ANNOUNCING THE OPENING

Of The

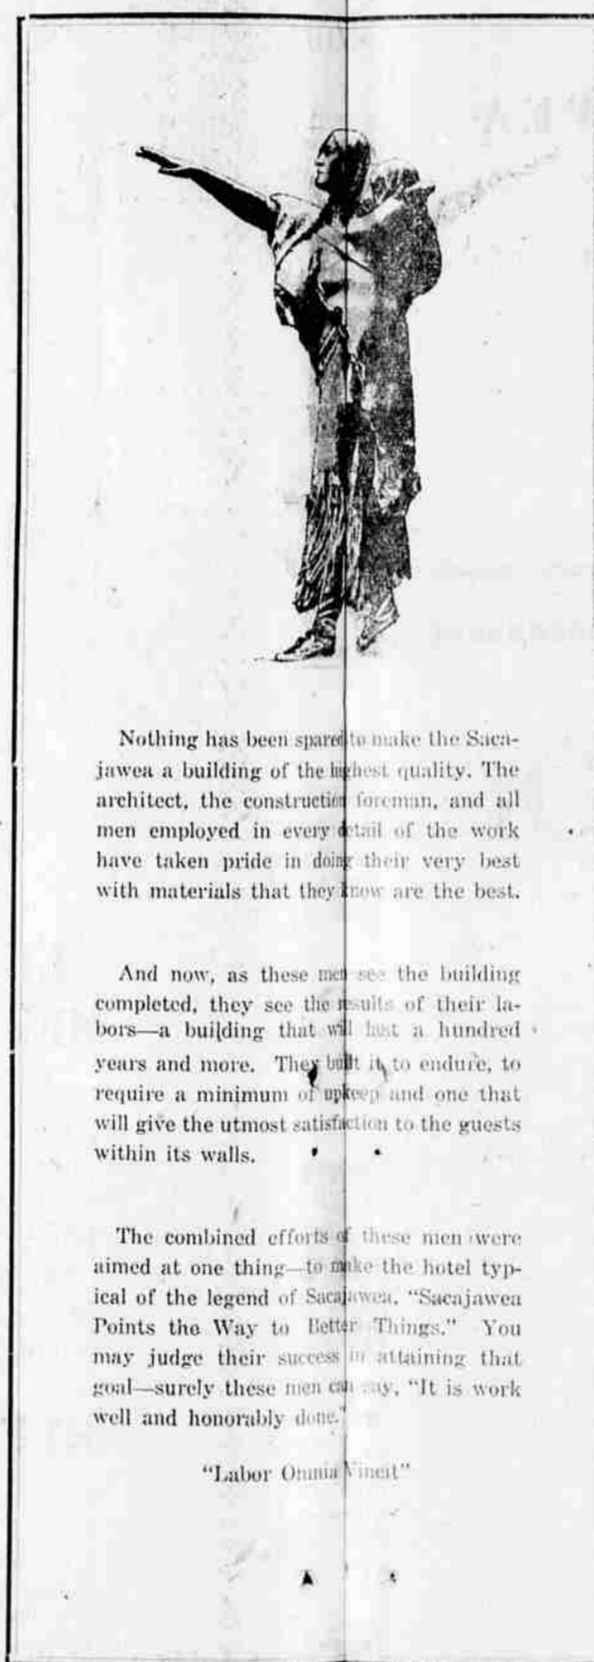

SACAJAWEA INN

Saturday Evening, February 18th

Informal Reception and Ball

After being operated just one week in order to provide a smooth-working organization, the new Sacajawea Inn will be publicly presented to the people of La Grande and all Oregon on Saturday evening, February 18th, 1928. There is no better hotel in the entire state of Oregon. No single constructive event in many years has so attracted the interest of the people of this territory. It is therefore with much pride that the public is invited to see the building and become familiar with its remarkable facilities for serving a discriminating public.

As a means of providing everyone interested in the Sacajawea a chance to view and inspect it, the Grand Opening Reception and Ball will be held Saturday evening, from eight o'clock until midnight. The entire institution will observe "open house." Refreshments will be served with the Sacajawea's compliments. Dancing will be continuous in the beautiful Ball Room opening off the Mezzanine floor. There will be no charge. Everyone in Eastern Oregon desiring to attend is cordially invited. A brief but appropriate program will be presented during the evening.

Nothing has been spared to make the Sacajawea a building of the highest quality. The architect, the construction foreman, and all men employed in every detail of the work have taken pride in doing their very best with materials that they know are the best.

