Two old maids were planning for the holidays. "Anna," said one, "would a long stocking hold all you'd want for Christmas?" "No, Elvira," responded the other, "but a pair of socks would."
 Father: "Sonny, what's the matter with your big brother?"
Sonny: His moustache has sapped all his strength."

Lady (to collector): Now, this is the seventh time you've been here after that money and we've only had them rags six months. Anybody would think we was running away."

NOT A CLAM
He talks like a book,
But the neighbors all say
It's a play he never Shuts up the same way."
 In all seriousness, a young lad asked us if Gilda Gray wasn't a steamboat on the Mississippi river.
Strange one can't sleep late on mornings he doesn't have to get up early."
 A small homely little man was about to take an examination for fire insurance.
"You don't disapprove, do you?" asked the physician as he made ready for tests. "Not a fast liver, or anything of that sort?"
The little man hesitated a moment, looked a bit frightened, then replied in a small piping voice, "I sometimes chew a little gum."
 You never hear a girl ask for a pin any more. What she wants to know is "Who's got a match?"
If a man tries to beat his wife that isn't news; but if he succeeds, it's another story."
 There is a way to be safe. You never saw a lady vanishing a man who has a chaw in his mouth.
She was only a mother's daughter, but she sure got in some dirty digs."
 Oh, what is so rare as a day in November in the Arctic zone?

AT THE THEATERS

"Spring Fever"
Coming To Star
Tuesday

William Haines in a high-powered comedy, "Spring Fever," a romance of the golf course in which trials and tribulations figure, will show at the Star theater Tuesday and Wednesday. This is Haines' first full-fledged starring production for Metro-Goldwyn Mayer and is as filled with his own particular brand of humor as was "Tall It to the Marines," "Brown of Harvard" and "Slide, Kelly, Slide."

He is once more an athlete, this time a golf champion, who by a fluke of fate gets admitted to an exclusive country club where he poses as a young millionaire. He at once gets enmeshed in a series of situations that fairly shriek with comedy and golf and mirth get so entangled it is hard to tell which is which. But Haines gets by. He not only wins out with his clever tricks and expert knowledge of the game, but gets the most attractive belle of the club set for his bride.

The beautiful and statuesque Joan Crawford, as his leading lady, supplies the romantic interest. Others in the supporting cast include George Fawcett, Eileen Percy, Bert Woodruff, Edward Earle, George K. Arthur and Lee Moran, Edward Sedgwick directed.

"Magic Flame"
at Arcade Is Circus Film

The story of "The Magic Flame" feature film at the Arcade theater opens in a tiny one-ring Italian circus playing the towns along the Mediterranean where Bianca (Verna Blanky), the tight rope walker and parachute artist, is in love with Tito, the clown (Donald Colman).

Prince Vittorio, of Illyria, traveling incognito, meets Bianca as she lands from a parachute jump and immediately falls in love with her. He haunts the circus and incites the antagonism of Tito. When Bianca refuses to succumb to the charms of the Prince, he entices her by a forged note to come to his room at the hotel. Resisting his advances, she escapes by making an acrobatic leap from the window to the limb of a tree.

Not knowing that the girl has escaped, Tito goes to her rescue. In the fight that ensues, the Prince, in leaping at Tito, plunges through the window and over the cliffs into the sea below. Tito, panic-stricken, escapes from the hotel by making use of his remarkable resemblance to the Prince and donning his uniform.

At the door of the hotel, he is met by secret agents of the Illyrian government who, mistaking him for the Prince, announce that the King is dead and that he is now King. In spite of Tito's protestation, he is crowned because of his resemblance to the Prince, and he takes him back to Illyria, leaving Bianca to think that the murdered man is Tito.

In revenge, Bianca leaves the circus and goes to Illyria, where she attempts to kill the King. Her recognition of the King as Tito, her lover, and the method of their escape unharmed from Illyria despite the animosity of the old Prime Minister constitutes a vivid drama which Henry King has woven into a new highlight of the cinema. The story ends with Bianca and Tito happily doing their "tumb" act in the little circus of the Mediterranean.

A Washington correspondent says Charles Evans Hughes isn't the man he was seven years ago. Neither is Lon Chaney.

"Simple Sis"
Drawing Crowds
At Colonial

"Simple Sis" at the Colonial in an uproariously funny story and a perfectly plausible one. A heart-hungry laundry girl meets a timid truckdriver, who protects her from a pickpocket, courts her, fox-trots with her, and finally when she has rescued the wait she is mothering from a fire, marries her so that she may have support and keep the child.

Pasadena was never funnier and she has never before had so great a chance to show the deeper springs of her genius. Her "Simple Sis" is a truly great characterization. Clyde Cook, her co-star is of all comedians the most casual and ingratiating and amusing. Everybody in the family should see "Simple Sis." There is nothing just like it, more the pity. It shows for the last time today.
