Vocation Work Is Arranged In La Grande High

"Butcher, baker or candlestick maker?"

Ye old tyme school ladie may have been limited more or less to the professions made famous by the old ditty, but today's boys and (girls, too) have a far wider field of vocation to draw from, and are being given far more opportunity to study that field.

La Grande high school, like similar institutions of learning, provides students with opportunities to consider life vocations, analyze their particular trend, and take stock of their ability. This year, under a new arrangement, high school seniors are to be given a more systemized and elaborate course in vocation than in previous years. Their English VIII instructor, Miss Zelda Peard, will conduct the course which will last from now until about the last month of the school year, and will be worked in with the regular English VIII course. It will consist of lecture and research work and will require much supplementary reading, outside research and oral and written work on the part of the seniors. Miss Peard has as a principal textbook Gowan and Wheatley's "Occupations."

During the course seniors will analyze themselves as to their personal ability and their professional ability and will consider carefully their preparation for their future, Miss Peard explained today.

Cars are being shipped to Portland from San Francisco by boat at the present time, according to Mr. Perkins, but after March 1, when Seattle starts production they will be shipped direct by freight from there. Only one more car will be driven out of Portland and after that they will come in carload lots. The Portland assembly line will start Apr. 1.

clared that Washington was not prone to go to extremes in religion, etc.

D. A. R. TO OBSERVE WASHINGTON BIRTHDAY

The birthday anniversary of George Washington will be the occasion for celebration by many chapters of the Daughters of the American Revolution throughout the country. Many historical events are celebrated by the D. A. R., but Washington's birthday is usually considered the most appropriate for inviting others to join with them in commemorating the day.

This year the Grande Ronde Chapter will hold a Colonial tea at the home of Mrs. Robert Eakin from two o'clock until five. The members will be dressed in Martha Washington costumes, and have prepared an interesting program. The chapter has accomplished some imporiant things during the post year and have plans for various other activities. Among the things that have been accomplished is the purchase of a chair in memory of Mrs. Sarah Grace Busey in Constitution hall in Washington D. C. The building is being built by the Daughters for holding their annual congresses and for the benefit of all patriotic gatherings in Washington.

A large box of clothing, toys and useful articles was sent to Angel Island for the emigrants who are detained there, and recently a very appreciative letter was received by the chapter from the matron.

In the near future it is planned to place markers designating important historical spots in Eastern Oregon. The D. A. R. scholarship loan fund is another worthy cause which each chapter contributes to; also it is customary for each chapter to offer prizes to the high school students writing the best historical essay.

In addition to these things there are many other appeals to the D. A. R., and the Grande Ronde chapter is doing its bit helping the cause of patriotism in the U. S.

ENTERPRISE PERSONALS

ENTERPRISE (Special)—I. E. Snyder and wife and R. J. Campbell and wife were among those who went from here to La Grande Saturday afternoon to attend the opening ceremonies of the new Sacajawea hotel. They took the high school basketball players with them as far as Imbler, picking them up on their return trip. They report having enjoyed the occasion of the hotel opening immensely. A large crowd of Eastern Oregon people were in attendance.

The local Knights of Pythias lodge is making extensive preparations for the entertainment of the delegates to the district convention of the order which meets here on the evening of March 2. Among other features of the program will be their minstrel show which they claim is the best one they have ever given. Grand lodge officials will be present and every effort is being made to make the convention a success.

C. C. Boswell of La Grande was in the city Saturday and stated that it is possible that he may return to Wallowa county in the near future and make his home here again. Mr. Boswell is a pioneer of the county and says that he feels more at home here than any place he has ever been.

Residents of the Flora and Paradise countries have petitioned the post office department at Washington to establish a six times a week mail service to those offices to supercede the present three times a week service. The new highway between this city and Flora now makes it possible to run an auto vehicle all the year round and a round trip can be made daily and maintained throughout the season.

