HEALTH

WHY GLASSES DO NOT CURE ALL CASES OF CROSS EYES
By Hamilton Stillson, M. D., Seattle, Wash.
Member Gorgas Memorial Institute.

Frequently it is stated that "cross eyes" are curable by properly fitting glasses. From this the reader is apt to infer that all cases of cross-eyes are curable; and that if a case of cross-eyes is not cured by the glasses procured, the glasses are not properly "fitted."

So when you see an advertisement anywhere announcing that glasses can straighten cross-eyes you must not infer that they will surely straighten the crossed eyes of your little child.

All that glasses can do is to focus the rays of light in the formation of an image. They cannot make a blind person see. They cannot make a mind recognize the image nor direct the eyes properly if the mind is indifferent to the image.

The ability to use both eyes together in viewing the same object at the same time is a late requirement in the evolutionary development of animals—man included. It became necessary for them to be able to judge distances accurately and so the eyes came to be used together in the formation of a "stereoscopic" image—a picture with depth and distance. This stereoscopic picture can be formed only by combining two images into one.

Many children are lacking in their ability to combine the two images into one picture. They lack "fusion sense," as the doctors say. If their eyes cross or turn outward, as sometimes happens, no glasses will avail to make them straight unless and until the mind tries to combine the two images.

So, too, many children have eyes set far apart on the face. Their eyes are harder to bring together into "single binocular vision" and will sometimes diverge. Glasses will not be satisfactory in these cases.

When there has been a defect in the nerve part of the eye, making a part of the retina blind at its central portion, the eyes will keep turning and waving from side to side to bring a healthy portion of the nerve around to a position where the light will strike it right. Of course glasses will not restore the dead nerve nor straighten the eye.

A great many eyes are injured at childbirth. Such eyes cannot be expected to point correctly nor can glasses be expected to make them point straight.

Under these circumstances it is quite proper for you to take your child to a physician-oculist and let him find what defects there are besides the need for glasses. You may be sure he will cure the cross eyes by means of glasses if he can; and that if he cannot do so he will tell you.

Of all sad words that strike his ear: "He didn't know it was in gear."

OFFICE CAT

TRADE MARK REG.

By Junius

This is Thrift Week—don't rob the baby's bank.

A FEW HINTS

To prevent wear on roller curtains, undress in the dark.

To make the can-opener last longer, use a blow torch!

Buy two pairs of stockings—then you'll have a couple of spares.

To make wives last longer, love your own hot quarrel with your neighbor's.

Tell the butcher you have a cat, and maybe he'll throw in a piece of liver once in awhile.

Specialties in one-dollar bills, maybe you'll get change for a five.

Charge your groceries, then maybe when you pay up you'll get a dime's worth of candy for nothing.

REAL THRIFT:

Mrs. Kinder: "I'm soliciting for the heathen. What do you do with your old clothes?"

Mrs. Hard-Up: "I hang them up carefully and go to bed. Then in the morning I put them on again."

INVITATION?

Newlywed (out to obtain converts to matrimony): "Yes, I know this sort of thing is all right in its way, but, honest, wouldn't you like to share a nice little flat with a nice little wife?"

The Incorrigible One: "Why are you going away?"

Every time a messenger boy rings the doorbell most women think somebody is dead.

A NEW CREATION, TOO!

"What's the matter with your wife? She's all broken up lately."

"She got a terrible jar."

"What has happened?"

"Why, she was assisting at a rummage sale, took off her new hat and somebody sold it for 35 cents."

Modern youth we have always with us, likewise ancient virtue; and the war continues.

THE LAST LAP

As they sat alone in the moonlight,
She said as she smoothed Fred's brow;
"Dearest, I know my life's been fast.
But I'm on my last lap now."

The saddest of all insects is the silkworm; he labors all his life to clothe the beautiful women—and dies with his work half covered.

Mrs. Browne—Our new minister is just wonderful. He always brings home the truth to you.

Mrs. Oehre — Wouldn't it be perfectly lovely to have a husband like that!

Brownie—Most of you cheap guys never had a whole shirt on your back.

Sophus—Zat so? Look at me? Ain't I got a whole shirt on my back?

Brownie—Look again. Half of your shirt is in the front!

Madge—If you think Jack wants to marry you for money, why don't you test him?

Marie—Well, there's an objection to that. You see, I might find out that he does, and what I really want to find out is that he doesn't.

