Miss Edna Murphy And Dr. G. Hoffman Wed in Pendleton

A wedding of much interest to La Grande people took place Saturday evening at 8:30 o'clock at Pendleton when Miss Edna Murphy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Murphy, of that city, and Dr. George S. Hoffman, of this city, were united in marriage at the Episcopal Church of the Redeemer there.

The wedding ceremony was performed by the Rt. Rev. W. P. Remington, bishop of the Episcopal church, and was witnessed by about 300 persons, including several from Walla Walla, La Grande and other nearby towns.

Preceding the marriage ceremony Mrs. Tom Murphy sang and the church choir sang. The strains of the wedding march were then heard and the bridal party entered —first the ushers, followed by the little page, who carried the wedding ring. He was followed by the bridesmaids and the maid and matron of honor, the little flower girl and the bride and her father.

Mrs. Roy Temple, sister of the bride, was matron of honor, and Miss Saville Welk was maid of honor. The bridesmaids were Miss Helen Huntley and Miss Gertrude Harris. The little niece and nephew of the bride, Patty Murphy, and Roy Temple Jr. were the flower girl and page.

Roger Hoffman, brother of the bridegroom, was best man, and ushers were, Tom Murphy, brother of the bride, Roy Temple, her brother-in-law, and Jesse Andrews and William Heughan, of La Grande.

The bride was beautiful in a gown of white satin with a yoke of embroidered georgette. Her bridal veil of old lace was held in place by a coronet and she carried a bridal bouquet of lilies of the valley and rosebuds. Her maid and matron of honor and bridesmaids wore taffeta frocks, made bouffant style, in pink, lavender, blue and green and carried bouquets of tulips, the stems of which were wrapped in gold ribbon. They also wore colored coronets, matching their dresses. The men of the party wore the conventional black.

Following the ceremony a reception was held for the bridal party at the home of the bride's parents. In the receiving line, besides the bride and bridegroom and the bridesmaids, were Mr. and Mrs. Murphy, and Mr. and Mrs. Hoffman, parents of the bridegroom, from Caldwell, Ida.

After wishing Dr. and Mrs. Hoffman much happiness the guest, about 150 in number, went to the dining room where refreshments were served.

Immediately following the reception Dr. and Mrs. Hoffman left by auto for Portland and points north, including Seattle and Tacoma, Wash. As a going away costume she wore an attractive ensemble suit with hat to match and a fox scarf.

Those attending the wedding from La Grande were Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Warnock, Mr. and Mrs. Warren Gilbert, Mr. and Mrs. Leal Russell, Mr. and Mrs. Audmer Playle, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Frances Greulich, Mr. and Mrs. William Heughan and Jesse Andrews.

An attractive spring luncheon complimenting Mrs. Charles Kinzel, who with Mr. Kinzel is visiting here from Merrill, Wis., took place Saturday afternoon at the La Grande hotel, when Mrs. Fred E. Lanzer and Mrs. L. K. Kinzel were hostesses.

Luncheon was served at 1 o'clock in the hotel dining room, where several tables were arranged and were prettily decorated in accordance with the spring season. Bowls of the season's flowers in the pastel colors formed pretty centerpieces for the tables, and tall candles in corresponding colors were used.

Ten tables of bridge were at play in the club room on the mezzanine floor following luncheon. Mrs. W. H. Bohnenkamp Sr. made high score and the second prize went to Mrs. Charles Bingner. Mrs. W. G. Sawyer received the consolation prize and Mrs. Kinzel was presented with a guest prize.

Mr. and Mrs. Kinzel are guests at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Lanzer, while here. They plan to return home the end of this week.

HEALTH

WOUNDS AND LOCKJAW
By Orville Harry Brown, M. D.
Phoenix, Ariz.
Member Gorgas Memorial

Among the few nearly certainly preventable diseases is tetanus, commonly known as lockjaw. This is another of the germ diseases. Some germs grow best with a full supply of air, the oxygen in the air being the necessary element. Other germs grow best without oxygen or air. The bacillus of lockjaw grows best without oxygen. These germs are found most commonly in horse manure, or in soil containing horse manure.

Another characteristic of the tetanus germs is that they produce a poison or toxin. This poison has a special affinity for nerve tissue, and it has a special tendency to attack early the nerves that serve the muscles of the jaw. The effect of this poison upon the nerves is to cause the muscles controlled by them to go into a spasm. Therefore the muscles of the jaw are apt to set early in the disease and the jaws become immovable, or locked. From that we get the name "Lockjaw."