Farmers report that many ground squirrels are out and this may be taken as one of the signs of approaching spring. Robins have begun to make their appearance in this vicinity and buttercups are reported from some localities. There is less snow on the ground in the hill country than for many years but there is no lack of moisture owing to the heavy rains of the fall. Old timers predict that spring is just around the corner.

Widow of Slain Man Witness In Hickman Trial

HALL OF JUSTICE, LOS ANGELES, Feb. 21. (AP)—Mrs. C. Ivy Toms, widow of the slain druggist, whom William Edward Hickman and Welby Hunt are accused of murdering, told from the witness stand today of the fatal shooting.

The widow identified the youths as the bandits who entered the store with drawn pistols and forced her husband and a chair back behind the prescription counter with hands up, into the arms of James Oliver, a policeman who was behind the prescription counter with Mrs. Toms, repairing his flashlight. A general scramble followed and Toms fell mortally wounded.

"Get his gun," Mrs. Toms testified Hunt said to Hickman as Oliver reached for his gun.

Hickman, according to her testimony, began firing while Hunt kept his gun on her, she moved and her husband dived for the gun trying to protect her. During the fight her husband slumped to the floor and dragged himself to a rear door.

Mrs. Toms said she did not know who actually fired the fatal shot but testified that Hickman fired several shots at her husband and then started running out of the store as Toms dragged himself across the floor.

Hunt, she said, was battling with the policeman; he broke and ran to the cash register, two shots from the officer's gun caused him to continue his flight out of the store.

The youths wore Santa Claus masks during the holdup, she said.

Dr. Frank R. Webb, assistant county autopsy surgeon, who preceded Mrs. Toms on the witness stand, identified a bullet as the one taken from the body of Toms.

The doctor testified he performed the autopsy on the body and that death had resulted from a gunshot wound.

HALL OF JUSTICE, LOS ANGELES, Feb. 21. (AP)—The story of a violent quarrel between Dr. Charles McMillan and his wealthy employer, Mrs. Amelia Appleby was one of the closing blows of the state today in the murder trial of the gray haired physician.

The quarrel as recounted from the witness stand by Mrs. J. A. Evans, a neighbor of Mrs. Appleby, climaxed in the doctor shouting; "——you, keep still, or I'll knock —— out of you."

Then said Mrs. Evans the widow "was knocked or fell" out the door of her home flat upon the porch.

It is hard to do two things at once. The man who is successful as a money maker is apt to be a dismal failure as a spender.

to run for another term of office.

County Clerk C. K. McCormick, who has held office for the past 11 years, will again be a candidate. For the past several years Mr. McCormick has had no opposition and local observers do not expect any other candidates for this position this year.

County Treasurer Florence Bacon will also seek re-election, running on her record. County School Superintendent E. A. Sayre is expecting to enter the primaries on the democratic ticket, it is reported, and County Assessor David Proctor will seek re-election. County Surveyor Roscoe Neal is also expected to run for office again.

None of the candidates have filed with the county clerk as yet, but they have until April 18 to do this. Candidates may either file by petition or by paying a fee of $20.

No "Swearing In"

The primary election is to be held on Friday, May 18, and in at least one particular, citizens will have to refrain from procrastination if they desire to vote.

The constitution of Oregon has been so changed that it is now necessary for a voter to be duly registered in order to cast his ballot. It is no longer lawful to swear in citizens on the day of election, and only those who are legally registered will be permitted to vote. Books are open for registration now in the county clerk's offices and will remain open until April 18—one month before the primaries. After that, the unregistered citizen is, to slangily express it, "out of luck" as far as voting is concerned.

This law, however, is not designed to keep persons, who reach the age of 21 years during the period 30 days before the election, from voting. Anyone who comes of age after the registration books are closed and before the election may register with the county clerk and then be eligible to vote. This also applies to any person whose citizenship in this state is established within the 30 days prior to the election. For example, if the six-month term of residence ends a few days before the election but after the registration books are closed, the new citizen may register with the county clerk and later cast his vote.

The city election will not take place until November, as, with politics not considered in the municipal voting, no primaries are held necessary.
