BUILDING PLANES

Three New 12-Passenger
Machines To Be Put Into Service Soon

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Three 12-passenger biplanes, weighing 13,750 pounds yet capable of climbing 10,000 feet in 17 minutes, are being built for service on the San Francisco-Chicago air mail and passenger line.

The new ships will go on the route about May 1 and will provide a new standard of luxury for aerial travel.

W. G. Heron, vice president in charge of traffic for the Boeing Air Transport, Inc., disclosing the company's service, declares that lighted fields is to be completed by that time, so that mail service will be speeded up by several hours between the Pacific coast and Chicago.

Air mail is now transported between the two cities with two days and a night of flying, but as the start is made at dawn the bulk of the mail carried has lain in the San Francisco office overnight. Under the new schedule the start will be made in the evening and the last time will be saved.

The new planes now being constructed at the Boeing plant in Seattle will cost $65,000 each. They will carry a total load of 3760 pounds, of which 1500 will be mail, express and baggage.

The passenger cabin is more than six feet high, some five feet wide and 14 feet long. There is a row of four single seats at the left of the aisle and a row of four double seats at the right. The chairs have individual reclining backs. There are forced ventilation and heating equipment for the cabin, sanitary conveniences and large windows to give an unobstructed view. The planes will be equipped for serving buffet lunches.

Three engines of 1275 combined horsepower, with a cruising speed of 125 miles, will power the new ships, which will have a speed of 150 miles with two engines running and will be able to continue flying at moderate altitudes with two engines dead.

The wheels of the landing gear are equipped with brakes and the landing speed will be 53 miles per hour at sea level.

TEST CASE
BALIEM, Ore., Dec. 1. (AP)—Equality of a nature whereby Clara A. Lee, state insurance commissioner, has denied applications by the Northwest National Fire Insurance company for an agent's license to be issued to Karl Hebring, of Portland, will be tested out in court. The company has appealed to the circuit court for Marion county from the commissioner's decision. This was based on the ground that since the company already has two agents in Portland a third could not be appointed legally without the payment of a $200 fee.

Fruits are valuable in the diet because they are especially rich in iron. They also contain calcium and phosphorus. The body needs all three of these minerals often and in generous amounts.

The Libby, McNeil & Libby cannery at The Dalles has closed down for the winter season and will remain closed until the strawberry season opens next May or June.

HEALTH

CAUSES OF FOUL BREATH USUALLY IN MOUTH OR NOSE.
By V. A. Funk, M. D.,

Foul breath is often erroneously attributed to stomach trouble and the innocent stomach immediately suffers, being filled with all kinds of patent dopes to sweeten the breath. We usually need to search no further than the mouth and nose to find the cause of a foul breath. It is true that in stomach disorders, of childhood and adult, the breath may have an unpleasant odor, but not foul. Some few diseases of the stomach, if the adult case accompanied by very foul breath, but they are comparatively rare.

Now that we know where to look for the trouble, what must we look for? Pyorrhea, which is a chronic infection with pus at the gum margin, is the most common cause for foul breath in people and middle life. Teeth, which without care have been allowed to continue to decay, not only cause foul breath but are likely to undermine one's health. Chronic tonsillitis, when the small glands and ducts of the tonsils are filled with a thick, decayed, infected substance, gives off an odor very similar to Limburger cheese. Infection of the adenoids will also produce a very foul breath. Inflammation and chronic infection of the nose and sinuses may be present and cause a foul breath without enough symptoms to cause the patient to suspect trouble in that region. Inflammation of the mouth, whether in young or old persons, and from any cause, always gives a foul breath.

Physician's offices are frequented by patients who apply for treatment for the stomach because they have discovered they have foul breath. They may have some stomach symptoms, to be sure, because the secretions from a putrid mouth or nose constantly poured into a well stomach certainly derange it and cause it to become rebellious. The trouble with most people is that they draw their own conclusions or allow some friend or neighbor to lead them astray. They soon become frightened and want to make a mountain out of a mole hill, after being careless and unconcerned about their physical well-being for years. They are not concerned about their health until the undertaker begins to think "it won't be long now," and then all the horrible things happen to them.

So with a foul breath, as in all other ailments, do not jump at erroneous conclusions, either those of your own or those of your friends. Obtain the advice of men who will give you good, scientific service. Let your dentist examine your teeth, x-ray them if he thinks it necessary. Go to your eye, ear, nose, and throat specialist and have a thorough examination made of the nose and mouth. If he cannot find the cause of the foul breath, then the chest, stomach, and intestines should be investigated.

This is one time that Claude C. Pratt slipped up on. Yesterday we delivered a ton of coal over to the Hohe's Market and my habit has been instead of putting C. O. D. on the bill I always put it in a kinder form—cod-fish. That always was a little amusing to the customers and they send the money back without getting their feelings hurt. But to make a long story short we will have coffee for supper, for breakfast and several other times. Robes didn't pay for the whole ton of coal in codfish but they did send the codfish along. I don't know what I will have to put on the bottom of the bills from now on, as we have a good supply of codfish on hand now and I never did care for habes hay. Atlanta tea is no better.
