He: "Do you believe kissing is unhealthy?"
She: "I couldn't say—I've never."
He: "You've never been kissed?"
She: "I've never been un-healthy."

The boy who works in the bar-ber shop is willing to take his first few weeks' pay in hair tonic.

Visitor: "I must say, Mrs. Brown, your Ellen's improved in her play-acting!"
Little Ellen (from within): "I'm not playing! I'm just dusting the piano."

Not a drop of rain has fallen on the Cape Verde Islands for the past six years. There is a location, chaps, schools, societies and Sunday schools might consider when ar-ranging for their next picnic.

"Say, boy, where does this road go to?"
"Don't go anywhere! It's here every morning when I come along."

With too many the decision to save comes only after there's nothing to save.

BRIGHT YOUNGSTER
"You are after the job as office boy?" asked the merchant.
"Sure!" replied the youngster.
"Any previous experience?"
"No, sir, nothin' previous about me, an' I don't whistle."

"Hang up your hat!"

Old Gentleman: That seems a very bad cold you've got, my little man.
Tommy: It's a very good cold; it's kept me away from school for three whole days.

Helen was attending her first party. When refreshments were served, she refused a second helping to ice cream with a polite "No thank you," although her look was wistful.

"Oh do have some more ice cream, dear," her hostess urged.
"Mother told me I must say 'No, thank you,'" exclaimed the little girl, "but I don't believe she knew the dishes were going to be so small."

Jim says: "A wife when she explores a husband's pockets usually gets what all explorers get—enough material for a lecture."

AT THE THEATERS

Audience Gets Thrills From Star Film

Thrills and tense action follow one another in rapid succession at the Star theater where the Columbia Pictures production, "The Warning," opened this afternoon for a two day showing.

The plot deals with the adventures of two British secret service agents in rounding up a gang of opium smugglers. Jack Holt is seen in a rough and ready sort of role, portraying a disreputable sea captain, who owns a smuggling steamer. He is a character along the water front of Hong Kong.

Dorothy Revier makes a daring girl detective, who is always getting captured. She looks more charming than even in a beige suit and when she dons a black velvet gown, we don't blame Jack for falling in love with her. We'd have liked to play the role herself. Such is the life of a movie actor!

But to get back to "The Warning." It's a rip-roaring, sure-fire production with plenty of fast fights and narrow escapes. Jack Holt sure does know how to make love, even if it is in a sub-cellar under the House of a Thousand Delights. When we weren't holding on to the sides of our seat in sheer excitement, feeling like ripping it out and rushing into the fray, we were busy trying to get over the effects of a few surprise twists which George H. Seltz sprung on us.

We've certainly got to hand it to Seltz when it comes to making real pictures. He sure has got his fingers on the public pulse.

The big thrill comes in the Chamber of the Grand Stairs, under the Temple of Many Thoughts. Talk about action! There's plenty of the highest reached in the whole thing we were ready to leap out of our seat.

Greta Garbo
In "Divine Woman" at Arcade

Greta Garbo, famous Swedish film actress, who gained an American film following of millions with the release of her first American-made film, has reversed the usual order of things.

It is generally the misfortune of stars to bloom forth suddenly in splendid vehicles and to then be assigned inferior stories which rarely permit them to attain the heights reached in their first great production.

Greta Garbo has had the good fortune to get a better story each time she appears on the screen and through this—add to her already sensational popularity.

In her new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer starring production "The Divine Woman," which opens Thursday at the Arcade theater, Miss Garbo is seen in the best picture of her entire film career. Her role as a French actress is even greater than it was in "Flesh and the Devil," "The Temptress," "Love," "The Torrents," and she loses no opportunity to show just what she can do.

In this production, Miss Garbo draws quite a bit more sympathy than usual for her, while, at the same time, she acts as marvelously as she did in her preceding pictures. In addition to this, her new picture has a happy ending which is logical and much more to the liking of American audience than tragic denouements.

For the first time in her entire film career Miss Garbo has a chance to show what she can do against a cheap and tawdry background in both the first and last sequences of the production. That she plays equally as well against these backgrounds as she does in the sequences of splendor and luxury proves that she is not a type actress at all, though most of her roles have smacked of the same flavor.

"The Divine Woman," was directed by Victor Sjöström and is based on the stage play, "Starlight," in which Doris Keane achieved remarkable success. Lars Hanson was the principal male role and surely makes the most of it.

Woman is satisfied with nature's handiwork but tries to improve on her "face-work."

We believe in Red brand fence, believe Red brand to be the fence you should buy. Otherwise we wouldn't sell it. We believe this because we know Red brand fence will cost you less by lasting longer. It can't help but give you years more wear than ordinary galvanized fencing. Red brand fence has copper mixed in the steel. This makes Red brand fence more rust resisting because rust can't eat copper. Red brand fence has an extra heavy coating of zinc galvanized on to the outside of the wire. This keeps rust away from the steel because rust can't eat zinc. These two things—more copper in the steel and more zinc on the steel—gives more years of service in the field. Red brand fencing has full length picket-like stays that hold it straight, well crimped line wires that provide live tension to prevent sagging. Square Deal can't slip knots and allows it a better chance to contract and expand with the weather. Red brand fence properly erected can't be worked up from the bottom or broken down from the top. It is a prime long lasting hog-proof, built-tight wall of protection that pays for itself in one to three years by bigger crops and livestock yields. While Red brand fence costs more to manufacture we don't make any extra charge. In fact, we sell it for less than ordinary galvanized fencing. Come in before you buy any fence. Let us tell you what copper bearing steel is and show you what galvanizing does and explain how these two things make Red brand fencing the best investment any man can make on his farm. It is guaranteed to outlast any other farm fencing except solid concrete or Arkansas rock.
