

BETTER ROADS Built With "CATERPILLAR"

More miles of smooth highways -- lasting highways -- per dollar invested, are built with "CATERPILLAR" track type tractors. Bad weather, heat, cold, snow or dust can't stop the "CATERPILLAR" -- can't close the roads with "CATERPILLARS" on the job -- can't halt highway construction where there's "CATERPILLAR" power!

"CATERPILLAR" ground gripping traction means continuous work -- more days per year. Detour signs come down -- roads are kept open -- business continues as usual in winter as in summer. These are some of the happy advantages the "CATERPILLAR" brings to you.

Corn and buckwheat are the two grains that may still be planted in Oregon. Early varieties of corn will usually mature if planted even in the last week in May. Where land is plowed late for corn it is usually a good plan to disk down the heavy growth of grass and weeds previous to plowing and then disk thoroughly and roll the seed bed to prevent the top from drying out, finds the experiment station.

'Snow Boat' Braves Alaska Drifts

Snowshoes and dog teams were too slow a means of transportation for this pioneer miner in negotiating the 400 miles between Chitina, Alaska, and Fairbanks, near the Arctic Circle. By mounting the wheels of his Chevrolet on skis and linking the paddle-wheel propeller onto the rear wheels of his car, he quickly covers snow of any depth. Loss of life might result on the trip were his rugged engine to fail him.
