are harvested and the ground plowed, states the experiment station. Soil extension specialists or county agents have assisted in making surveys for releveling farms for better irrigation.

In Western Oregon it is a good practice to pasture established alfalfa meadows as late in the fall as the soil is dry enough to carry stock without puddling, states the experiment station. This avoids the development of plant diseases which thrive on young shoots in damp weather.

rather heavy lands and also on some of the thin lands. For best results it is not planted where wheat or barley is to be grown later, as it often volunteers badly for several years, according to experiment station specialists. Where the hairy vetch is to be followed with hay or pasture there is no disadvantage.

The American people spend ten times as much money for sugar as for books, some statisticians have announced. The pantry is mightier than the library.

Before cooking beef liver, pour boiling water over it to draw out the blood.

Hairy vetch as a seed crop is usually sown in Oregon at 40 to 60 pounds an acre with gray oats. It is a good crop on some of the

At the Bridge Table Are You a Worthless Partner?

That's great news for those who want to LEARN to play Bridge, and here's GREATEST news for those who already are Bridge fans:

Milton C. Work

the greatest international authority on Auction Bridge is to write for this newspaper every day. One of Mr. Work's cardinal rules for the Bridge table is:

"Never bid a No Trump with a worthless singleton unless you have a worthless partner."

It would be painful to have to admit that YOU are such a partner.

But NO ONE need be such a partner—not any longer!

For Mr. Work tells you, in a clear, simple, sparkling and yet easily understandable terms, ALL YOU NEED TO KNOW about the combinations of the cards in order to play WINNING BRIDGE!

You will ENJOY this feature perhaps as you have never enjoyed a writer before.

Mr. Work's interesting articles will begin Monday.

Farm Pointers

Fifty years ago the disposition of refuse seed which accumulated around cotton gins was a serious problem. Thrown in streams, it caused pollution of the water. If allowed to decay in large piles the odor became very objectionable. Today the utilization of the seed for the production of fertilizers, cattle feed, oil, soap and other products terrible is the second largest manufacturing industry of the South, yielding products worth many millions of dollars.

In spraying with arsenate of lead mixtures the addition of a little more than a pint of fish oil or linseed oil to each 100 gallons of mixture causes the poison to spread better and adhere very strongly to the foliage. The fish oil, of the "light pressed" variety, is almost as effective as linseed oil and is very much cheaper. The oil is added after the arsenate of lead is well mixed with the water.

In tests it is found that both sows and pigs eating from a self-feeder look better and are more healthy than those fed by hand. They require less feed and are ready to market earlier. In breeding practices, better results likewise were obtained with sows having access to self-feeders.

"Rat-proofing" buildings is the best form of rat insurance. In a brick, stone, or cement foundation all openings where rats may enter should be closed with metal sheeting or concrete. Basement windows or other large openings should be covered with strong, durable screening such as 8-mesh hardware cloth. Ventilators and sewer openings should be protected with gratings. Such buildings as corn cribs and granaries should be elevated 18 inches or more from the ground and kept open on all sides and free from accumulations underneath.

Increased potato yields are attributed to seed selection and treatment, better fertilization, improved cultivation, and crop rotation. For more than 200 years the potato has been one of the staple field and garden crops and has kept pace with the growth of population on the basis of about three and a half bushels per capita.

Perhaps the greatest single obstacle to the rapid spread of timber growing in the United States is the unstable ownership of forest land which contemplates only temporary use or benefit from the land.

Stumps are most economically disposed of by piling and burning them.

Methods of vinegar manufacture have been worked out at the state college successfully to prevent spoiling of the product. Clean, pure juice, preferably sterilized by heating to 150 degrees Fahrenheit for a few minutes is used. It is cooled and inoculated in an open barrel with a culture from one gallon of cider and a small portion of compressed yeast. The barrel is covered only with a cloth as all steps in the process of manufacture must have plenty of air. Detailed information can be obtained by writing to the department of horticultural products, Corvallis, Ore.

Releveling Eastern Oregon land that has not irrigated well can be successfully done after the crops

Signs Award of $3,000,000

Mrs. Margaret Connell, foreman is shown signing the $3,000,000 verdict a jury brought against the government in favor of Mrs. Alice Gray Kales in the federal court at Detroit. The sum was awarded for taxes collected on the sale of Mrs. Kales' stock in the Ford Motor Company. This may mean an end of the government's attempt to collect $20,000,000 taxes on sale of minority stock in the Ford company.
