Taking cost out of the earth is like removing the tonsils, a minor operation.

One man who can succeed by letting things slide is the trombone player.

"We have adopted a boy. When he grows up he will be a doctor."

"What makes you think he will be a doctor?"

"The other day we found him cutting up a book, and the first thing he cut out was the appendix."

Edgar—That doesn't mean West Point—it means Wet Point.

The guards grimly went about their task of applying the electrodes to the body of the doomed man in the chair. The kindly chaplain bent over him and asked, "Any last request, my poor mortal?"

"Yes, parson," the wretch replied. "I'll comfort me a lot if you'll hold my hand."

Many a fellow who's a big noise at the office is only a little squeak at home.

Whoever said "Every picture tells a story" never went to the movies very much.

It is well to be careful of what you say, but it is a lot more important to be careful of what you write. The one may be forgotten. The other is a matter of record.

Sam Jones was on the spot when the explosion occurred. He was blown up, and they couldn't find any trace of him. When his wife called, the foreman said quietly: "He's gone, mum."

"Come," she said, "For good?"

"Well, in that direction," said the foreman.

After being convicted, Mayor Duval of Indianapolis appointed his wife controller. Many husbands, however, don't have to go to the length of appointing their wives controllers.

Policemen Find Clever Device To Sell Liquor

PORTLAND, Ore., Apr. 24 (AP)—After officers several times had searched a private residence on East Sixth street where they knew liquor had been sold, they made another search Sunday and discovered in a clothes closet an unusual contrivance for dispensing drinks.

One of the officers went into the clothes closet where he accidentally tipped a coat from a small hanger and found two small faucets in the hanger where they had been hidden by the coat. Tearing the hanger from the wall, the policeman found two rubber tubes entering the place.

They followed the tubes to an upstairs room.

There, cleverly concealed in the wall, they found two tanks. One contained five gallons of moonshine whiskey and the other seven gallons of wine.

By turning on one faucet wine was obtained and by turning the other whiskey poured through one of the tubes.

George Leves was arrested at the residence. He was charged with possession of liquor.

A boy makes a big discovery when he finds himself.

AT THE THEATERS

Picturesque Melodrama At The Star

Dolores Costello in Warner Bros. "Old San Francisco" is the Star theater attraction for the next three days beginning today. And "Old San Francisco" is a thrilling melodrama of the colorful days before the "great fire" when the glamorous City of the Golden Gate had a Barbary Coast, known as "the mile of hell," and a Chinatown which burrowed deep in the earth and hid a thousand gruesome secrets.

The story has to do with a Spanish heiress who is kidnapped by a half-breed boss of the underworld and offered for sale in a subterranean auction room dim with the fumes of the ponny and gamish with teak and mahogany and gilded dragons. There is a burning story of love and unselfish devotion and the climax, one of the most terrific ever pictured, is the "great fire" which ended the way of the underworld.

Dolores Costello is glorious as the wronged and vengeful senorita, and Warner Oland, as the single howl he superb, Alan Crosland's direction shows rare understanding and the photography smacks of wharfy. Among the greatest of historic dramas is "Old San Francisco."

"Devil Dancer" At The Arcade

A unique locale and a fast moving melodramatic story formed the very adequate background for the presentation last evening of the ever popular Gilda Gray at the Arcade theater. The vehicle was Samuel Goldwyn's production, "The Devil Dancer."

In offering Miss Gray as a sacred temple dancer of far-away, mysterious, romantic Tibet, the author and the adaptor, Harry Hervey and Alida D. G. Miller, have handled their story materials in an adroit and clever manner. Miss Gray's international fame as a dancer draws thousands to any theater—arise in "The Devil Dancer" we find a very acceptable combination of the Gray tropical-shoreland talent at its best—and a logical melodramatic story simply loaded with action.

Clive Brook appears opposite the star. This leading man climbs steadily and surely upwards on a firm foundation of consistent, careful, forceful characterizations. As the English explorer who finds the white dancer in the sacred halls of Lhasa and effects her rescue, Brook gives a delightful performance.

The star enters the picture as the successful to the sacred dancer, filled with her lover by being buried alive for the sin of unfaithfulness. The superstitious natives took with awe at this white woman amongst them, the orphan of a murdered missionary, left at the temple many years before. With the death of the previous dancer as a menace, the love affair and elopement of Stephen and Takla take their place in a procession of events which include humorous and pathetic incidents of Tibetan manners, in conflict with British-Indian society, the kidnapping of Takla by Hassim, an itinerant showman, the dancing of Takla in a nauch house, the pursuit of both Stephen and the avenging millions of the Great Lama—and the climax in a striking fight between the contending factions.

The well-knit plot is blundered at regular intervals by the colorful, exotic, always fascinating dancing of Miss Gray. In the devil dance she gives us a new and most interesting conception.

The direction by Fred Niblo is of course, flawless. In his handling of the crowds in Lhasa and at the nauch house Niblo shows that same true and beautiful technique which has made "Ben Hur" the film sensation of recent years. Niblo, always a good story-teller, shows in his work definite enjoyment in the romance, color and thrills of this entirely different story.

"The Devil Dancer" will be shown at the Arcade theater again today and Wednesday.

MEDICAL SPRINGS PERSONALS

MEDICAL SPRINGS (Special)—The weather is turning warm at last. There has been rain, sleet and a little sunshine the past week or two.

Kenneth Vanorder is very ill of spotted fever caused by tick bite. A doctor was called from Baker yesterday. He is staying at Wain, Kern. His mother, Mrs. Vanorder, of The Park, is staying there until he is better.

ASTORIA, Apr. 24 (AP)—Second trial of George Hannula, 22, on a charge of slaying his girl wife, was set for May 15 Monday after District Attorney Leinenweber asked for continuance, on grounds that there had been tampering with the states star witness. The first trial ended abruptly last Friday after the defense charged that one of the jurors had expressed prejudice. Then the district attorney asked for more time to prepare for the second trial because answers made to questions by Arthur Wilson, the star witness did not correspond with earlier stories he had told officials.
