INCOME TAX FACTS

No. 15

Losses arising from "fires, storms, shipwreck or other casualty, or from theft" are deductible and need not be connected with the taxpayer's trade or business. If his home or automobile is destroyed by fire, or his summer bungalow damaged by storm, he may claim a deduction for the loss sustained. The term "other casualty," within the meaning of the statute, is one arising through the physical force of nature—for example, a flood or frost.

Loss of property by theft or burglary is an allowable deduction, and need not be incurred in trade or business. Hence the loss occasioned by the theft of jewelry or an automobile used for pleasure or convenience is deductible. Should circumstances attending a loss of jewelry leave the owner in doubt as to whether it was stolen, misplaced, or lost from his person, a claim for loss would not be allowed. It must be established that the jewelry was stolen.

A loss for embezzlement is deductible for the year in which sustained.

WHAT IT TOOK

This is what it took to make a dress forty years ago: Fifteen yards of wide silk, five yards of skirt lining, three yards of horsehair cloth to stiffen the skirt, four yards of silk for dust ruffle, five yards of velveteen skirt binding, twenty-four inches of skirt belting and the same of waist belting, one and one-half yards of sleeve lining, two inches of buckram for collar stiffening, four dozen fancy buttons, one card large hooks and eyes, two cards of medium and one card invisible hooks and eyes, five spools of cotton thread, four of buttonhole twist, two yards of feather boning for waist, one yard of small boning for collar and bolt of seam binding. And yet we still hear persons making fun of women's clothes today.

AT THE THEATERS

Bob Custer Is Star in Film At The Colonial

Admirers of Bob Custer, rapid rising young western star, will have the last chance to see him in his most recent picture, "Galloping Thunder," today when it closes its run at the Colonial theater. Local audiences have acclaimed the production as undoubtedly Custer's finest—a real tribute for the popular player has appeared in several unusually worth-while pictures in the past.

The action of the picture is fast-moving and convincing. The theme moves rapidly through a thrilling series of events, including the express robbery of a fortune in gold ore, the desperate chase after the bandit gang, and a hectic ride aboard a runaway express car, followed by a narrow escape from death.

Only secondary in importance to these episodes is a romantic theme of the love of a beautiful girl nearly lost through blind jealousy. Anne Sheridan plays opposite Custer in the leading feminine role, and is seen to decided advantage.

Scott Pembroke, one of the best known directors of western productions, handled the megaphone for "Galloping Thunder," adapted from the story by W. Bert Foster. A noteable supporting cast appears, headed by J. P. Lockney, Richard R. Neil and Fernando Galvez.

"Gateway of The Moon" Stars Dolores Del Rio

A romance of unusual beauty, taken against the wild background of a South American jungle, is promised by Fox Films with their release of "The Gateway of the Moon" in which Dolores Del Rio, the Charmaine of "What Price Glory" has the stellar role of Toni.

It is a tale of strange adventures primitive passions and the white man's greed for wealth and power, in which Miss Del Rio plays the part of a half cast Indian girl in love with a young English railroad builder, played by Walter Pidgeon. Suspense, mystery and even humor abound in plentiful measure and brought into being by a cast of supporting players of unusual merit.

Ted McNamara, who achieved fame with his part as the laugh provoking marine in "What Price Glory," is again cast in a mirth producing role. Anders Randolf is the ruthless mining engineer, who builds a railroad with the lives of helpless Indians. He is the uncle of Chela, Adolf Millar, Leslie Fenton, Noble Johnston and Virginia La Fonde are cast in the other roles of importance.

The backgrounds are said to promise many new and startling glimpses of country never filmed before.

"The Gateway of the Moon" is coming to the Arcade theater for three days commencing Thursday.

A sniper in New Jersey drove around in an automobile and shot at more than twenty people. Probably some Ford driver honked behind him in a traffic jam.

But speaking of graft, the wages of sin seem to have been time-and-ahalf for overtime.

"Buzz" Barton And His Freckles Coming to Star

Novelty is the keynote to entertainment of a higher order, and in starring a 13-year old, freckle-faced hard-riding youngster in a series of western pictures, FBO strikes an entirely new note in film production, according to the management of the Star theater, where Buzz Barton's latest picture "The Slingshot Kid," will be shown today and Thursday.

Buzz holds the unique distinction of being the youngest western star on the screen today, and in fact he has almost ten years start over every other film actor holding the honor that was conferred upon him by FBO.

Because of the success of his first starring vehicle, "The Boy Rider," Buzz comes to the Star theater in "The Slingshot Kid" with a reputation already made for him. Despite the fact that he has been starred in but one picture previous to this, he has a large following of fans, not only amongst the youngsters but also with the grown-ups, who seem to enjoy the novelty of a boy western star.

"The Slingshot Kid" is the story of an old, deserted mining town which is visited by Buzz and his pal, Frank Rice, in the search for the boy's father, who has been unheard of for years. While in town, they run against a band of outlaws and save the Cross-M Ranch for its owner a beautiful young girl. Incidentally, there are many unusual sequences, such as that in which the ghosts of the dead town roam again under the guidance of Buzz and his pal.

The cast includes Buzz, Frank Rice, Jeanne Morgan, Arnold Gray, Buck Connors, Jay Morley, and others. Louis King directed from a continuity prepared by Oliver Drake. John Stuart Twist and Jean Dupont are the authors.

Dog lovers will find a picture that will more than satisfy them in "Wolf Fangs," Fox Films latest production starring Thunder, which is also on the program at the Star theater today and Thursday. This picture, showing as it does the regeneration of a dog and carrying an absorbing human story to parallel the dog plot, more than does justice to the talented canine actor.
