An attractive bridge-luncheon took place yesterday afternoon at the La Grande hotel, when Mrs. Ray Price was hostess to the Junior Bridge club. home of Mrs. Wayne Wade in honor of Miss Hilda Blokland, bride-elect. After a short business session as a preliminary to what was to follow little Jackie Bair, dressed as cupid with his arrow, pierced the heart of the bride-to-be. Under the capable direction of the aid social committee, Alma Schroeder, as the queen fairy, assisted by Eloise Stein, Annie Moore and Lois Robertson, danced gracefully into the room with baskets of gifts for the honor guest, after which a mock wedding was enacted by a group of children.

Robert Simmons, as usher, brought in and seated the mother of the bride, Imogene Stein, "O Promise Me" was sung by Mrs. Alex Robertson, after which to the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march, came the ring bearer, followed by Susan and Margaret Davis as flower girls. The bride, Kathryn Avery, entered on the arm of her father, Owen Bond, and was joined by the bridegroom, Harvey Schroeder. Harry Hermann acted as minister.

In a little wagon, decorated with such signs as "newlyweds," "just married," etc., the couple, with suitcases piled behind them and showered with old shoes and rice, departed on their honeymoon, which ended the very clever program.

Miss Blokland received many useful gifts, and the afternoon was an enjoyable one for everyone present.

Masterton; president, Mrs. William Taylor; secretary, Mrs. J. B. Lindsey, and treasurer, Mrs. Arthur Golden. Following the business meeting, a social hour was enjoyed, during which Mrs. Golden, assisted by her daughter, Mrs. Fred Yeske, served refreshments to the 22 members and guest. The next meeting will be on Feb. 10 at the home of Mrs. John Hamann.

P.-T. Association Session Enjoyable

A large crowd attended the regular meeting of the Island City Parent-Teacher association which was held last evening in the Island City Community church. The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Lloyd Pierce, after which all present joined in singing "America," and several P.-T. A. songs. Mrs. G. N. Tarkington presided at the piano.

During the business session Mrs. Pierce announced that Miss Lucy Case, nutrition specialist from the Oregon State college, will hold the first of a series of four nutrition meetings at Island City Feb. 22. She also announced a special meeting of the association to be held at the school building Tuesday afternoon at 7:30 o'clock. The meeting will be short and all parents and others interested in parent-teacher work are urged to attend.

Mrs. Pierce gave a short talk on "The Child at the Starting to School Age." E. A. Shayre, county school superintendent, spoke on "Compulsory School Laws," and Ralph Hunt, principal of the Island City school, talked on "Perfect Attendance and Promotion." Miss Mildred Spencer played a piano solo and responded with an encore and Mrs. H. G. Avery talked on "The Cost of Keeping a Child Out of School." Mrs. C. E. McPherson, district vice president of the Oregon Congress of Parents and Teachers, talked on "The P.-T. A. Movement," after which Paul Knaut sang "Shipmate of Mine," accompanied by Mrs. Knaut at the piano. As an encore he sang "Out Where the Billows Roll High."

As a closing number on the program slides of Oregon history were shown. Before the first slide Mrs. Pierce exhibited Oregon's first flag, which was given to Walter M. Pierce, during his office as governor.

The Central Parent-Teacher association met yesterday afternoon at 7:45 o'clock in the high school auditorium. The Rev. Leif H. Aves opened the meeting with prayer, after which an interesting group of childhood songs were given by the pupils of Miss Nell Mahaffey's room.

A talk on "Ethical Education in the La Grande Schools" was given by J. T. Longfellow, superintendent of schools, in which he said that one of the objectives in education was ethical character as taught in the elementary schools of La Grande. He told of a thorough survey made on the teaching of ethical character in the schools, in which he found that text books contained considerable material for the development of character—stories revealing moral lessons, Biblical references in classics, citizenship in civics and history. NEW YORK—Sir Harry Lauder is priding himself on his ability as a prophet. Twenty years ago some curious American asked if he did not fear he would catch cold. He then said that it would come when women's skirts were as short as his kilts. or influencing channels, he said, were through inspirational assemblies with religious songs and exercises, through picture study and through organized play.

