Elderly Couple Is Suspected of Poison Murders

BLAKELEY, Ga., Sept. 15. (AP)—Mr. and Mrs. Harris Hayes, well-known residents of this section, were accused today of having poisoned their daughter-in-law, Mrs. Ames Hayes, 16, formerly of Detroit, and were under investigation in connection with the deaths of their two sons, James and Amos. The couple were arrested yesterday after a coroner's jury had returned a verdict that Mrs. Ames Hayes died ten days ago as a result of poison administered by them. She was the third person in the Hayes household to die unexpectedly and as a result authorities began an investigation. James Hayes died at his parents' home two months ago. Amos, his brother, a resident of Detroit, came home to attend the funeral. He remained for a visit and shortly afterwards became ill and died. Before his death he asked a nurse to tell his parents of a wife and child he had left in Detroit.

Suspicious Arrows
The parents sent for their daughter-in-law and granddaughters. Shortly after her arrival, the younger Mrs. Hayes became violently ill and died. The similarity of illness of the two excited the suspicions of physicians who requested an autopsy over the body of the woman. The coroner who attempted to perform this function was denied admission to the Hayes household and a pathologist was summoned from Atlanta by the sheriff. His report to the coroner's jury yesterday, declared traces of poison had been found in the young woman's viscera.

The elderly couple was present yesterday at the coroner's hearing but made no statement then or following their arrest. Authorities declared that the parents were beneficiaries of large life insurance policies carried by their two sons, being named jointly with his wife in Ames' policies.

Many Causes Vary Butterfat Per Cent

Percentage of butterfat in cow's milk varies to the next without any striking to the next without any apparent reason. It is seldom that two successive milkings from the same cow contain exactly the same percentage.

As a rule, milk produced in winter is slightly higher in butterfat than milk from the same cow in summer. Cows far advanced in their period of lactation usually give richer milk than that produced during the early stages.

Changing feeds or methods of feeding may cause a temporary variation, as may other factors in their feeding, care, and management. Rough handling, excitement, undue exposure, and irregular or hurried milking, all have a tendency to cause fluctuation in the percentage of butterfat.
