VALUE LAMB CROP AT 100 MILLIONS

11-Year Market Makes Lamb Production Worth Much to Producers

LONDON (AP)—Stimulated by an all-year market, prices for fresh lamb are estimated by the department of agriculture to have made the annual lamb crop worth $100,000,000 to American producers.

In effect the situation has revolutionized the sheep industry, placing it on a lamb rather than a mutton basis. Forty years ago very little lamb was obtainable. Sheep usually were slaughtered at from five to eight years of age, after considerable service in wool production. Today, instead of getting heavy mutton of uncertain age and flavor and carrying much fat, the market is supplied with genuine lamb from animals ranging from four to twelve months old, mostly of the meat breeds or crosses between wool and meat types.

Nowhere is the new order more keenly felt than in the 13 western states, where 65 per cent of the nation's lamb crop is raised under open-range conditions.

On a ranch having a flock of several thousand sheep, it is not uncommon for 80 ewes or more to die if severe weather follows the shearing of their wool. Each ewe usually leaves two wobbly-legged lambs, which formerly were killed. Because of the present increased prices, owners concede to orphans a right to live despite the additional expense entailed.

Since most sheep ranches have no dairy cows, the young lamb's food must come from grocery stores, ordinarily as condensed milk to be fed from bottles fit into a feeding rack or held by hand. Sold in the fall, the orphans bring about $3 apiece.

Although 75 per cent of the lambs raised in the United States are born in March, April and May, fresh lamb reaches the market in steady supply throughout the year. The constant supply is the result of orderly marketing. About half the year's receipts reach the market from August to November.

Loss of Two Games Sunday Sends Portland into Seventh Place

Pacific Coast League Standings table with columns for Team, W, L, and Pct.

By the Associated Press. Portland dropped closer to the cellar by losing two to Sacramento 3-2 and 7-3. Kallio turned in his seventh straight win in the morning. The second contest was decided in the first two innings, the Solons counting five times off Yerkes before the second inning was over.

Having dropped the first game 4-2 before Collard's steady hurling, Oakland came back to win the night cap, 4-3, in 12 hectic innings. Governor's triple and Dean's single drove in the winning run. Batteries: Collard and Boreant; Krause, Sparks, Gould and Head. Second game: Knight and Schmidt, Parker, Wetzel, Craghead; Daglia, and Lombardi.

San Francisco broke loose on a wild slugging orgy that buried five Hollywood pitchers under an avalanche of 27 runs and 30 hits in two games, the Seals winning both by the lopsided scores 11-3 and 16-2. Batteries: Rhodes, Bonelli and Hasser, Jacobs and Sprinz. Second game: Gray, McCabe, Mulcahy and Arnew; Ruetter, May and Sprinz, Reed.

The Missions obtained an even break on the series by taking two games from the Angels, 11-2 and 4-0, Davenport shutting the Sorabhs out without a hit in the seven-inning second game. Only two men reached first off the elongated right hander, Berger being struck by a pitched ball and Tolson drawing a pass. Batteries: Martin and Baldwin; Barfoot, Peters, Gabler, and Hannah. Second: Davenport and Whitney; Pitt, Gabler and Sanberg.

We offer the rubber heel people free the following slogan: Uninsulated Osculation Invites Electroshock. but many of the lambs are taken back to the country to be fattened and "brired" again in the winter and early spring. Lamb feeders in the irrigated districts of Colorado and Nebraska and in the corn belt play a considerable part in equalizing the movement of lamb into consumption throughout the year. Lambs born in the late fall and early winter arrive on the market in early spring and are known to the trade as "genuine spring lamb." The natural spreading of supplies from various sections, throughout the marketing period, is described as a great assistance to the sheepmen in achieving orderly marketing and a relatively high and stable price.

Illinois Young Mother Sets New Endurance Record For Swimming

CHICAGO, May 21 (AP)—What man has done, man can do—with the probability that woman can do it even better.

Mrs. Myrtle Huddleston, of Mattson, Ill., was taken from the pool of the Lincoln park west hotel early today after being in the water 56 hours, 18 minutes, 15 4-5 seconds. The time beats by 17 hours and 56 minutes the best previous endurance record for women, made Saturday by Miss Nyle Austin of San Bernardino, Cal.

It beats by four hours and 10 minutes the best previous record of man, held in Germany by Otto Kemmerich.

