AT THE THEATERS

"Rough Riders" Is Called Great Picture

Human and rollicking in places, grimly affecting in others, blending finely all the essences of love, struggle, bravery, humor, pathos and death "The Rough Riders", at its opening yesterday won the highest appreciation of a capacity audience at the Arcade theater where it opened a three-day showing.

"The Rough Riders" can truly be said to set a standard. It is one of the few films which deserve the adjective, great, and which add immeasurably to the progress of the motion picture.

To attempt to follow the drama in a brief review is useless. It is too swift, too breath-taking, too replete with moments of subtlety and too flooding in its emotional character.

One can say that Paramount has made a story that breathes the idealism of Theodore Roosevelt, one of the greatest of Americans; that the story recounts his nature and his exploits in the Cuban regime of hate, war and fever, with an amazing spirit of faithfulness; that a love theme with Mary Astor, Charles Farrell and Charles Emmett Mack, winds like a glowing thread throughout the drama; and that the difficult sequences of the blowing up of The Maine, the gathering of the Rough Riders, their fierce courage in the hail of Spanish lead, and the dominant figure of T. R. alive every moment, contribute to art and express history.

The sterling performances of Noah Beery as Sheriff Bell's Bells, George Bancroft as Happy Joe, Frank Hopper as Roosevelt, Fred Kohler as the top-sergeant and Col. Fred Lindsay as Leonard Wood, are worthy of mention. Mary Astor is ideal as the sweet old-fashioned girl of yesterday whose heart trembles in the balance of a love sought by Charles Farrell and Charles Emmett Mack. Farrell and Mack distinguish themselves by their superb acting.

Marion Davies Scores in "Tillie"

Marion Davies should be given the laurel wreath, or whatever it is that goes to crown the brow of the fairest and cleverest of screen comediennes.

As Tillie, in "Tillie the Toiler," her latest Cosmopolitan starring vehicle, which opened yesterday at the Star theater for a two-day showing, Miss Davies gives the crowning performance of her entire film career up to date.

For many months there has been a popular urge to see Miss Davies in farce. Her past performances have given every indication that she would run away with a straight comedy role. Those who have longed to see her in a vehicle that gives her free rein as a comedienne should not fail to see "Tillie the Toiler."

The play is based on Russ Westover's comic strip, which is run in many of the great American daily newspapers, and the screen play is said to be based on Agnes Christine Johnston and Edward T. Loew, Jr.'s adaptation of this strip. Younger wrote the screen play and, like the star, has done something to enhance his reputation for having written such excellent screen material as "Brown of Harvard," "The Taxi Dancer," and other productions.

Miss Davies has an excellent supporting cast of screen comedians to assist her in this picture. They include at least half a dozen featured players, among them George K. Arthur, Bert Roach, George Fawcett, Gertrude Short, Estelle Clark, Arthur Hoyt and Claire McDowell.

One of Harold Lloyd's best comedies "Capt. Kidd's Kids" is also on the program.

La Rocque Escapes Enemies In Picture

A common ordinary barrel has stepped to the fore as the newest thrill producer for the movies!

Rod La Rocque, who portrays a swashbuckling young officer of Napoleon's army in "The Fighting Eagle," which Donald Crisp directed for DeMille pictures, while on a mission for his Emperor, is intercepted by the enemy. During a fast and break-neck chase over the hills of France, LaRocque, almost overtaken by his pursuers, stumbles upon an empty wine barrel. Jumping into the hogshead he rolls down the steep incline and eludes his near captors.

This incident is one of the many "Adventures of Gerard", as chronicled by Conan Doyle in his novel of the Napoleonic era, which Douglas Z. Doty adapted to the screen. Phyllis Haver plays the feminine lead in support of LaRocque, while Sam DeGrasse, Max Barwyn, Julia Faye, Sally Rand and Clarence Burton also are seen in conspicuous roles. "The Fighting Eagle" will be on view for the last time today at the Colonial theater. It is packed with drama, thrills and laughs.

INDIANS SPEND MUCH

LOS ANGELES—It takes $25,000 a month for the worlds richest Indians to live, what with town house, automobiles, tailored clothes, servants and a country estate for himself when he feels Indian. An accounting has been given legal approval.

It is rapidly becoming so that our muchly married movie stars can hardly recognize their last names any more, much less remember.

The world is growing better, we believe, but it is also growing a great deal more talkative.
