Brings quick relief from sore throat, bronchitis, tonsillitis, croup, stiff neck, asthma, neuralgia, headache, congestion, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, pains and aches of the back or joints, sprains, sore muscles, bruises, chilblains, frosted feet, colds on the chest.

The landlord was asking the prospective tenant a few questions.

"Of course, you have no children?"

"No, sir."

"Any dogs or cats?"

"No, sir."

"Piano, phonograph or pianola?"

"No, sir. I have no musical instrument, though I should explain that my fountain pen squeaks rather badly, but I am willing to get rid of that if you say so."

Teacher—John, your conduct is outrageous. I will have to consult your father."

John—Better not teacher— it will cost you $2. He's a doctor."

OUT OUR WAY

When a man says that he is willing to change his opinion, you'll never be able to convince him.

When a wife reigns she sometimes storms.

As one bootlegger said to another, "Keep up your spirits."

Richard Dix has landed and reports the situation well in hand, down the Yangtze river in a dirty Chinese river boat. Dix comes with a corps of American portagers fleeing from hunger-mad pirates. And he brings his boat to safety, too, but only after one of the most thrilling fights seen on local screens this year.

The picture in "Shanghai Bound" Dix's newest Paramount starring vehicle, the feature at the Star theater for three days starting today. It proves a worthy successor to "The Quarterback," "Knockout Kelly" and "Man Power" the recent hits that have lifted Dix to such lofty heights of popularity.

The supporting cast is exceptionally good. Evidently Dix insists that his pictures have also plenty in them. Mary Brian, who played in two of his recent pictures, is again the leading woman in this one. As an American society girl, she has one of the best roles of her career. Other players are well cast, including the 150 Chinese who are seen in the atmospheric scenes.

But to Dix goes the major credit of course. He appears as Jim Bucklin, captain of the "Pan Tan" Yangtze steamer. Up the river he finds a party of Americans. Down the river he takes them to the haven of Shanghai's protected zone. There's fighting all the way down, with Dix in the midst of it in a fast-swimming, fast-writing role that fits his talents perfectly.

Credit for the story of "Shanghai Bound" goes to Edward S. (Tex) O'Reilly. According to advance notices he was once a drill-master in the Chinese Army. He has pictured prison-day warfare, pirating and uprisings in a manner that is both convincing and realistic. Luther Reed, the director, has translated it into screen terms admirably.

It's a good picture in every sense of the word. Richard Dix fans will be more than pleased with this new vehicle.

"Ben Hur" Is Regarded As Mighty Romance

The magnificent plot, fine characterization and beautiful love story are among the outstanding reasons why "Ben-Hur" has attracted the imagination of America for fifty years. In the motion picture playing at the Arcade theater today and Thursday the splendid portrayals of Ben-Hur by Ramon Novarro, Esther by May McAvoy, Mother of Hur by Claire McDowell and Tirzah by Kathleen Key, add to the effect and enhance the romance. These players use the romantic side of the story, which is just as engrossing as the sea battle or even the chariot race.

Miss McAvoy, who previously was best remembered by her role in "The Sign of the Cross," is a charming Esther, daughter of the Merchant of Antioch, who secretly has saved the Hur fortune for the young heir, and Ramon Novarro in the Ben-Hur role is handsome, valiant, marked by sincerity, depth and range of feeling.

Perhaps the deepest note is struck after Ben-Hur and Esther set out to find his lost kin, who have been immured in a forgotten Roman dungeon and (unknown to him) finally released as outcasts. Mother and Tirzah find the youthful Ben-Hur asleep on a bench outside the disused Palace of Hur. The sister kisses his cheek but the mother does not dare to touch him. Slightly they go away to save him from the ruin which is theirs.

There are few dry eyes during the enactment of this scene. But the sorrow is turned to joy after Esther discovers the outcasts in the Vale of Hinnom, takes them to the Divine Healer, whose benediction cures them, and the happy four are reunited.

It is easier to live within an income than to live without one.