Mrs. Huddleston, a young mother is no novice to the water. She formerly held the world's endurance swimming record for women, besides being the only woman to finish the Catalina channel race. Mrs. Huddleston, who weighs 240 pounds, was not put on the scales when taken from the tank, but the 12 swimming coaches of Chicago Athletic associations who acted as officials during the endurance attempt estimated that she has lost 20 or more pounds. When she finished the Catalina channel swim she came out of the water 18 pounds lighter.

Physicians immediately took the swimmer in charge. She was unable to draw herself from the water, nor was she able to remain on her feet. A wheel chair was taken to the side of the pool and Mrs. Huddleston wheeled to her room. Only three times during the 56 hours did she take nourishment and only hot chocolate then. She finished the swim much fatigued. Her hands and feet were shrunken from the long immersion. During the entire time she was in the water a group of officials was present to see that she did not touch either the sides of the tank nor the bottom. Mrs. Huddleston's reward for record breaking was $5,000 offered by the Bannerman hotels. Inc., $1,000 was offered for breaking the women's record, with $1,000 additional for every hour she exceeded the men's mark.

Scientist Says Humans Lived In Bolivia About 13,000 Years Ago

By JUAN PICON PINZAS (Associated Press Writer) LA PAZ, Bolivia—Civilization he believes to have flourished 13,000 years ago in South America will be described at the Americanist congress to be held in September at the American museum of natural history in New York by Professor Arturo Posnansky, Bolivian scientist. He has been chosen to represent the Bolivian geographical society at the congress and will present the subject for study. Professor Posnansky is noted particularly for his studies of the ancient ruins of Tiahuanacu near Lake Titicaca in Bolivia, and for his explorations in the Lake Poopo region, where he found what he believes to be descendants of a prehistoric people called "Uru." He also is one of the many who have sought the gold treasure supposed to have been hidden at Inquisivi by the Jesuit priests when they were obliged to abandon the territory by edict of the Spanish king in the latter part of the eighteenth century. One of Posnansky's best known writings concerns the Tiahuanacu ruins, which he connects with civilization that existed 13,000 years ago. He claims to have proved the age of the ruins and has found

By the Associated Press. The mad dash of the Chicago Cubs has been halted for the present, at least, by the lowly Boston Braves.

After 13 consecutive victories the Cubs found the Braves a bit too much for them at Chicago yesterday and the Easterns ran off with a 4 to 3 decision.

The Cincinnati Reds moved up to within a game of the league leaders by taking a 3 to 2 bottle with the Pittsburgh Pirates at Redland field.

The New York Giants and St. Louis Cardinals divided a doubleheader at Sportsman's park. Fifteen hits in the first game gave the Giants a five to three verdict but the Cardinals evened it by taking the night cap, 2 to 1, in a light pitcher's battle between Vialdrige, making his first start of the year, and Johnson of the Cardinals.

traces of the great glacial lake of Tiahuanacu near where stood the ancient metropolis Granitela. He plans to decipher, utilizing his studies of the last 25 years, the inscriptions found on the monuments that still exist in the Tiahuanacu region, and will speak at the congress on the subject of the Tiahuanacu style of architecture as applied to modern structures. The professor will tell the congress of the latest explorations effected in the neighborhood of Lake Titicaca with the aid of a small boat of his invention. The explorers, led by Posnansky, followed the river that drains Lake Titicaca to Lake Poopo, which has no visible drainage, but is supposed to be drained through underground channels.

According to Posnansky's theory, Lake Poopo is supplied with salt water by an underground seizer. The lake water is as salty as sea water.

Posnansky says he found descendants of the "Uru" dwelling on an island in Lake Poopo. He describes these people as conserving ancient customs. Their garb is the "tipoy," a dress made of a sack with openings for the head and arms. They wear cloth hats adorned with feathers, and they hunt waterfowl, utilizing the ancient "thul," a curious weapon consisting of a cork an floats which is projected out over the water.

In excavation work carried out on the island Posnansky uncovered a number of skulls which he believes date from a prehistoric age and which correspond in certain characteristics with those of the present inhabitants.

One hundred kilometers from the island, in the direction of the upper volcanic ranges of the Andes dwell fiery families believed to be descendants of another prehistoric race, the "Chipayas." They also conserve ancient customs and live in underground passages. Posnansky is studying both the "Uru" and "Chipayas" languages with the object of writing the corresponding grammars.
