This week we shall illustrate how a Declarer should plan with suit contracts. In today's hand, how should the Declarer plan to play with Spades the contract?

The answer is that the Declarer, examining his twenty-six cards as soon as the Dummy is exposed, will note that with a normal break of the adverse trumps he will not lose a trump trick, and regardless of the breaks he will not lose a Diamond trick; but he is sure to lose one Club and presumably one Heart also. This, if he plays properly, will give him an easy game, even if he have the hard luck of finding four trumps to a Jack in the West hand; but he might lose game should he permit East to win the first trick with the King of Hearts.
