INCOME TAX FACTS

No. 19

With a certain proviso, compensation paid by a State or "political subdivision thereof," such as a county or city, to its officers and employees is not taxable income.

The proviso is that the wages of such officers and employees must be rendered in connection with the "essential governmental functions" of the state or political subdivision.

As distinguished from its proprietary functions, the salaries of the governor of a state, mayor of a city, councilman, board of aldermen, public-school teachers, and policemen and firemen are not taxable. But the compensation received by employees of waterworks owned and operated by a municipality is taxable.

A woman can be looking at a man ever so sweetly and be thinking of someone else.

Mrs. Curious: "How is it you've reached the age of 90 and never suffered from illness?"

Greener: (thoughtfully): "Well, I got a good start on most people by being born before germs were invented."

About the only sport that hasn't been taxed for the support of jobholders is that of chasing rain-bows.

Mr. Smith went into the drug store and requested change for $5. The druggist was unable to change the bill.

"Then give me $1 and you keep the bill. I'll come back later," replied Mr. Smith.

The druggist gave him $1. Later in the day Mr. Smith returned to the drug store, gave the druggist $4 and got his $5 bill.

The next day each contended that he had lost by the transaction. Did the druggist gain or lose and how much?

Did Mr. Smith lose or gain, and how much?

Or did the two come out even?

Willie: "What's makin' your little sister cry so much?"

Tommy: "Aw, maybe it's 'cause she's hatchin' some teeth."

Mrs. Blue: "Well, what about them?"

New Cook: "Well, er, er, they tumbled!"

AT THE THEATERS

Peter B. Kyne's Latest At The Colonial

The unsung heroes of the silver sheet, those who assume full responsibility for a production, aside from star and director, are destined to win the admiration of all film fans who see "Jim the Conqueror," Metro's latest screen version of Peter B. Kyne's story, which will be on view at the Colonial theater today for the last showing.

George Bertholon, general production executive, Hal Rosson and Dewey Wrigley, cinematographers, all of the Metropolitan producing organization have achieved some of the most magnificent photographic effects yet reflected from the screen in this production.

In Arizona, about fifty miles north of Flagstaff, where the scenery was on location, gigantic buttes and broad expanse of plain were filmed as a background for the action of this story which centers around a memorable conflict between cattlemen and sheepmen.

By the use of a specially prepared film, which also required special developing and printing, the scenery of this country was brought to the screen in a manner that is little short of marvelous.

When the company returned to the studio at Hollywood, William Sirois, general manager of Metropolitan studios, as well as other executives, were loud in their praise of the initiative of Bertholon and the two cameramen who worked out the process which was so fruitful.

William Boyd and Elinor Fair are featured in "Jim the Conqueror," which George B. Seltz directed.

Much praise is due all those who participated in the production but the major portion goes to James Cruze, that mighty director who also gave us "The Covered Wagon." Due to his efforts the photography has not one lagging moment.

Excitement In Oil Fields Shown In Film

Backed by the raging, reeling excitement of a new oil field, where the gushers may be expected to come in at any second, "The Showdown," which is showing for the last time tonight at the Star theater, presents a love story of tremendous poignancy and power.

Selected as George Bancroft's first starring picture for Paramount, following his sensational appearance in "Underworld," "The Showdown" is the story of four men—and one woman—brought face to face with primitive conditions in a desperate struggle to find the flowing gold.

Into the swampy jungles of the back country of the Tampico oil fields comes a gently nurtured girl from New York. Ignorant of the conditions she must face, she brings a trunk full of evening clothes and gold mounted toilet articles. Through a series of events she finds herself alone in the back country with four men who have not seen a woman for a year. Then begins a tense drama which surpasses even the suspense
