the lone guest for the day had departed, lights suddenly blazed up over the auxiliary ring pitched on the race track lawn. With all but camp machines excluded, a half dozen swarthy partners warmed up about the ring and Dempsey appeared in full fighting regalia.

Fighting with a speed and viciousness that exceeded anything the former title holder has displayed at any previous point in the comeback training campaign, Dempsey whaled Roy Williams, a rugged negro middle-weight about the ring for a round. The bell found Williams "out on his feet" from the slashing attack and badly hurt from a searing body blow.

GENE TRAINS SECRETLY

LAKESIDE, Ill., Sept. 12 (AP)—Secret training, hidden even from Manager Billy Gibson and newspapermen, is Gene Tunney's program from today on for the remaining ten days preparation to defend his heavyweight championship.

"I have my own ideas of training," said Tunney. "There are certain punches I want to perfect and there is no use letting the entire world know the style of attack I am going to use in the Dempsey fight. I made a study of Dempsey when he defeated Jack Sharkey and I intend to fight him according to the deductions I have made after seeing that fight."

"Then there are other things I want to do in private, aside from boxing. I have less than two weeks before the fight and I intend to put in a strenuous week and take things easy for the last few days before the contest."

The champion said the secret workout was a part of his training which he had followed for several years.

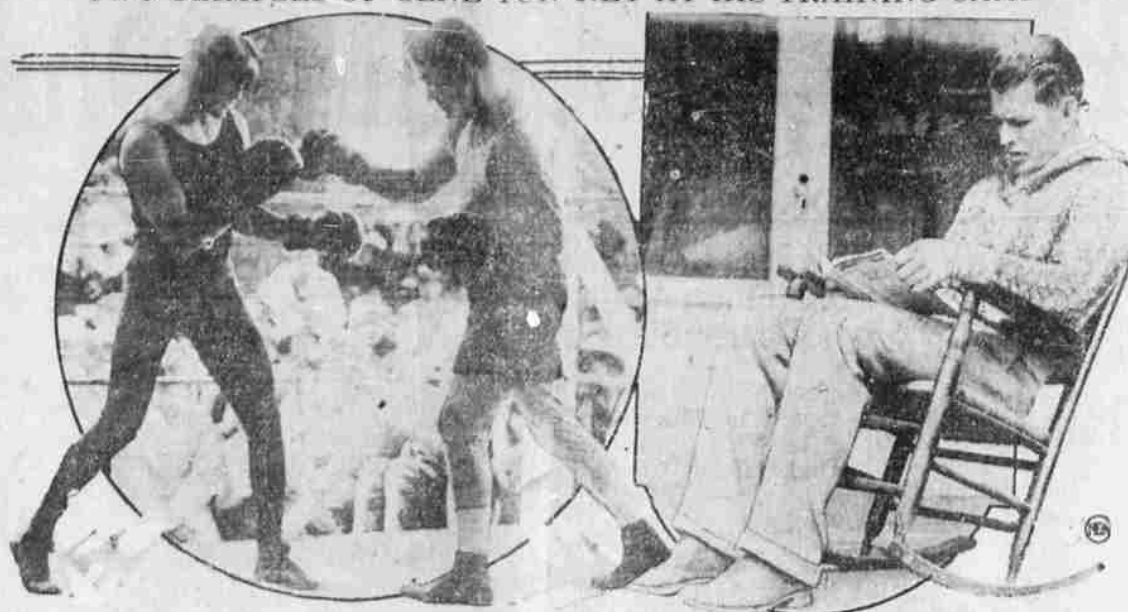

In midsummer heat, Gene traveled at a dizzy pace through five rounds yesterday in what may be his last public ring appearance before Sept. 22. More than 4,000 fans, men, women and children, the largest crowd to see the champion in action since he arrived at the Cedar Creek club, watched Tunney speed through two snappy rounds with Jackie Williams, and then punch Billy Vidaback as usual for three more. The champion went to church instead of doing his daily five miles on the road in the morning.

FACTORY JOB BEST

NEW YORK—Jane Weaver, 28, bobbed brunette, is convinced that a job in a Clevela cereal factory is better than a career in the cabaret night life of the Roaring Forties. On Riverside Drive a policeman found her in a state of collapse because she had eaten enough in her one week's career as a dancer. A magistrate took up a collection to send her back home.

