Club Entertains P-T. A. Visitors At Delightful Tea

The Grande society is turning its attention toward the 22nd annual convention of the Oregon Congress of Parents and Teachers which is being held here this week in an effort to make the visiting delegates feel at home and enjoy their visit here.

Yesterday afternoon the La Grande Neighborhood club entertained the visitors at a complimentary tea, following the afternoon convention session, which was a delightful affair. Tables were arranged at the back of the Presbyterian church auditorium, where the convention is being held, and were decorated with bouquets of the season's flowers.

Mrs. Sherwood Williams, president of the Neighborhood club, and Mrs. Carl Helm, vice president of this district of the Oregon congress, presided. Mrs. Lynn Robinson was chairman of the committee in charge, and Mrs. Ray Williams and Mrs. Melvin Galbraith were other members of the committee. They were assisted by Mrs. C. A. Bingaman, Mrs. L. B. Moe, Mrs. Frank Halston, Dr. Margaret Ingie, Mrs. Robert Eakin, Mrs. H. R. Hannu, Mrs. G. M. Pierce, Mrs. C. F. McTherson and Mrs. R. Alexander.

This afternoon following a school exhibit at the high school, auditorium the visiting women will be entertained at reception given by the teachers of La Grande, with the teacher delegates in attendance at the convention as special guests.

Tomorrow afternoon the visitors will be entertained with an auto sight-seeing trip over the valley.

The Parkdale club was entertained yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Victor Eckley, with Mrs. Frank Owsley, Mrs. Ed Halley and Mrs. Claude Bartmess assisting as hostesses.

There was a short business session during the early part of the afternoon, presided over by the president, Mrs. Emma Blokland. It was decided to postpone the cooked food sale scheduled for this week until next Friday, Nov. 4. Several visitors were present for the meeting, including Mrs. Fred Peterson, Mrs. Claude Wright, Miss Tess Scriber, Mrs. Edna Halley-Stonebreaker and Mrs. William Condit.

Refreshments were served by the hostesses before adjournment. The next meeting of the club will be Nov. 5 at the home of Mrs. Isaac Shaffer.

Alpha Club Meets At Reynolds Home

One of the most attractive Halloween dinner parties of the season took place last evening when Mr. and Mrs. Charles Reynolds entertained the Alpha club at their home on Washington avenue.

A four-course dinner was served early in the evening at eight small tables, which were cleverly decorated in keeping with the Halloween season. Orange colored candles in black holders were found on each of the tables, along with bouquets of the season's flowers. Nut cups at each place were also in keeping with the Halloween season.

After dinner eight tables of bridge were at play. Mrs. Elmer Stoddard and Chase Robinson presided the guest prizes and the club honors were won by Mrs. Charles Ringler and William Siegrist. Consolation prizes went to Mrs. A. B. Bowen and Walter Reuter.

A business meeting of St. Peter's Aid society was held yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. C. C. Bull, when plans were made for a bazaar and supper to be held at Honan hall Saturday, Nov. 15. Plans are now practically complete for the annual supper and bazaar, which promises to be very successful.

NEW JOB FOR WOMEN

CHATHAM, Ark.—Liners of the future will be "manned" and captained by women, says Captain Thomas Drake, who piloted a 35-ton schooner from the United States to Plymouth. "The modern liner is so wonderfully equipped with every device of science that it can be navigated by women. Being captain of a liner isn't a man's job any more."

Bridge Pointers

By Milton C. Work

Continuing today the answers to questions most frequently asked by correspondents, we have:

EASY ACES: MINORITY HONORS:

In their anxiety to make additions to their scores, many players cling to the notion that, one side scoring three or four honors, the other may count something for their two or one; or that when the Aces are divided, each side scores twenty points for its two. The last line of Law 39 closes this debate: "One or two honors held by a side are not counted."

ACES AND FACES:

Of all the hardy evergreens in the forest of Bridge errors, this is the hardest, the greenest and the "everest." The Bridge humorists have rung innumerable changes upon it; for the last hundred years, every form of ridicule, abuse and remonstrance have been heaped upon those who come forward to ask about it; but all in vain. Each year new questioners want to know "how weak your hand must be to entitle you to a new deal." It therefore seems necessary to explain that there is no new deal for the player whose hand contains neither Ace, Face nor Honor; a player who was dealt four Deuces, four Treys, four fours, and a Five might be entitled to honorable mention for his curio, but he would have to play the hand.

DOUBLING AND REDOUBLING:

Many wish to know whether under certain conditions (the conditions named varying greatly) doubling or redoubling is permitted. There is no form of the game of Auction Bridge in which both the double and redoubles are not important factors; neither is ever barred.

WHICH PLAYER IS DECLARER?

This always can be determined by finding the correct answers to two simple questions: Which side made the highest bid and obtained the contract? Which partner of that side first named the suit or No Trump, which the contract designates? The answer to the second question is the name of the player who is Declarer, and Declarer's partner is the Dummy. In the following the (*) designates Declarer.

BREAKFAST—Grapefruit cereal, cream, vegetable sausage cakes, grilled tomatoes in cream sauce, popovers, milk coffee.

