Lindbergh Rides Under Water For the First Time

CHRISTOBAL, Canal Zone, Jan. 23 (AP)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, who has taken many celebrities for their first ride in the air, has made his first trip under the water.
In company with Commander Ward Wortman of the naval base at Coco Solo, the flier made a trip in a submarine yesterday, staying under the water for 48 minutes. The submarine submerged in Linnon bay in 180 feet of water, then came to the surface and cruised about with Lindbergh on the deck. Commander Wortman did not reveal the flier's reaction to his new experience, aside from saying he was much interested in undersea navigation and the mechanical equipment of the submarine. Panamanians remarked today that Lindbergh had returned from his hunting trip more affable and gracious than before his rest. This was evident when he did not seek seclusion when 200 tourists, many armed with cameras, descended upon the submarine base while he was visiting there. Lindbergh had been warned in advance of their coming but continued to inspect the undersea craft with no apparent signs of nervousness in the presence of the visitors, who stopped to admire him.

HOT DEBATES STIR SENATE AND GALLERY

"day," said Senator Hefflin today when asked about the challenge sent to him by Mayor Gunter, of Montgomery, to run against the mayor as a delegate to the democratic national convention.
The senator said he did not want to be a delegate but would make no definite statement at the moment.
In his two-hour speech in the senate yesterday Hefflin dropped one of his verbal shells in the press gallery.
Retracts Statement
The volley concerned publication of Hefflin's recent challenge to his party leader, Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, to make his religious tolerance speech in Alabama, and his added declaration that Robinson would be tarred and feathered if he did. The Alabamian explained yesterday that his statement was made in the heat of debate and that he hadn't meant it.
He said he had intended to strike that part of his speech from the official record and added that "of course they won't tar and feather Senator Robinson if he goes to Alabama." He offered to accompany his party chief to Montgomery and into Arkansas for a joint debate on the subject.

POLICE ARREST MAN IN DEATH, ROBBERY CASE

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 24 (AP)—Joseph W. N. Gemme was held by police shortly after midnight as one of the men who robbed Tammest Mayes here on Jan. 7, stripped him of most of his clothing and left him to die in a downtown alley.
The arrest was made soon after the identity of Mayes was established yesterday as a former resident of Columbus, O., who had served in the world war. The identification was made through fingerprints furnished to the war department. The clothing stolen from Mayes was found in Gemme's room. He confessed, detectives said, and told in detail of a liquor drinking party with Mayes. When the latter became unconscious, Gemme said, a third man in the party suggested that they remove his clothing. This was done and Mayes was left in an alley where he was found. He died a few minutes afterwards.

DEPICT WHEELER AS BANK RESCUER

Northwestern for a period of ten years, and while needing money many times just as many times repaid it. When the last overdraft was extended and growing Wheeler had timber deals in process of closing any one of which would have repaid all overdrafts, and it was this within the knowledge of the directors of the bank that caused them to allow the overdraft.
Ousted according to Sheppard, simply justified the carrying of the Wheeler indebtedness as good banking. To have closed down on the various Wheeler industries would have meant ruin to them as well as wrecking the bank itself.

HOME MARKET SURVEY PLAN IS ENDORSED

other home product was "S. & K. Brand Sweet Pickles," made by Mrs. Spencer, of Grange Hall, and Mrs. Bert Knight, of Union, G. L. Larson announced that these pickles were finding a welcome market over the county and about 150 cases were being sold this year. He predicted an annual consumption of 1,000 cases within the near future.
Paul Knudtz sang two vocal solos and was accompanied by his wife at the piano. Both numbers elicited generous applause.

Expected Home Tomorrow

"E. R. Larson, most wanted, is expected home tomorrow from Portland, where he has been on business for a few days.

Return to La Grande

Attended Potato Show

Clyde Ward, Mr. Buchanan and Frank Miller, all of Baker county, were in La Grande yesterday and called at the office of H. G. Avery, county agriculturist. The three Baker county men were on their way home from Wagito, Wash., where they attended the potato show held there during the past week. They report about 85 samples of potatoes on exhibit at the show. The samples were not judged, but were simply displayed for the buyers to look over, however, nobody seemed quite ready to buy yet, according to those who attended the show. The Yakima district, in the opinion of the Baker county men, had shipped a large part of the first grade potatoes grown there, although a large number of second grade potatoes were on hand, but there did not seem to be much demand for them. Two Union county men, J. E. Steinbeck and J. R. Weaver had displays at the show.

Mr. Voelz Speaks

President H. E. Coddige then turned the meeting over to Mr. McKennon who first introduced President Arno Voelz, of the Union County Co-operative Poultry association, who spoke on "Egg Production and Marketing." Mr. Voelz, in well chosen words, related the success the association has enjoyed, its steady growth, and the fact that last year about 150 cases of eggs, worth $2,000 worth of eggs and home products. On the other hand, association members spent approximately $10,000 with business men for turkeys, chicken feed, etc., he said. He discussed outside competition, declaring that when the consumer purchased local eggs, he was assured of getting the best to be had while buying outside eggs. If they are bad he has no way in which to recover his loss.

The Second Speaker

The second speaker was Mrs. Wilson, who talked on "Problems of Production and Distribution of Truck Crops and Small Fruits." There is no problem in production in Union county if the grower uses care, she said, but the distribution presents a more serious side. She showed how competition from Emattila county, South-eastern Washington and Western Idaho, combined with flooding of the local markets with produce grown simultaneously by many small home growers, caused a low price to regular producers during certain times of the year. She expressed the opinion that local producers could better their conditions by having crops mature at regular intervals, thus avoiding surplus at the usual marketing time. A sympathetic understanding with the local retailers would also help, she said, coupled with co-operation on the part of the consumers. A tendency to demand home products and avoid buying from-out-of-county peddlers would also strengthen the local producers' market.

She mentioned the fact that 200 tons of produce were shipped into La Grande during the local growing season, and expressed the opinion that by careful and timely marketing, local producers could cut down this. A small cannery would also help to take care of
