JUST A KISS

CAMDEN, N. J.—Mrs. Andrew Lubelski, with a bruise on her neck, had her husband in court on charges of assault and battery. When Andrew explained Judge Herriman had a policeman investigate the nature of the bruise. "Yes," testified the policeman, "it's a kiss." Thereupon Andrew was freed with some advice as to moderation and as to kisses being too valuable to argue over.

U. S. OUTPUT OF WHEAT LARGEST

since well before the World War by the United States. This country, in 1925, produced 327 million bushels, more than a fifth of the world total. Only European Russia came anywhere near this mark, with 590 million bushels. Even when Asiatic Russia's 200 million bushels are added, the United States is still in the lead by more than 40 million bushels.

But Uncle Sam's 120 million bushels consume most of this vast volume of wheat. Some years the exports jump to a quarter of a billion bushels. Usually, however, they are little more than 100 million bushels, making up the 12 per cent of world shipments that was the rule even in pre-war days.

Smaller Nations' Exports Drop

"While Russia has dropped out of the world wheat trade since the world war, at least temporarily, and Canada has moved to first place, there have been significant shifts in the positions of other wheat producing countries. Rumania, which contributed one-sixteenth of the world exports, dropped entirely for some years, and now supplies only one-ninth-sixth. Bulgaria has cut her contribution to one-third the former figure, and Hungary's 55 million bushels have shrunk to 20 million. India, too, has been slowly losing ground as an exporter.

"Next to Canada, Australia has shown the greatest growth in wheat shipments, raising her pre-war figure 6 per cent of the world shipments to 15 per cent. Argentina has shown a less spectacular growth from 10 1/2 per cent to 12 per cent.

Some Heavy Crops of Europe

"A surprising fact disclosed by a survey of the wheat situation is the magnitude of the crops produced by France, Italy and Germany, all of which are relatively densely populated consuming countries. France's crop of 450 million bushels in 1925 was considerably larger than that of Argentina (223 millions) and approximately twice that of Australia. Italy's 240 million bushels was also greater than the Argentine crop, while Germany's 118 million bushels was not far short of the Australian production. All three of these countries found it necessary to supplement their heavy home production by taking from 4 to 8 per cent of the world shipments. There has been little change in the volume of French wheat and flour imports since before the war, but that of Italy has increased, and that of Germany has decreased.

"The greatest importer of wheat continues to be Great Britain which takes about one-quarter of all international wheat shipments. In 1925 she imported 263 million bushels of wheat and flour, an amount about equal to the total combined shipments of the United States and Argentina. In addition, Great Britain raised more than 50 million bushels of wheat at home.

United States Leads Also in Beef

"In beef cattle, as in wheat production, the United States leads the world, with close to 60 million head. Russia probably ranks next with slightly under 40 million, although both Argentina and Brazil have almost as many. Germany, France and Australia follow with 17, 14, and 13 million. There are heavy holdings of cattle in India and other parts of the Orient, but the beef production from these countries is very light owing to religious scruples and vegetarian habits.

"The World war seems greatly to have affected the meat eating habits of the west. Apparently France learned meat eating from her allies. Her pre-war imports of beef were only 41 million pounds, while she exported 62 million pounds. Now the exports have been cut almost to one-half the former figure, while the imports have increased more than six-fold. They are now 73 per cent of all international exports.

Germany has doubled her imports, and now takes 13 per cent of world shipments; her exports both before and since the war are negligible.

Great Britain's Greatest Importer

"As with bread, so with beef Great Britain is the greatest importer. She imports now more than one and three-quarters billion pounds per year, against one and a quarter billion in pre-war days.

"Changes in the sources of beef have not been great; rather, the pre-war tendencies have been followed out. Russia was never an important factor in Europe's beef supply, and her withdrawal from European affairs had little effect on the meat trade.

The World's Meat Counter

"Argentina is the world's chief beef purveyor. Before the war her contribution was 45 per cent of the total international exports, now it has grown to 50 per cent. Uruguay is a poor second with 11 per cent, about double her pre-war production. Australia, which furnishes 10 per cent of beef shipments before 1914, sends out only 9 per cent now. The United States, too, has dropped from a 19 per cent contribution in the years prior to the war, to 5 per cent today.

"The only other country with exports which equal 5 per cent of world exports is, strangely, The Netherlands, with more than 7 per cent. This country has only two million cattle. The explanation lies in the heavy imports of beef, most of which are re-exported.

"Because the teeming population of the east lives largely on rice, it would be natural to assume that more rice is grown than wheat. But the fact that the people of the west are on the whole much better fed, apparently turns the scale in favor of wheat. The average estimated world rice crop for five years preceding the World War was two and a half billion bushels, while the corresponding wheat crop was approximately one billion bushels greater. The average annual crops for the years 1921 to 1925 were nearly three billion bushels of rice, and nearly four billion bushels for wheat.

"A much smaller percentage of the rice crop enters international trade than that of the wheat crop. In pre-war days 8 per cent of the world's rice production was exported, as against 23 per cent of the total wheat. The percentages now are practically the same.

"Pork plays second fiddle to beef, as rice does to wheat among the meats and grains consumed by man. There are far fewer hogs in the world than cattle—about 250 million as against more than 600 million. The United States leads all other countries in the number of its hogs—between 50 and 60 millions. The nearest competitors are Germany with 16 millions, and Russia with 14 millions.

"The United States is also first in pork exports, sending out nearly one and a quarter billion pounds, more than half the total international shipments. The next most important exporters are Denmark with 463 million pounds, and The Netherlands with 259 million.

"In pork England is again the world's best customer, taking more than one and a third billion pounds of the world's exports, 57 per cent of the total."

SCORES BEAUTY CONTESTS

ATLANTIC CITY—It looks as if the country will be saved next year from the danger of floods from tears of disappointed beauties. The Hotel Men's association hopes that the annual pageant for the selection of Miss America will be discontinued believing it has nullified its usefulness.

Having seen pictures of both Madame Lupescu and Princess Helen of Rumania, most American men have long been convinced that Prince Carol wasn't quite all there.
