Army, Navy Grid Deadlock Remains

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28 (AP)—A conference between President Coolidge and Representatives Hill, of Illinois, and Plab, of New York, looking toward something out of the difficulties between the Naval academy and West Point over football regulations failed today to result in any indication that the trouble would soon be removed.

Representative Hill declared that the president had listened with great interest to their explanations of the causes of the controversy but had not indicated whether he would take any part in it.

He said, however, that he would not be surprised if Mr. Coolidge should make some comment or otherwise directed Secretary Willbur or Secretary Davis of the war department to do so.

MEDFORD HIGH WINS

Pneumonia Preventable Disease; Germs May Be Spread by Coughing

By Frederick D. Stricker

This is the pneumonia season. The pneumonia toll for 1927 was 606. Pneumonia is one of the most prevalent and fatal of all acute diseases. As a cause of death it exceeds tuberculosis. Pneumonia is a communicable disease and is, to a certain extent, preventable. In this state pneumonia is a reportable disease and all cases should be placed in restrictive quarantine. Special quarters should be provided and the patient should be isolated from the other members of the family. If these restrictions are not followed, the healthy germ may place an absolute quarantine on the premises. These conditions provide that if the family allow visitors in the sick room or if the family be so careless as to permit contagion to be spread, the case shall be promptly quarantined. However, if your case of pneumonia is isolated, and is kept isolated, you will not be quarantined.

This rule was not written as a joke or without forethought, for pneumonia is a contagious disease. It is not so much as smallpox or diphtheria but still contagious to a degree. It is just another of those "germ diseases" caused by the "pneumococcus" in true pneumonia and by any one of a number of other organisms in other types of the disease.

Fine Spray Dangerous

In common with other throat, bronchial and lung infections pneumonia is characterized by coughing and this coughing is defined as "sudden forced expiratory noise" which is expelled by the force of only solid or liquid matter that may be in the throat or lungs, but a fine spray as well. That fine spray, if from a diseased throat, is poisonous and it breathes it into your healthy throat is about as safe a procedure as walking blindfolded across Broadway. You may get across without being pushed over of course. The law of averages takes care of that, and the law of averages, qualified by the state of your health and resistant force, has a great deal to do with how you breathe. This deadly spray, if you breathe it just as you would keep away from other communicable diseases.

Sleep right, eat right, and live right, and get some joy out of life, and then you can't have everything. Build a good resistance to disease. Take care of yourself. Keep away from "sneezers" and "coughers" and you and pneumonia will very likely remain strangers.
