Epics of Frisco Fire Stars Dolores Costello

San Francisco's Great Fire and the lurid and picturesque doings of old Chinatown and the Barbary Coast have been at last brought to the screen. Warner Bros. "Old San Francisco," which stars Dolores Costello and features Warner Oland, depicts the garish splendors and horrors of the "mile of hell" with lavish extravagance.

Alan Crosland who has won high distinction as director of many of the famous screen hits of the last few years, including Warner Bros. "Don Juan" and "When a Man Loves," directed "Old San Francisco" and never has the many-sided life of the past been more vividly recreated.

The cast includes William Demarest, Sojin, John Miljan, Josef Swickard, Anders Randolph, Anna May Wong, Charles E. Mack, Angelo Rossitto, Rose Dione, Lawson Hunt, Otto Matteson, Walter McGrath, Tom Santschi and Martha Mattox. "Old San Francisco" is showing tonight for the last time at the Star theater.

Shin-Tin-Tin, the Wonder Dog, showing at the Star theater Friday and Saturday in "A Race for Life," a Warner Bros. production directed by Ross Lederman. The sensational race track film is based on a story by Charles H. Condon. Virginia Brown Faire, Carol Nye, Bobby Gordon, James Condon and Pat Hartigan are in the cast. This is the fourteenth Warner picture in which the famous dog has starred and is acclaimed as the most thrilling of all. Shin-Tin-Tin will rock the house with cheers.

High melodrama of the most thrilling sort combines with the delicious comedy that only Wallace Lloyd and Raymond Hatton can provide and an absorbing love theme in "Partners in Crime," Paramount's new type of melodramatic comedy, which opens at the Arcade theater tonight for three days.

"Partners in Crime" is a decided step from the beaten path in team comedies. Whereas such comedies in the past have been little more than a collection of loosely joined incidents designed solely to create laughs, this picture tells a thrilling story. Incidents of the story provide richly for laughter but the laughs are subordinate to the absorbing plot interest.

The theme of "Partners in Crime" is the over-thrilling one of the law's battle against crooks of the underworld. The locale of the picture is a great American city, torn by crime and covered by the ruthless savagery of uncontrolled gangsters.

Even the underworld itself is torn by warfare as the two principal gangs have launched upon a bloody feud because one of them encroached upon the territory of the other.

Another feud of lesser importance to the terrified citizenry but of extreme importance to the picture is that between Mike Doolan, a well-meaning but dumb detective, and "Scop" McGee, sharp-witted and sharper-tongued newspaper reporter. The prize sought in this private warfare is the affection of Marie, a care cigarette girl, whom by crime and covered by the ruthless savagery of uncontrolled gangsters.