Scientists have produced a more permanent finish for cars, but nothing yet invented beats a locomotive.

AT THE THEATERS

Mystery And Thrills In Star Program

Mysterious and awesome, a movie thriller as fascinating as any drama ever filmed, is promised motion picture audiences in "The Thirteenth Hour," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's dramatic screen story of adventure, robbery, intrigue and murder and a romance which aids in the brilliant solution of the puzzle. It is showing at the Star theater today and Thursday as part of the double program.

Lionel Barrymore has the leading role, a mysterious professor whose identity remains a secret to the last scene. He is supported by an excellent cast including Charles Delaney as a young detective and his marvelous dog Napoleon, one of those canines that appears superhuman in its intelligence.

The story opens with a murder and then moves along at a fast pace to the solution of the crime. There are many hair-breadth escapes and mystery piling up suspense to the end. Jacqueline Gadsdon has the leading feminine role, Polly Moran adds the comedy.

At Wilson is literally and figuratively "up in the air" in his latest thrilling airplane picture, "Three Miles Up," a Universal-Western which is the other feature picture at the Star.

The story around the aviator is not the usual trite variety made with just the idea of exploiting tricks and stunts, however. Real human interest centers around "Dick" the "ace" of his regiment who before his enlistment into the army had been an expert crook. His desire to "go straight" and win the girl of his choice involves him in adventures which are logical and convincing.

Snappy Story Of 1928 Has Clara As Star

Bringing Clara Bow to the screen for her fourth starring picture with Paramount "Get Your Man" comes to the Arcade theater on Thursday for a three day stay. The madcap flapper of the screen, whose brilliant work in "Dancing Mothers," "Mantrap" and "Kid Boots" brought her to stardom for "It", "Rough House Rosie" and "Hula" has in her latest picture the same sort of role which won her laurels in her former parts.

The locale of the story is France where Miss Bow is an American tourist endeavoring to see Parisian life alone. There she meets a young Frenchman (Charles Rogers) and is forced to remain all night with him in a wax-works museum when the doors are locked by the night watchman who believes the place to be empty.

Here, in the midst of mechanical figures which execute famous historical events such as coronations, murders, lynchings and imprisonments, the two fall in love, but not until they have encountered numerous thrilling experiences with the grotesque models. The complications are increased when it is learned that the boy has been engaged for 17 years to a girl he does not love. The remainder of the picture is a series of comedy situations in which Miss Bow tries to break down the French hereditary tradition.

Miss Bow and Rogers work together for the first time since their success in "Wings" make an ideal combination. Josef Swickard and Harry Clarke, screen veterans, play the father parts with Clarke supplying some extremely funny eccentric comedy. Josephine Dunn, who will be remembered in "Firemen, Save My Child," "Swim, Girl, Swim" and others, is one more "the other girl."

Make Rain In "For Alimony Only" At Colonial

Imagine a busy motion picture director manufacturing rain! For one short sequence in "For Alimony Only", starring Beatrice Joy, which will be shown at the Colonial theater for the last time today, William de Mille, noted film impressario, turned "rain-maker."

Delays in the manufacture of motion pictures cost huge sums of money and the usual method of making rain in the studio could not be resorted to because of the time it would require. So, when this addition was written into the story, it became necessary for some quick action on the part of the production manager.

Taking things in his own hands, Mr. de Mille, with the aid of his company mechanics, secured several feet of fire hose, punctured holes approximately one inch apart, strung and wired the hose overhead on a frame which sheltered the set and turned on the water.

The director's improvised method of manufacturing rain proved highly successful, and as a consequence, he saved several hundred dollars on production costs.

The featured players in support of Miss Joy in "For Alimony Only" are Clive Brook, Lilyan Tashman and Cissen Fergusen. Toby Claude the diminutive comedienne, has a strong role. The theme of the picture deals with marriage and alimony.

Maharajah, Nancy Leave for Berwaha

NUWERA ELIYA CEYLON, Jan. 18 (AP)—A member of the staff of the former Maharajah of Indore said today that the former ruler and Miss Nancy Ann Miller, of Seattle, Wash., his intended bride, will go to Berwaha, near Indore, in a few days. As soon as the former Maharajah's health permits the marriage will be performed there. Miss Miller first being initiated into the Hindu religion he asserted.