The tetanus germs may now be grown experimentally in the laboratory upon proper culture material, by methods well known to specialists in this line of investigation. When these artificially grown germs are killed and then injected into the blood stream of a horse, it is found that they produce a certain chemical change in the horse's blood. This change consists in the manufacture of chemicals which destroy or neutralize the tetanus poison. By giving the horse several gradually increasing doses of dead tetanus bacilli his blood becomes filled with the chemicals which tend to neutralize, or eliminate the tetanus germs wherever found. A moderate amount of blood is then drawn from the horse's veins and is allowed to clot. The clear serum which separates from the fibrous part of the blood, or the "clot," may be used as a medicine to prevent lockjaw in one who has become infected. This serum is known as Tetanus Antitoxin and is one of the mighty triumphs of scientific medicine.

The proper way to treat a cut or stab, one which may have been exposed to stable dirt, is to make it bleed freely and then treat it clear to the depths with an antiseptic. Some physicians make it a practice to inject a probe with a bit of cotton wound around it and dipped into carbolic acid, to the very depths of the cut or stab. By means of the probe and cotton, alcohol is then put in to absorb much of the carbolic acid. Others use strong nitric acid. If the wound can be kept open to the air there is less likelihood of lockjaw developing than if closely wrapped, because the tetanus germ develops best with a deficient oxygen supply. It is necessary, of course, to prevent the cut from getting a new accumulation of dirt.

It is advisable that the treatment of the would with antiseptics be done by a physician. After he has thoroughly cleansed the wound he will give a small dose of tetanus antitoxin which will assist the blood to destroy any bacteria or poison which may remain after the first treatment.

After the disease has gotten a start it is nearly a hopeless fight to save the life. Heroic doses of the tetanut antitoxin given subcutaneously, intravenously and in the spinal column have, however, repeatedly saved lives. In case your child has had asthma or hay fever be sure to tell your physician. If the initial wound is in a hand or foot, amputation of an arm or leg has also saved many lives.

The suffering during a fatal case of lockjaw is extreme. The mere jarring of the bed or pulling the bed clothes will throw the patient into a spasm of the entire body. The mind remains clear so that the victim is, unfortunately, conscious to the terrible end.

Every wound of any importance, and some that appear trivial should be treated by a physician and if he advises the serum, his advice should be followed. Never neglect a wound. The use of this serum does no harm.

The Winner—And the Loser

Bridge Pointers

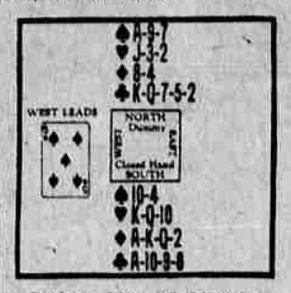
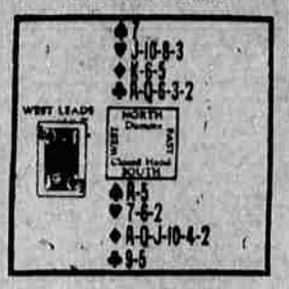
How would you plan to play the following hand at No Trump after seeing the initial lead and your Dummy? This problem is worthy of special attention.



Declarer Plans of Campaign

Declarer can see that his only danger of not making game lies in the possibility that the adversaries may make the Ace of Hearts and four Spades. To circumvent this he should hold his Ace of Spades until the third round so as to exhaust East if East has three Spades and West five (if each adverse hand has four Spades there is no danger). Another reason for allowing three rounds of Spades is that South wants to get rid of a Club so as not to block North's Clubs on the fourth round if either East or West hold—J-x-x in Clubs. Declarer therefore should hold up Dummy's Ace of Spades until the third round and discard Closed Hand's Eight of Clubs on it. After that, Dummy should lead the King of Clubs and if both the Ace in Closed Hand; and then the last Club from Closed Hand, winning in the Dummy. This will enable Declarer to run the Clubs and make five Club tricks which would be impossible to do without the Club discard if one adversary had three Clubs, (unless an improbable finessing situation would develop in the Club suit). After running the Clubs and having a total of six tricks, Declarer should plan to win his three high Diamonds and then to establish his Hearts. This will make game for him even if the Ace of Hearts and two good Spades are held by West.

Tomorrow"s Hand



Diamond contract: South Declarer: question: How should the Declarer plan to play the hand? Answer tomorrow.
