'Having Time of His Life'
Is Report—Costes and Lebrix Still in Panama

PANAMA CITY, Jan. 16 (AP)—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh today was on a hunting expedition in a region where tigers, mountain lions and deer abound. Taking a rest from flying, he was the guest of fellow aviators somewhere in the heart of the province of Chiriqui about 200 miles from here. "Lindy is having the time of his life," was the report they sent back.

Diondanne Costes and Joseph Lebrix, French fliers, who arrived here en route to New York announced they would not attempt a New York-to-Paris flight. The absence of Lindbergh gave the people of Panama an opportunity to devote their undivided attention to the Frenchmen, but they pass almost unnoticed through the streets.

This was due to "lack of organization of the French press," Costes said. Unlike Lindbergh, their photographs were not extensively published.

"We have been treated like princes everywhere we landed," he continued, "and by the time we leave a city we are known. The organization of the American press made Lindbergh and we did not have the same support because the French press is not organized the same as the American."

"We will not fly from New York to Paris, because that has been done, as well as it ever will be done," by Lindbergh. "We are not eager to do what has been done by Lindbergh. The Frenchmen expect to fly tomorrow to Caracas, Venezuela."

Gladys: Gracious, isn't Mr. Gotrox speeding terribly?
He: Yes, he's trying to get that latest model home before it becomes obsolete.

TWO CONTENDERS BATTLE TONIGHT

Paolino Meets Zeeley and Jack Delaney Faces Sully Montgomery

NEW YORK, Jan. 16 (AP)—Two contenders for Gene Tunney heavyweight championship go to action tonight in the Metropolitan district.

Heading a boxing card at the St. Nicholas arena Jack Delaney of Bridgeport, Conn., one of Tex Rickard's eligibles will battle in a ten-rounder against Sully Montgomery, giant Texan.

At the N. W. Broadway arena in Brooklyn, Paolino Uzunian of Spain, also a Wile applicant will tackle Ed Zeeley, of Boston. Just where Delaney and Paolino will fight in Rickard's heavy-weight elimination plans will depend largely on their showing tonight.

Meanwhile Rickard is making plans to leave for Miami on Wednesday, where he will confer with Tunney. Rickard said he had no plans to regard selecting a challenger for Tunney for about a month but hoped that the present contenders might bring forth a suitable opponent.

"All I know is that Tunney and Jack Dempsey will fight this year," Rickard declared. "The Sharkey-Heney outcome has upset all my plans, and the outlook among the present heavyweight possibilities is not very encouraging."

Bridge
Pointers

By Milton C. Work

A mistake which occurs frequently at the bridge table is the blocking of a long suit in dummy by the declarer, and the consequent loss of tricks that otherwise might have been made. It is a situation against which a declarer can guard only by careful planning and watching.

A dummy suit is blocked when leading one more round will establish it but will not leave the lead in the dummy, and Closed Hand will then have none of the suit left to lead. Of course if dummy have an entry, blocking his suit is not a matter of consequence; but in many hands one of the greatest difficulties that a declarer encounters is that he is shy of entries in dummy, and one of the best tests of the expert player is his ability to find "hidden entries" when none are visible to the naked eye of the average bridge player. Entries frequently are uncovered in dummy by setting ridded higher cards in the Closed Hand; but even the most expert player cannot discover or uncover entries when they do not exist. Whenever the lead cannot be placed in dummy by leading some other suit (i. e., when dummy has no side entry), blocking the dummy's long suit may result in a serious loss.

The following is a hand which I noted recently, and which is a perfect illustration of the subject we are discussing.

South was the Declarer and No Trump the contract. West's original lead was the Four of Diamonds and Declarer's problem was to win more than four Club tricks. Put yourself in Declarer's position, play out the hand and see how many tricks you can win against perfect East and West defense without risking the loss of game. There are two important plays in this hand on either of which a non-expert Declarer would be apt to fail; be sure you get both right. The correct way to play the hand will be given tomorrow.

WALKER A JACKANAPES?
DETROIT—Decided opinions as to the heads of the governments of the country's largest cities are held by Professor Thomas H. Dodd, of the University of Michigan, who is helping a movement for a city manager government in Pittsburgh. He regards Mayor Walker of New York as "the world's champion jackanapes," and Mayor Thompson of Chicago, as "the world's greatest demagogue."

Where one sheep goes they all follow, especially if it is a black sheep.

Teach Your Boy
The Value
Of A Dollar

Dad, it is up to you to get your boy started right. Teach him the value of a dollar. One way of doing this is to get him interested in earning money and saving it.

Most of the successful men of today are those who started saving when they were boys. Once you get your boy in the habit, there will prevail an enthusiasm to work and save—saving for a purpose, a college education perhaps. When they make money themselves they will realize the true value of a dollar. Later in years that boy of yours will be thankful for what Dad has done to help get started with a savings account.

Now is the time, do not postpone it, get your boy to realize that there are 100 whole cents in a dollar!
