MOM'N' POP

HEALTH

The annual spring moving of plants from quarters in the hotbed, cold frame or seed boxes or from seedbeds in the open is the most important phase of the garden after digging. The success of the garden will depend upon how successful a job of transplanting has been done. Cabbages, celery, tomatoes, peppers, eggplants, onions for big Spanish exhibition types, cauliflowers, and a few other vegetables that need an early start for an early crop must be transferred. If possible, select a cloudy day for transplanting and one in which there is a threat of showers. The weather forecast now offers a good guide in this respect. Get as much of the root system of the baby plant as possible and as much dirt as can be made to cling to it in moving. Often it will not be possible to take any soil with the root, but watering it in thoroughly will make up in part for this disturbance.

Set the seedlings fairly deep, making a hole ample to permit the spreading out of the roots in a natural manner and no wadding them up. Firm the soil around them gently until the plant is in place and then apply more pressure to firm it into position and water it thoroughly so that the moisture will soak down about the roots and settle the soil in close contact with them. Establishing contact between soil and roots is the main factor of transplanting successfully.

Make arrangements to shade freshly transplanted plants if the work has to be done on a sunny day. A light board supported on flower pots or boxes over the row of transplanted seedlings is one of the most convenient and efficient means. Strawberry boxes or flower pots or pieces of newspaper or building paper held in place by a handful of earth will serve. Shade for two or three days until the plants resume a fresh and sturdy look. If well firmed in and watered some of them will not wilt, but the majority of them are likely to droop a bit for a day or two.

A shower in the best stimulant for transplanted plants and if they can be put in time to get the benefit of a rain there will not be much need to worry about them. Plants should have the leaf growth snipped back about half when transplanted.

A noted but penniless man left the following will: I hereby leave my worries to my associates, my best love to my wife, hardly constitution to the public library, and my debts to my country.

"Mother did, but it was father's fault. He ran in front of it."

"What is the penalty for bigamy?"
"Two mothers-in-law."

Aviator Killed In Airplane Collision

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Apr. 23 (AP)—Cadet James Scott Henderson of Geasle, Ind., was killed here today when his plane collided with another plane 9,000 feet in the air and plunged to earth. ## AT THE THEATERS

Dolores Costello Coming Here In Frisco Film

"Old San Francisco," the Warner Bros. extended run production which portrays the lurid days of Chinatown and the Barbary Coast, before and during the "Great Fire" is acclaimed by New York reviewers as one of the finest melodramas of the generation.

Beautiful Dolores Costello plays the part of a Spanish heiress who is kidnapped by a half-caste boss of San Francisco's underworld, and goes through weird experiences and horrors which all terminate with the furious onslaught of nature and the Great Fire which relegates "the mile of hell" to oblivion.

Warner Oland, the celebrated character actor is featured in support of Miss Costello. The photography as startling in its revelation of what may be done with the sensitive lens and the direction of Alan Crosland adds new honors to his already famous name.

The cast includes Josef Swickard, John Miljan, William Desmond, Andrew Rindles, Charles E. Mack, Solja, Angelo Rossitto, Anna May Wong, Rose Dione, Lawson Butt, Otto Mattison, Walter McGrath, Martha Mattox and Tom Santschi.

"Old San Francisco" comes to the Star theater Tuesday for a run of three days.

"Devil Dancer" With Galda Gray Comes To Arcade

The story is an original, written for the exotic Miss Gray by Harry Hervey, author of "Congal," one of the year's best sellers, and several other novels of the Orient country and its strange people. It was adapted to the screen by Alice D. G. Miller and directed by Fred Niblo.

In the cast with Miss Gray are Olive Brook in the principal male role, Ann May Wong, Michael Visvitch, Rolin, James Leong, Charles Selwyn and Albert Conti.

With the presentation of "The Devil Dancer," La Grande will receive its first authentic view of

There's not so much difference in people, but what difference there is makes a whole lot of difference.

Shotgun Used To Murder Officer

CHICAGO, Apr. 22 (AP)—Shotgun assassin standing on a soap box and firing through a bedroom window, slew Ben Newmark, formerly an investigator for the state's attorney's office early today.

Newmark was preparing to retire when he was shot down. His wife, hearing the shots ran to the bedroom and found her husband's body lying on the floor. He had been shot in the abdomen.

Aside from the soap box still in place below the window through which Newmark was shot, police had no clue.

Low carrying capacity of permanent pastures often is the weak link in an otherwise profitable farm business. The nearest state experimental station will have information on how to improve the situation. Frequently a top dressing of commercial fertilizer will stimulate the pasture and provide cheap board of several animals.

Maybe Hlebard will have to boost the price a little on this Tunney-Henney fight. Otherwise the customers never will think it's worth going to see.
