day? Friday?" "5:52 a. m. (11:22 a. m. coast time), 24 hours and 30 mins. in the air. About time we were sighted some terra firma. Wonder if you are getting me now?" "Tell them to keep the destroyers leashed; we don't need them yet."

"Just banks of drifting clouds and now we are included to believe we know where we are. Stay with us old man, we might have to swim yet."

CLONDS RECEIVE THEM—HONOLULU, June 1 (AP)—The Mutual Wireless company received this message from the Southern Cross at 11:30 a. m., coast time: "Everywhere we turn we get deceived among these clouds. One more hour. Twenty six and a half hours in the air now. About time we were sighting some terra firma. Wonder if you are getting me now."

"Everyone cool and collected. Tell them to keep those destroyers leashed, we are going to need them."

LOST IN CLOUDS—HONOLULU, June 1 (AP)—The Southern Cross radiated: "Guess we are lost. Radio A battery went down. Please get ship with receiver. Get our bearings on my 740 wave. Will keep going so they can track us."

LONG NIGHT FLIGHT—SAN FRANCISCO, June 1 (AP)—The seven-ton load lightening as the engines drank up gasoline, the tri-motored monoplane Southern Cross roared onward across the Pacific ocean early today, reporting at 5:20 a. m., that the distance to Honolulu, the first stop in the flight to Australia, had been cut to 250 miles.

Like a steed grateful for the lightning of his load, the plane increased its speed through the night. At 7:15 flying low for some hours, the plane climbed 200 feet above the ocean before noon and darted forward through the afternoon and night from heights from 1200 to 4000 feet above the water.

WASHINGTON GROUP Testify At Hearing—SEATTLE, Wash., June 1 (AP)—With an imposing list of witnesses awaiting their cues to take the witness chair, the Puget Sound interests were well launched on their campaign for a parity of grain rates with Portland at the interstate commerce commission's hearing today.

They were urging as a solution to the economic question which is the subject of the hearing that the entire grain producing region of eastern Washington and Eastern Oregon as far south as Pendleton be "blanketed" in so far as transportation tariffs on grain were concerned, giving Portland and Puget Sound ports equal rates from the grain fields of the entire area.

OPERATOR VITALLY INTERESTED IN FLIGHT—White Burton Thurber, Associated Press operator for The Observer, sat at his typewriter this morning and took down the leased wire report, he was more than ordinarily interested in the flight of the "Southern Cross" from Oakland to Hawaii. Mr. Thurber had a friend on the plane, James Warner, of San Francisco, and followed the course of the monoplane with much concern. Mr. Thurber and Mr. Warner used to work together for the Federal Telegraph company. Mr. Thurber has been interested in aviation lately and spent some time before coming to La Grande mapping parts of Western Oregon and Washington from the air.

One heart sickening moment death seemed to reach for the Southern Cross and her crew of four with the same hand that clutched and dragged down seven fliers during the James D. Dole flights from here to Honolulu last summer.

It was at 10:05 p. m., last night, when the plane was more than 1,000 miles off the California coast. The radio cracked out a brief startled message: "We hit an air pocket, and lost some altitude."

Then silence, listening radio operators said they had contact with the plane's set, but in the absence of messages, such statements failed to assure laymen. Then for a time even the radio men lost contact and with sickening heart many a listener muttered: "They are gone."

The Southern Cross moved into the trade wind belt with perfect ease, unencountered no difficulty in the handling of the ship as the load lightened, excepting for the sudden drop registered 1,100 miles out. The detailed story of what happened during this fall must await the arrival of the four air-men at Honolulu today.

Fragments of soap used in making an imprint of the cell lock attracted the attention of the jailers and led to the search in which the articles were discovered. A stick and a length of string apparently used in fishing articles into the jail from outside, indicated that the prisoners had been given help in making the blade and files into the jail.