Further changes had been effected today in the bunched race among four clubs for the National League pennant. Once again the fourth place club is only two and one half games away from the leader.

Hopes of the world's champion Cardinals flamed anew as the club whipped Brooklyn again and climbed into a tie for second place with the New York Giants. Only two games separated St. Louis from first place and the Giants searching that race will invade the national city tomorrow for what may be considered an election series.

Fred Frankhouse, a rookie hurler from Houston, pitched St. Louis to a 3-0 win over Brooklyn yesterday.

Jack Wilson's 26th home run of the season started Chicago off toward a 7-5 defeat of the Giants. Cincinnati captured both ends of a double header from Boston, 5-4, 10-2.

Need Two More Games

The Yankees were two games removed from the American League pennant today. After having beaten the St. Louis Browns 2-1 times in succession, the Huguenots fell before Milt Gaston's light pitching, 6-2. Boston granted only five hits, one being Babe Ruth's 50th home run of the year. The Babe is now five up on Lou Gehrig and is only nine homers away from his record of the 1923 season.

Blacker's double and Ray's single in the twelfth gave Washington a 6-5 win over the Chicago White Sox.

Coast Football Prospects

This is the first of a series of articles on the University of Oregon football prospects for 1937. It includes the centers. The next article will discuss the guards.

By Sam Wilderman
Although the football season does not open until September 18, when the first rail for fall practice is made, much interest has been exhibited in the gridiron sport. Prospects at Oregon are as numerous as they were a year ago at this time.

In this first article, the writer will discuss the centers. Nick Carter of Myrtle Point, two-year intermitten, who was expected to be first string pivot man this fall, will not be back, so the thrust of the work will fall upon the shoulders of young George Middleton of The Dalles, who steps the beam at 192 pounds. Middleton starred for the yearling squad last year.

Reddy Carter, Oregon also, who has played three years, as underliners in Stadium Coach McLean will have Everett McCutchan of Portland and Karl Kippel, also of Portland. McCutchan weighs 175 pounds and before coming to Oregon played on the freshman team of DePue University. Kippel was a walk-on last year. He played 66 for the freshman team in 1935 and before that starred four years on the Franklin high school team of Portland. Kippel is a big fellow weighing more than 245 pounds. He failed to get started last year, but McCutchan expects him to come through this.

This is about all that can be said for center prospects for the

O. A. C. CORVALLIS, Sept. 12.—Oregon's state college, which began its existence as a small denominational school in 1868, will open for its 68th year Sept. 12 when all freshmen are required to report for a week of preliminary instruction in college life before the upper classes return. Leading men and women of the campus will assist the newcomers in establishing themselves, while part of the week will be devoted to placement examinations in English for all entering students and mathematics for those choosing engineering.

Applications for admission which have been pouring in at a rapid rate, indicate an increased enrollment again this year, according to E. B. Final registration for freshmen will be Friday, Sept. 23, and for other classes the following day. Regular work commences Monday, Sept. 25.

Thirty-three changes on a total teaching staff of 289 have just been announced by the president's office. Of these but four have the

YOU ARE SAVING FOR THEM-- Teach Them To Help

In families where there are children you'll find that most financial ambitions, most efforts toward accumulated wealth, are planned with the children's future particularly in mind. You naturally want to give your children as good a start in life as possible and any estate that you, as parents, acquire will be left to your children.

You are guarding your savings now—so isn't it an excellent idea to train your children so they will be able to take care of what you leave them? It's not a difficult matter, and every child can have a savings account. Give them a purpose to save for—a doll carriage, a bicycle, a pet—when they're young. You'll be surprised at the interest they take, at the fine habits they'll form, and at the energy they'll use to accomplish that purpose. Later on let them save for an education, for a good bond, for some good livestock. They'll learn how easy it is to save, how quickly money can accumulate. And they'll learn the value of money so that they'll be prepared to take proper care of their own when your help and advice is no longer available to them.

We have children's banks—the attractive Liberty Bell banks—that you can have when you open your youngster's account. Bring them in. Let them get acquainted with the friendly service a bank can render.
