ONE OF THE MYSTERIES—The earth, O Lord, is full of thy mercy; teach me thy statutes. Psalm 119:64.

Fred E. Kiddle, Union county's state senator and campaign manager for Hoover in Oregon, is running on the republican ticket for delegate-at-large to the national convention. Mr. Kiddle should receive the complimentary vote of all Eastern Oregon counties with practically 100 per cent force. It is the natural courtesy that Union county citizens will naturally be expected to pay our local candidate. The Observer speaks of it merely to remind interested republicans of their opportunity in this instance. Don't forget to put an "X" in front of Fred E. Kiddle's name for delegate-at-large in Friday's election.

"The race for congress is warming up in eastern Oregon," said Circuit Judge J. W. Knowles of La Grande, who came to Portland to hold court here for a spell. "The candidates are out reminding the voters not to forget how to spell their names on primary day. Eastern Oregon is strong for the re-nomination of Chief Justice Rand. Among those who know him best Justice Rand does not need any certificate of good character from any investigating committee. I have known Johnnie—excuse me—Chief Justice Rand, nearly 40 years and this is the first time I ever knew his professional or official integrity to be questioned."—Interview in Monday Morning Oregonian. Judge Knowles' opinion of Chief Justice Rand is in perfect accord with the majority opinion in this section, we are sure, and should be all the endorsement necessary to secure a big majority for Judge Rand on Friday.
It is The Observer's opinion that he has conducted himself with honor, has endured a malicious ordeal with distinct credit. He should be re-nominated for the supreme bench.

BUSINESS HONOR

Lawless business must be curbed, for the benefit of legiti-mate business as well as the public welfare, says Judge Edwin B. Parker, chairman of the board of the United States chamber of commerce. Business must expel those members who bring it into disrepute by abusing their power and breaking the law. Otherwise a wrathful public will impose severe governmental regulation of business.

At the chamber's annual meeting he referred in scathing terms to "the recent conspicuous examples of individuals prominent in big business becoming intoxicated with power and involved in transactions tainted with fraud and corruption, violating every principle of sound business conduct, holding themselves above the law."

Honest business men, he insists, must see "that the profession of business is purged of those pirates whose acts stigmatize and bring business generally into disrepute. Reckless and selfish initiative must be curbed in the public interest and in the interest of legitimate business. Organized business will have the courage and the sound judgment to cast out these defilers of the institutions of business."

Here is a note of courageous honesty reassuring to those who have felt that notorious offenses against public and business morality were taken too lightly nowadays. Judge Parker is undoubtedly right as to the gravity of such offenses and also the effectiveness of punishment which legitimate business is capable of administering to its black sheep. There is no more effective penalty for any crime than ostracism by the offender's associates. An excellent example of that is John D. Rockefeller's request for the resignation of the president of his Standard Oil of Indiana following the Continental Oil bond scandal. He is to be complimented for his stand against Stewart. Big business doesn't need that kind of executives.

Bootleggers may have a few trials, but tribulations only seem to stimulate 'em. "Their used to be very few avenues open to homely people before the art of lookin' silly took the country," said Tell Hinkley, today, as he passed Miss Myrt Purviance, who's engaged to our leadin' banker.

have received shipments of baby chicks and are having good success with them.

Farmers are very busy at present working the ground and seeding it. High water has made this work somewhat later this year for some.

HOOVER TAKES FISHING TRIP FOR FEW DAYS

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., May 14 (AP)—Breaking away from politics and dropping the cares of his office for a few days, Secretary Hoover today was trying to lure the wild trout from streams in Lycoming county.

After remaining in this city over night, after a motor trip from Washington, Mr. Hoover left early for Oregon lodge near Salladsburg, west of the city, there to remain for a few days as the guest of Jay Cooke of Philadelphia.

Oregon Caves To Open on Tuesday

GRANTS PASS, Ore., May 14 (AP)—The Oregon caves will be opened tomorrow, May 15, for the summer season. Roads to the caves are in excellent condition and opening operation having been under way for the past few months. Only a short distance remains to be done and the shovel will not be removed until the work is completed. The engineer in charge declares that there will be no interference with travel.

Isn't it about time for some clever fellow to cast his vote for
