Local Assembly, Order of Rainbow, In Social Meeting

The first social meeting of La Grande assembly No. 13, Order of Rainbow for Girls, was held Saturday evening in the Masonic lodge rooms with about 45 persons in attendance. Following the regular session of the assembly, which was presided over by Miss Lois Nelson, worthy advisor, an interesting program was given.

Miss Dorothy Brownton played a piano solo and Miss Seville Pratt and Miss Margaret Milne played violin selections. Miss Wilma Hansell and Miss Catherine Humphreys each gave a reading and Miss Grace Gelbel sang a solo, accompanied by Mildred Bradshaw, pianist for the order.

Following the program refreshments were served by section one of the refreshment committee, of which Miss Margaret Anthony was chairman. Miss Ava Williams was chairman of the program committee.

Practice for a pageant, "Light of the World" to be given next Sunday afternoon at 5 o'clock at the First Baptist church occupied most of the time Saturday when the World Wide guild met in regular session at the church. Miss Marvel Milne is director of the pageant, which will be given as a vesper service, guilds all over the world holding a similar service on that day.

Several dolls, dressed by the girls of the guild, were turned in at the meeting, to be sent away in a missionary Christmas box.

After the meeting at the church those present went to the La Grande hotel, where luncheon was served in the coffee shop. During luncheon the regular business session was held, when Miss Jennie Holbow was advanced to the presidency of the guild, and Miss Ida Frances French to the office of secretary-treasurer. The scotcher, the third officer of the guild, will be elected at the next meeting, which will be held at the home of Miss Jennie Neilsen Saturday, Dec. 31.

UNION (Special) — An unique party was given at the Ed Wulf home in South Union Tuesday evening, when Misses Erma Puckett and Emma Wulf entertained a number of their friends at a "Funny Paper" party. The rooms were decorated with comic sections of the newspaper and guests were to represent the various characters. The evening was spent at games and guessing contests.

The prize for the best costume went to Mrs. D. C. Kent, of North Powder, who was dressed as "Mag," who appears in the "Tillie the Toiler" comic sheet. Other characters represented were Maggie and Jiggs, Tillie, Archie and Rosie, Orphan Annie and Sandy, and Mr. and Mrs. Van Swagger.

MENUS

By Sister Mary

BREAKFAST — Canned pineapple, cereal cooked with figs, baked French toast, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON — Scalloped oysters, celery hearts, rye bread and butter sandwiches, baked apples with cream, rolled oats cookies, milk, tea.

DINNER — English mutton chops, boiled potatoes in parsley butter, mashed turnips, relishes, pumpkin pudding, milk, coffee.

In place of salad an attractive plate of "relishes" can be served to advantage in this dinner. There is usually place for five condiments in a large compartment dish while some of the small covered ones provide place for only three articles. In case you choose the large, open dish the following combination is good and pleasantly colorful; strawberry or raspberry jam or currant jelly, cottage cheese, carrot straws, celery and cucumber slices or tiny pickles.

Scalloped Oysters

One pint oysters, ¾ cup grated cheese, 2 tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons flour, ½ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, 1 cup milk, 4 tablespoons minced canned pimentoes, 1½ cups cooked spaghetti, ½ cup canned tomatoes, 4 tablespoons dried bread crumbs.

Melt butter, stir in flour and slowly add milk, stirring constantly. Cook until thick and add ½ cup cheese, pimentoes and the spaghetti which was broken in inch pieces before cooking. Stir until thoroughly mixed. Arrange in alternate layers with oysters in a buttered baking dish. Cover and bake 30 minutes in a slow oven. Mix remaining cheese with bread crumbs and spread over the top of the oysters and brown in a very hot oven or under the flame of a gas broiler. Serve from baking dish.

ABOUT LARGE FAMILIES

NEW HAVEN — Large families are great factors in a man's success, it appears from research of a professor at Yale, "mother of men." From study of the records of 700 alumni Prof. Eastworth Huntington found that the most successful have three times as many children as the least successful. In undergraduate studies and non-athletic activities out the classroom, members of large families decidedly excel, and success in life is almost equally correlated with success in studies and student activities outside of athletics. Athletic success shows no appreciable relation to access in life, while the training boy gets among a considerable roup of brothers and sisters does.

Bridge Pointers

By Milton C. Work

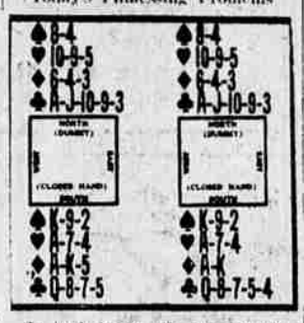
To finesse or not to finesse, is a question that frequently will puzzle any but the most expert Bridge player. The biddings or the previous play may definitely indicate the location of the adverse card which the finesse would be made to capture; but in the majority of hands there is no sign post upon which it is safe to depend, and the Declarer who needs every possible trick should use the firm rules in finessing. These rules are based mainly upon mathematical chances; and obviously the player who always takes the chance which wins oftener than it loses, must obtain better results at the end of the year than the player who blindly follows a "hunch."

Of course the soundest finesse occasionally will work badly; but that should not perturb the player who is following the course which must win ultimately. The proprietor of a roulette wheel does not lose his smile if the marble drop in a number which is being backed heavily; he knows that his "percentage" must land him a winner if his patrons continue to play. No conventionally advocated finesse has so slight a percentage in its favor as the wheel at Monte Carlo; yet that wheel supports a principality. Of course when one assured trick is all that is needed for Declarer's objective, trying for an extra one would be the act of an Auction infant; but generally Declarer needs all he can make.

Believing that a series of test questions on finessing, with the answers and explanations given the next day, will elucidate this question most effectively, I am starting such a series today with Hands 1 and 2. In both, Declarer is playing No Trump and no bid has been made by either adversary.

To trick 2 South (Closed Hand) leads a Club, West plays the Deuce of Clubs. The question in each case is: Should Dummy Finesse?

Today's Finessing Problems



In both hands the play to trick 1 is:

Members of the committee in charge are Mrs. Arno Voelz, Mrs. Harry Sandoz, Mrs. J. P. Caldwell, Mrs. Edward Ebell and Mrs. R. J. Kitchen.

SEEKS SEX EQUALITY

BUFFALO, N. Y.—If there is the slightest difficulty in getting an executioner to function in the case of Mrs. Snyder, James D. Crooks, unmarried salesman, has offered his services. In a letter to Governor Smith, saying too many women try to shoot their way out of marital contracts, he said he is willing to enforce strict equality of the sexes.

A. A. Schramm, state superintendent of banks, last week denied an application for establishment of a new bank at Aloha, Washington county.

When He Gets "A Little Money Ahead"

When a man, either in his business or his private affairs, gets "a little money ahead"—a cash balance in excess of his normal and average obligations and needs—what happens to it?

That occurs more frequently than would be expected in an age of "hand-to-mouth" buying and "hand-to-mouth" spending. And it is a chance to start a reserve fund that should be grasped at once.

There is no greater paying investment than the guarding of your existing business—and its financial strength is a fundamental requirement for continued success. A cash reserve—invested in interest-earning Certificates of Deposit — builds that strength and protects your business in an emergency.

The approach of a new year argues for consideration of new policies. Your banker will gladly discuss the advantages of a reserve. His experience and friendly counsel are for your personal benefit.