LUNCHEON—Peanut and tomato bisque, croutons, lettuce and egg sandwiches, baked apples with cream, milk, tea.

DINNER—Baker halibut, scalloped potatoes, buttered spinach, apple and celery salad, peach soufflé, milk, coffee.

Peach soufflé is a delightful dessert to serve after fish. Fresh, canned or dried peaches can be used so the dessert is "seasonable" any time of year.

Peach Soufflé

Three or four peaches, ½ cup sugar, juice 1 orange, 1 teaspoon grated orange rind, 1 tablespoon granulated gelatin, 4 tablespoons cold water, eggs (white), 1 cup whipping cream, 2 tablespoons powdered sugar.

Pare peaches and remove stones. Simmer in a very little boiling water until tender if the fruit is not very ripe. Boil through a coarse sieve and add orange juice, sugar and grated orange rind. Return to heat and cook until mixture thickens. Stir in gelatin softened in cold water. Let stand until cool and fold in white of eggs beaten until stiff. Whip cream until firm and add powdered sugar. Fold into first mixture and turn into individual molds. Let stand in ice for several hours to chill and become firm.

Woman's Garments Have Decreased From 20 to Four Pounds—And Less

LONDON (AP)—The oldest patch in the world is an exhibition at the Institute of Hygiene. It was found in Egypt 1,000 years ago. The house-wife who mended the garment did an excellent job.

The patch is visible from the under side, but invisible from the outer, which shows that "invisible mending" is no new thing.

The exhibition likewise discloses it must have been a hefty maiden who could wear the clothes of Queen Victoria's day.

Woman's garments, not counting her cloak, then weighed twenty pounds. Today they weigh four.

The exhibition shows the evolution of women's and men's clothes throughout the ages. Actual garments worn in the time of the Pharaohs, Greece, Rome, the Middle Ages, Tudor times and later eras are shown.

Eight Petticoats

The flapper of fifty years ago wore six or eight petticoats which would show her modern prototype who now wears a thin, one-piece garment. Sleeves have given way to shoulder straps, and the length of dresses has shrunk. The materials of which dresses are made have become less heavy, changing from satin and velvet to thinner fabrics.

The dominant note of the exhibition is the parsimony of the modern girl's garments, made possible by the introduction of artificial silk materials.

Favors High Heels

In connection with its display of footwear in various ages, the Institute of Hygiene is exhibiting anatomical charts to show that women's feet are naturally adapted to the wearing of high heels. If a woman wears flat heels, the Institute directors explain, she will tend to strain muscles in her legs and back. So-called "sensible" shoes are, therefore, lacking in sense.

Among the features of the exhibition are pointed-toe shoes of Early England, the toes of which, some of them six and seven inches long, are stuffed with moss. King a whole from the middle position.

To remedy this condition, it is evident that either the paralyzed nerve must be re-animated or that some other force must be applied that is too strong to be overcome by the play of the good muscles on the other side.

The second is as simple as the first is difficult. Over all the muscles of the body is a material called fascia. It can be taken in strips of almost any length and of convenient width. It is strong and stretches but little. Bands of this material can be made fast at the corner of the mouth and at the proper places on each lip, and tension applied to them will overcome the muscle pull with which they have to contend. All else that is needed is to place them where they will not show.

Nowadays this is accomplished by the aid of a long needle of special pattern, with which a tunnel is made under the skin between the mouth and points just in front of the ear. The fascia bands are drawn through three such tunnels and after the mouth has been straightened by tension upon them they are made fast under the skin near the ear. Their presence is not to be suspected, the distortion is eliminated, and the face is straight.

This is the mechanical method of straightening the lopsided face, one that is good and sound as well as simple. It will serve either with or without the other surgical methods of re-animating the nerve by joining it with another or re-animating the muscles by joining to them strands of other muscles served by live nerves. It merely adapts to the paralyzed face a procedure known as face-lifting, or rather one that is a refinement of that operation.

WOMEN SPONSOR BOXING

HOT SPRINGS, Ark.—Arkansas women are going in for boxing promotion. The last legislature legalized boxing with the provision that matches were to be conducted under the auspices of the American Legion or other incorporated patriotic organizations. The Joseph Pollard chapter of the United Daughters of 1812 has decided it is included in their sphere and soon will offer a boxing card.

HEALTH

SURGEON STRAIGHTENS CROOKED MOUTHS

By J. Eastman Sheehan, M. D., New York City

Months that are drawn over to one side of the face, twisted upward at one corner and downward at the other, can now be straightened.

What has happened to the crooked mouth is that the great nerve which supplies the majority of the muscles on one side of the face has been put out of action, with the result that these muscles, which are more or less in antagonism with those on the other side, cannot hold their own in the competition. If one horse of a team keeps moving and the other stands still there heads will not long stay in line. It is very much like that at the lips.

The seemingly simple muscle which forms a circle around the mouth is made up on both sides of prolongations of half a dozen or more other muscles which enter from the sides, from above and from below. When they are all working the pull from the other side cannot be resisted. So the mouth is pulled over to one side just as far as the paralyzed muscles will stretch. As the lengths and directions of these are different, their unequal stretching causes distortion on that side, besides the shifting of the mouth as
