BULL KILLS MAN
COEUR D'ALENE, Ida., Oct. 11 (AP)—Stabbed through the lung by the horn of a bull at his home in the Sunnyside district, seven miles east of here late Saturday night, Silas Sylvester Taylor was killed.

Chicago police captured a number of goats after they had escaped from the stockyards and drank a quantity of liquor that had fallen from a truck. Not all the goats ever got to the stockyards, however.

Boiling the prohibition agents is well enough. Any reliable prohibition agent can get a good bootlegger to go on his bond.

Maybe the flappers keep so well because a good healthy germ doesn't care to waste time on tidbits.

In these bootleg days it isn't the neighbor's income that is puzzling so much as the how come.

Steno: "The boss and his wife are still very much in love with each other."

Cashier: "Are they?"

"Yes. When she's away she writes letters to him whether she needs money or not."

"And you had the nerve to tell me that while I was away with the children you spent every night at home working!"

"But, my dear, of course I did!"

"Oh, you did? Then how about this electric light bill of only one dollar for the two months?"

"You're fired!" roared the hard-boiled boss.

"Fired?" sneered the stenographer. "How you talk! I thought you sold slaves!"

Pat was arrested for being intoxicated. On being brought before the judge he was asked by the court what he was there for.

Pat: "Your Honor—I was arrested for being intoxicated."

Judge: "Pat, where did you buy the liquor?"

Pat: "Your Honor, I did not buy it. A Scotchman gave it to me."

Judge: "Thirty days for perjury."

The constitution only guarantees life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. It doesn't say you can catch it.

"Why do you want a new trial?" asked the Oregon judge.

"On grounds of newly discovered evidence, your honor."

"What's the nature of it?"

"My client has dug up $400 that I didn't know he had."

AT THE THEATERS

Sidney and Murray Excel in Mirth-Making

What a relief from viewing "heavy dramma" of the screen is afforded by "The Life of Riley," the feature-length comedy at the Star theater today and Wednesday. It is like a light, frosty desert.

George Sidney and Charlie Murray, co-starring in this film, which E. M. Asher produced for First National Pictures, certainly prove the contention that comedy terms are natural mirth-making material for the screen. Each of these comedians has been famous singly and in combination with "folks" on the stage and in celluloid.

Their work together in "The Life of Riley," however, reaches new heights in mirth-making for Sidney and Murray, individually and as a team. Excellent characterizations provided in this original story by Mann Page assist the comics in topping their own records.

"Sidney is chief of police in a rural town and Murray is fire chief. Sidney is loquacious on the side. Murray is master of the general store. The widow for whose hand they compete is played exceedingly well by Myrtle Steadman, and Sam Hardy, inimitable comedy villain, is a "city slicker."

The opportunities for comedy afforded by rustic village atmosphere are enhanced by the arrival of a big circus in town, and other events that afford contrast and color.

William Leedlow, who directed the picture, and his comedy-constructors, Jack Mintz, have taken advantage of every opportunity to intensify the fun.

All in all, "The Life of Riley," is an excellent comedy dish for those who like to smile, giggle, chuckle or howl. Our advice is to loosen your belt before the picture starts, and prepare for mirthful convulsions.
