Some fast young women take 25 years to reach the age of 19.

Boarding house life has disadvantages, but you needn't ask the lady of the house if you may go out.

She: But what is your reason for wanting to marry me?

He: Why, because I love you.

She: That's no reason. That's an excuse.

Customer: "Got any adding machines?"

Clerk: "None, but we got some good counters."

Mr. Brown: "You have a large family to support, Mr. Pike."

Mr. Pike: "Indeed, I have. And if they didn't all turn their own living I couldn't manage it."

While face powder may catch a man, it takes baking powder to hold him.

Two may live as cheaply as one, but not nearly as quietly.

Three advice is the most expensive and also the most plentiful.

Dealer Smith: "My wife is going to address the women's club."

His friend: "Is she working on her address?"

"No; on her dress."

Helen: "It took Jack 25 lessons to teach me to swim."

Sybil: "The ead. He taught me in sis."

Elderly gentlemen remember the day when it was like this:

A kiss, a sigh.

A long good-bye.

And she was gone.

A glance, a curl.

Another girl.

And life goes on.

But it cannot happen like that today. They don't sigh any more.

Parson: "You love to go to Sunday school, don't you, Robert?"

Robert: "Yes, sir."

Parson: "What do you expect to learn today?"

Bobby: "The date of the picnic."

Women's purses look nice with red or blue silk linings, but it's the green and yellow lining in dad's wallet that counts.

AT THE THEATERS

Sidney and Murray Score In Star Comedy

"The Life of Riley" is one of the best mirthquakes that has rocked our town.

George Sidney and Charlie Murray at their best are co-featured in a pair of corking characterizations and a plot that overlooks nothing of comedy value—with romance and feminine pulchritude and background color to boot.

Consequently the crowd that watched this picture last night at the Star theater more than enjoyed themselves. It will be shown to night for the last time.

E. M. Asher produced this hilarious film for First National Pictures, and William Healdine directed it. Other favorites, including Sam Hardy, Myrtle Stodman, June Marlowe, Stephen Carr, Edwards Davis and Bert Woodruff are also in the cast.

"Riley," the character depicted by Murray, is fire chief and general storekeeper in a rural village, and "Meyer" is chief of police and the fezzan. Hardy comes to town with a rifle as a shell-game man, and remains to get the rich widow, desired also by the fire and police chiefs. Myrtle Stodman plays the role.

A consistent plot is woven around this rivalry, the invention of a first extinguisher by Riley, and a very sweet romance between Molly, who drifts into town the day of the fire, and Steve, Meyer's son. Even a touch of what pathos is allowed to enter the junior love affair, contrasting effectively with the breathless succession of comedy scenes.

Boarding house life has disadvantages, but you needn't ask the lady of the house if you may go out.

She: But what is your reason for wanting to marry me?

He: Why, because I love you.

She: That's no reason. That's an excuse.

"Naughty Nannette" Now Playing At Colonial

Give Viola Dana a story and a role that fits her petite figure and her fascinating personality and the net result is corking screen entertainment.

"Naughty Nannette" which is playing today only at the Colonial theater fits the charming star in every detail.

The role is that of an extra girl trying to get into the movies, but meeting with indifferent success. She realizes that she is not so good off when she meets another poor girl who is furnished and penniless. Viola takes her home and learns that the girl has a wealthy grandfather who will have nothing to do with her because her mother was a chorus girl.

The girl becomes sick and Viola is badly in need of money. She impersonates the girl and goes to the grandfather and finally gets him to relent and take his granddaughter back, but not before she has faced many trying situations. Those watching the picture are taken on a round of the Hollywood studios and boulevards, a most fascinating angle for any picture.

Helen Foster plays the other girl and a brilliant supporting cast headed by Ed Brownell includes Joe Young, Patricia Palmer, Sydney de Grey, Alphonse Martel.

Boarding house life has disadvantages, but you needn't ask the lady of the house if you may go out.

She: But what is your reason for wanting to marry me?

He: Why, because I love you.
