AT THE THEATERS

Bebe Daniels a Winner in "Swim, Girl, Swim"

You'll have to take your hat off to Bebe Daniels.

When it comes to first class swim entertainment Miss Daniels rarely misses and her latest Paramount comedy which is showing at the Star theater today and Wednesday, is no exception.

In fact, "Swim, Girl, Swim," is one of her very best. Never has the dashing star had a better story. The latter, by the way, is an original by Lloyd Corrigan who co-authored the "Campus Phil" and the "Boy Knows His College Atmosphere." The direction is excellent also with Clarence Badger again responsible.

The story concerns a very studious girl—Miss Daniels, of course—who has an ambition to become an athlete instead of always being known as a bookworm. In a spirit of jest she is given a place on the swimming team when, if the truth were known, she cannot swim a stroke. In spite of this she wins the champion swim and is championed over to the heroine of the campus and very much in the public eye. How she overcomes the many of learning that she did not actually win the swim and how she captures James Hall, the leading man, provides a thousand laughs.

The picture marks the first appearance of Gertrude Ederle on the screen as a player in her own right and all around, she performs in an exceptional manner. There are many shots of her in action in the water and also "in character" when she takes Miss Daniels in hand and trains her.

Miss Daniels' rapid progress through these situations at a rapid pace so fast, in fact, that not one dull moment is lost. Clarence Badger, with a deft touch, has given the production a colorful, collegiate atmosphere.

In addition to Miss Daniels, James Hall and Miss Ederle, Joseph Dunn and William Austin have very fine parts.

"Swim, Girl, Swim," is bound to please the most critical of motion picture fans.

Novaro plays a young play-wright, innocently, but he is unable to trace or combat in a scandal with the wife of his best friend.

It is a dramatic situation as powerful as anything that required a play to portray on the screen; it is one of the most sensational dramas of today.

The star's characterization is remarkable. As the young artist, coping against the enormous odds of the motion picture, he rises to the heights of acting genius. This is "Novaro," the only physical flash in the remarkable play, is superbly done. Novaro is a magnificent comedian, as is John Miljan, and the scene with long legs as among the greatest of the screen.

Miss Terry plays the heroine, her beauty is secondary to a wonderful gift of acting, and the difficult role of the stammering wife is a new triumph for the heroine of "Mare Nostrum" and "The Millionaire."

John B. Stahl directed the new production, staged on an elaborate scale at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios. The cast includes Edward Martin, Edward Connelly, George K. Arthur, Lillian Leighton, Otto Hoffman, and others of note.

Producer Gives Ideas on Chorus Girls' Dress

Chorus girls dressed to reveal but not nude are most popular with the American theatergoer, according to Charles George, author, composer and producer of "Sensations of 1927," the musical comedy which comes to the Arcade Thursday night Sept. 29.

"The day is coming," said Mr. George in a recent interview, "when the theater will purge itself of nudity. American audiences are hard to please and the producers in the metropolitan cities have put forth every effort to please the most blasé theatergoer. If the girls are too nude the patrons become restless and if the girls are not beautiful, youthful and all under 29 they hold little interest. But turn loose on the stage a mob of babbled haired girls dressed to reveal rather than to cover, and the American theatergoer will sit up and take notice."

Mr. George applied his theory to his most recent review and the success seems to have put his conclusions "Sensations of 1927" is beautifully costumed, and while it is mainly nude—there is positively no nudity. Mr. George planned his review to appeal to the eye and the stage settings are rich and dazzling in gorgeousness.

"Rookies" At Arcade Is Clever Comedy

A complicated quadrangular love affair spun in tales of laughter is "Rookies," the new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production of error life at the Arcade theater today and Wednesday with Marceline Day and George K. Arthur in the leading roles.

There are a couple of military sketches, a sweet young thing and a vampire all in love at the same time. It's all a scrambled love affair dished up with a garnishing of thrills.

Two of those sketches, Karl Dan-
