GOOD SENTIMENT

A friend who collects quaint and curious signs copied this one from the window display of a general store:

"You are my friend and come to see me. You ask a favor and I believe thee. I cash your check and you relieve me."

The same check came back and you deceive me.

Now I am hard-bitten and you can deceive me.

The spelling and composition may be a little off, but the sentiment is true blue.

Trying to be brutally frank to a flapper, we told her that her hair looked like a mop. "What does a mop look like?" she asked.

"No, lady, a meadow lark is not a party thrown in the country."

"Edgar, dear, run out and get me some invisible hair-pins, will you?"

"Well, how'll I know when I have them?"

Gentle—I heard you were out on a joy ride last night.

Bertie—it's a lie. None of us were killed or even injured.

AT THE THEATERS

"Metropolis" Now Showing At The Arcade

La Grande has a chance to show its appreciation of the best the motion picture industry has yet contributed. "Metropolis" the UFA production which Paramount is presenting at the Arcade theater today and Saturday, deserves the support of every moviegoer in town. It can safely be said, without any fear of contradiction, that the picture goes just a bit further than any other film has ever done. "Metropolis" is the imaginative tale of what our old earth will be like in the year 2227. If we're to believe this remarkable picture, airplanes will be as common as autos. Buildings will shoot right up to the sky. The rich will live in beautiful homes on the surface, machine rooms will be down below and the workmen's homes will be located thousands of feet beneath. Huge elevators will be used in taking the men to work. Instead of names, each will have a number.

We are introduced to Rie Masterson, son of the master mind of Metropolis. Tired of his own empty life, he goes down to see how his father's empire exists. There he falls in love with Mary, the magic daughter of a workman. John Masterson sends a soulless automaton, made in the form and figure of Mary, down to a meeting of the workers. He tells the image to preach contentment but she plays false, advising them to strike.

Then comes the most amazing spectacle ever seen. When the man forgets his chains, the whole stop turning and a terrific flood ensues. The workers, clanking around the deserted machines, suddenly remember that their children have been left in the city below! Then the flood waters start rising and—well, those who saw "Metropolis" last night burst into repeated avalanches of applause.

Fritz Lang, maker of "Siegfried" directed "Channing Pollock, author of 'The Pool,' adapted 'Metropolis' for Paramount. It is one of those films which should be encouraged by your attendance!

An eastern university announces it has reached the "saturation point." The hip flask evidently has been successful.

Gov. Horton

Here is a new picture of Governor Henry Horton who recently became governor of Tennessee following the death of Governor Austin Peay.

Lesson No. 2

Question: Why do underweight children need and realize so much benefit from emulsified cod-liver oil?

Answer: Because it provides a vitamin-rich food that nourishes efficiently and helps thin children put on weight. It's known worldwide as SCOTT'S EMULSION
