PICKS STANFORD TO WIN ON COAST

Rival Football Coaches Believe Redshirts Are Headed For Title

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Great clouds of opinion hang over the future of the national contenders in the 1927 Pacific Coast conference football campaign.

Stanford will win, declared Coach Knack Hagman of the University of Washington.

While the champions do line 101 Walker and Ted Stankovic, ends Ward Peabody and Lew Harris, tackle Captain Swan, guard, and George Boggs, halfback, due to graduation, neutral observers think they appear formidable for a repeat of the 1926 triumph.

Excuses Depression Coach Jones' pre-season depression, however, is partly excusable when it is noted from the schedule that his team has not only a tough program but meets also Stanford and Notre Dame, the only two aggressives to beat him last year.

Coast Football Prospects

It has been a long time since the University of Oregon located in a crop of halfbacks such as is expected to report to Coach John J. McKeown, football coach when his freshmen arrive September 15.

Idaho Unknown Idaho with a new coach and many new men is an unknown quantity but the Yonahs have always been a threat with a light, fast, smashing team.

What's A Friend Good For, Anyhow? Someone said once that a friend is one who knows all your faults and is still your friend. We think, too, that a friend is someone who likes you well enough and is interested in you enough to hear all your troubles and joys and help you or congratulate you as the case may require.

When you have financial success, no one is more pleased to hear about it than your banker. When you have financial difficulty, no one is more eager to give friendly counsel and aid than your banker. He's your financial friend. If you cannot go to him with money difficulties or successes and immediately secure his friendly attention and interest, something must be wrong with him—or, possibly, with you.

He's not only glad but anxious to be your financial counsellor. It's his reason for being—it's what he's good for, if he's good for anything.

Give your banker a chance to be a valuable friend of yours. He may not always be able to lend you all the money you want all the time, but he'll be able to tell you in good business reasons why, for your benefit as well as the bank's, he thinks it shouldn't be done. And he'll always be able to give you the benefit of long financial experience, of business counsel that should prove very much worthwhile. He is truly anxious to help you realize your financial ambitions in a way that will be safe, honorable, and enduring.
