"It isn't the cost of these modern skirts that is troubling the women. It's the upkeep."

ART AND NECESSITY

"I cannot sing the old songs. I waited the soprano and: 'The recent and well sold songs are popular, the old: 'I cannot sing the old songs. With sentiment register: 'I Charleston to the bold songs Good Lord! I've got to wait!'" —Washington, D. C. Star.

That you can't sing the old songs. To everyone is plain: You've varied your untold songs. Your voice reveals the strain. And now, to behold, songs: Your needs can't satisfy: You've quit those dead and cold songs: Must eat? Might one ask why?

"MAN WANTS BUT LITTLE" I did my Christmas shopping early. I bought Red Cross tuberculosis suits. I dropped my change in Salvation Army kettles. I wore cotton whiskers at the Sunday School treat. I carpentered a large cot in the living-room. I installed carols all over our town.

A Thief Is Always A Small Man

The thief who took my grip out of my car Dec. 1st has discovered by this time that my clothes are too big for him, and if he is a big enough man to wear my clothes he is too big a man to be a thief, and in either case should return my belongings to me when he reads this ad.

I have earned my Christmas pleasure. So let me play with the children's mechanical toys. I shall be middle-aged only once.

Visitor: Who's the most entertaining man in town? Native: Now look here, stranger, you'd better ask that three question of somebody else in these parts—I never was much of a teller for talkin' about myself.

Gladys, I understand you were held up last night on the way home from the party? Jim—Held up? Say, they had to carry me home!

Gladys has a beautiful waist—there's no getting around it, her suiters admit.

A man told his wife that she did not appreciate a good husband. "Well," she replied, "might if I had one." Yea!

"Have you left anything?" asks the sign on the door of your hotel room. It probably means have you left any towels.

The thing about installment payments which worries the dealers most is the stall.