And now, as these men see the building completed, they see the results of their labors—a building that will last a hundred years and more. They built it to endure, to require a minimum of upkeep and one that will give the utmost satisfaction to the guests within its walls.

The combined efforts of these men were aimed at one thing—to make the hotel typical of the legend of Sacajawea, "Sacajawea Points the Way to Better Things." You may judge their success in attaining that goal—surely these men can say, "It is well and honorably done."

THE LOBBY

An attractive, thoroughly comfortable lounging room is provided in the Sacajawea lobby. Designed to give ready access to dining room, coffee shop, mezzanine, and street and business area, the lobby meets every convenience requirement of the guest.

Lounging spaces offer inviting chairs, davenports, and love-seats, with rich, high-pile Wiltons underfoot. The desk is easily reached from either entrance, spacious doors and the lobby center permitting even large crowds to pass freely.

The mezzanine floor, reached by the beautiful marble stairs or by elevator, is a model of quiet, luxurious comfort. Many upholstered chairs, cozy love-seats, convenient writing desks invite those who would answer correspondence or spend an hour reading. Decorations, lamps, lighting fixtures and furniture are unique both in beauty and utility—in perfect keeping with the name, "Sacajawea."

GUEST ROOMS

Nowhere else is comfort, luxury, and complete convenience so thoroughly appreciated by a guest as in the guest room. With that in mind the Sacajawea has been built and furnished to set an unrealized standard for the traveling public in Oregon.

Soft Wilton carpeting of fine quality cover the floors. Tasteful wallpaper and soft enamels provide a charming interior. Bright draperies, a convenient floor lamp, an upholstered easy chair help make a very pleasant room. The bathroom is equal to any metropolitan hotel bath—tiled floor and four-foot wainscoting of tile—tiled-in towel bars and fixtures—and both tub and shower in every room.

The bedroom suite in each room has been made specially to order from beautiful American walnut, charming in design and perfect examples of workmanship. The bed—ever important in a hotel—is equipped with DeLuxe springs and heavy, luxuriously soft mattress. The guest has every facility for pleasing comfort.

UNEXCELLED CONVENTION FACILITIES

The Sacajawea has facilities for large conventions that cannot be duplicated anywhere in the state outside of Portland. The ballroom will accommodate an audience of seven or eight hundred. Connecting rooms in the rear give ideal facilities for committee meetings. Accommodations for meal service are especially large with the dining room, coffee shop, private dining room. Any convention in the state or Northwest will find adequate facilities in the Sacajawea.

INDIAN GRILL

The dining room of a hotel, being so representative of its service, holds the secret of much of its success. In the Indian Grill of the Sacajawea are provided surroundings that will be thoroughly in keeping with a meal service unexcelled anywhere in the Northwest.

Decorations, lighting fixtures—everything harmonizes to make a delightful room in which to eat. A soft carpet covers the floor and the room, looking on Fir street, is so located as to allow quiet and restful charm throughout the day.

No less attractive is the coffee shop opening off the lobby and fronting on Adams. Both it and the dining room are served from the same kitchen but the coffee shop—with unique Indian decorations and modern equipment—offers quicker, less formal service in different and equally pleasant surroundings. Counter, booth, and table service are all available.

BALL ROOM

The Sacajawea Ball Room is the crowning feature of what has been termed "Oregon's most unusual hotel." It is the largest single dancing floor in Eastern Oregon and is equal to most in the state. As a banquet room it can accommodate five hundred guests comfortably. As a ball room it will allow twice the room ever available in this section of the state.

The decoration of the Ball Room is harmonized with the remainder of the public rooms of the hotel—Indian stenciling in soft colors—colorful draperies. It opens directly off the mezzanine floor and combined with the lounging facilities of that floor makes the Sacajawea especially attractive for large dinner-dances, private parties, etc.

Opening off the Ball Room to the rear of the building are smoking and rest rooms. In addition to these are several large sample rooms. To the right and left of the mezzanine entrance are beauty parlor and cloak rooms.

A BEAUTIFUL PRIVATE DINING ROOM

One of the unique and particularly attractive features of the Sacajawea is the private dining room and ballroom off the mezzanine to the south. It is about a third the size of the large ballroom and is perfectly adapted for small private parties, small dances, bridge-dinners, afternoon teas and musicales, club meetings, etc. It is an intimate, beautifully appointed room that has no counterpart for entertaining purposes in all Eastern Oregon.