Thomas Bruce sang two selections, "Down by the Sea" and "An Old-Fashioned Town." Mrs. George R. Lynn, parliamentarian, announced that she would conduct a series of lessons in parliamentary procedure beginning with the next meeting.

Pounders Day will also be observed at the next regular meeting, with appropriate exercises, which will be followed by a silver tea. Mrs. Norman Fries, chairman of the membership committee, suggested that every member bring one new member to this meeting.

Miss Mahaffey's room won the picture for the month.

Bridge Pointers

By Milton C. Cook

This is the tenth Saturday Auction Bridge article written to meet the requirements of those who are learning the game, with the hope that it will enable them to acquire quickly and easily all they need to know of its fundamentals. Leaders are urged to keep the articles of this series in case situations arise in which they wish to refer to a preceding chapter.

The Game of Auction Bridge Chapter 10

The subject today is the comparatively new penalty for a revoke. Although adopted in April 1926, it is still unfamiliar to some players; but it has proved to be simple and equitable and there is little chance that it ever will be altered for Bridge.

The penalty for a revoke, whether made by Declarer or by one of his adversaries is two tricks. The penalty can be claimed at any time after the revoke has been established and before the cut for the next deal; or, if the revoke occurs during the last hand of the rubber, before the score has been agreed upon. Two tricks are taken from the tricks of the revoking side and added to the tricks of the other side, and the tricks of each side are then counted and scored, just as if no revoke had taken place.

When the Declarer revokes and the adversaries take two tricks, they are not allowed to score them below the line (i. e., toward game); they merely become two adverse tricks, counting just as if taken in play; the two revoke-penalty tricks may enable the adversaries to defeat the Declarer and score for "under tricks," or to score for Little or Big Slam, if they thus acquire a total of twelve or thirteen tricks; but those counts are scored "above the line." If the adversaries revoke, the two tricks taken from them and given to the Declarer count below the line for him just as they would have if he had won them in actual play. A few examples may help to make this clear.

A Declarer bids three and makes four-odd (total 13), but revokes; the adversaries take two tricks, leaving the Declarer only a total of eight (two-odd); he is "down one" and the adversaries score 50 for one undertrick (100 if doubled 200 if redoubled).

The Declarer bids two Hearts and makes two, but the adversaries revoke; he takes two tricks from them, making his total four-odd, and goes game.

Declarer bids one-odd but wins only five tricks; the adversaries revoke. He takes two of their tricks, which gives him seven, or one-odd and his contract.

The Declarer bids five and the declaration is doubled and redoubled; he makes four, and the adversaries revoke. The two penalty-tricks give him a total of twelve tricks and he counts six-odd below the line at redoubled value. Above the line he counts 50 for a Small Slam, a bonus of 100 for making a redoubled contract, and 100 for one trick over.

For such revoke after the first in the same hand, the penalty is one-trick instead of two. When the adversaries have not enough tricks to pay the penalty, Declarer takes all they have and there is no further penalty. If they have no tricks there is no penalty, but in that case the revoke could not have helped its maker.

Womar Quells Jail Riot

Mrs. Helena Polder took office as sheriff of Dekalb county at Sycamore, Ill., the other day. That same night the prisoners rebelled—82 of them—at the mush diet, and loudly denounced "petticoat rule." When they refused to go to their cells, Mrs. Polder turned the fire hose on them and they went back swiftly. And the next night they ate their mush and liked it.

An expensive, accurate time-keeping watch is a small and intricate piece of machinery that performs in fine style if given a chance.

Over a period of years in being carried around in the pocket this watch will naturally collect small particles of dust and become gummed up when the oil hardens.

It's economy to have your watch cleaned—and really necessary, too.
