FUTURE OF FREE STATE REVIEWED

President Cosgrove Confident That Ireland Will Maintain Position

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, Oct. 19 (AP)—The future of the Irish Free State is viewed with confidence by Ireland's busiest man, President William T. Cosgrove, for five years the chief executive of the Free State and just reelected his third term for another five years term.

President Cosgrove, 60 years, the tremendous strain of office without a sign of weakness. The task of re-establishing the Free State on a firm footing, the burden of two elections and, since the murder of Vice President Kevin O'Higgins, the responsibilities of two cabinet offices in addition to his own presidential duties have failed to rattle him.

"I am particularly gratified at the sympathetic interest maintained in the United States in the fortunes of the Irish Free State," he told The Associated Press correspondent in an interview outlining the new government's plans and problems. "Irishmen have played so large a part in the development of the great republic of the west that the bonds of friendship with the U. S. must be stronger than with any other nation."

6 Elements Form Basis of Human Emotions, Claim

SPRINGFIELD, Ohio Oct. 19 (AP)—Six elements of physiological origin form the basis of all human emotions, Dr. Carl Jorgensen, neurologist of Copenhagen, Denmark, declared in a paper read before the World Psychological conference at Wittenberg college today.

The six elements he listed were: 1—Fear, 2—Happiness, 3—Sorrow, 4—Want, 5—Anger and 6—Shyness.

"Mixed emotions and the large variety of emotions," he wrote, "may be accounted for by simultaneous action of two or more fundamental elements, and by arranging the six elements according to the degree of intensity with which they are present in the emotion."

"To illustrate: Hope contains in this order elements 4, 3 and 2 or want, sorrow and happiness, but-terant contains 3 and 5, or sorrow and anger, and so on."

Dr. Jorgensen declined to include pleasure and displeasure as emotional elements, since, he contended, in such emotions as fear, joy, grief, want, anger and bashfulness, states containing one or more of the elements is at one time agreeable and at another time disagreeable. He held there was no sharp line of demarcation between sensation and emotion.

Two dynamite bombs were placed on the tracks. One exploded as the second class coach was passing. Another tore up the tracks and the train came to a halt.

Passengers on the Pullman and first class coaches were not molested by the rebels. The express and mail cars were looted. It is believed the rebels took between 10,000 and 100,000 pesos, passengers said. After the attack the rebels escaped into the mountains.

SALEM, Ore., Oct. 19 (AP)—Charging that the bus service of the railroad is operated at a loss and only to stifle competition, and alleging that use of railroad funds to operate stages is in violation of the transportation act of 1920, the Columbia Stage Motor Coach system and the Oregon stages yesterday filed with the public service commission a complaint demanding cancellation of the permits held by the Southern Pacific motor transportation company, the Oregon-Washington Railroad and Navigation company and the Union Pacific stages line.

The bus service of the railroads took the place of some of the trains operated by the railroad companies.

ing last night and announced that men had been selected and that picketing would go on as planned.

This new phase of possible trouble between the miners and peace officers combined with rumors current in the southern field that the I. W. Railroad Rates Report Made at Dallas Meeting

DALLAS, Tex., Oct. 19 (AP)—Despite attacks on the Hoch-Smith resolution and efforts for its repeal, the measure for agriculture relief will stand, according to a report on railroad rates submitted today by Hugh H. Williams, of New Mexico, to the thirty-ninth annual convention of the Association of Railroad and Utilities commissioners, meeting here.

The report was considered one of the most important of the convention. It contained mainly a discussion of the Hoch-Smith resolution which the report pointed out was designed to bring the earliest and largest possible measure of relief to agriculture through a reduction in the rates on agriculture products.

"While the actual reduction of rates on the products of agriculture has not gone far, the Hoch-Smith resolution has nevertheless had substantial effect in the way of staying advances which otherwise might have been made," the report said. "Furthermore, the interstate commerce commission has instituted, and is carrying on investigations affecting some of the principal farm products over widely extended areas of the country which may be expected to be ripe for decision within a year or less."
