The difference in a maiden and a widow is the maiden has to run after a man to catch him while the widow catches by standing still.

"Squeezed to death" heads an advertisement, which, to an old maid, should be almost as delightful as death from an operation.

Sheik: "Wonder whether Lottie sets all her cut clothes?"
Another: "Goodness only knows."
Sheik: "I'll bet goodness has nothing to do with it."

Smith—Would you er-advise me to er-marry, a beautiful girl or a sensible girl?
Brown—I'm afraid you'll never be able to marry either, old man.
Smith—Why not?
Brown—Well, a beautiful girl could do better, and a sensible girl would know better.

Dear Office Cat—My wife wants me to print her poetry and she keeps me awake nights reading the drivel. What would you recommend for relief?
Answer—Rock her to sleep. Use a big rock.

One of the best English jokes we have heard dealt with a hobo leaning on a fence surrounding the grounds of an exclusive country club. An officious personage bustled up, shouting, "Ere, ere, this won't do. You'll have to move on!"
"And who are you?" asked the raged knight of the highroad.
"The secretary of the club," answered the other.
"Well, that's no way to get members," remarked the bum as he leisurely took the road again.

"Now, do tell me all the scandal that's happened while I've been away."
"There hasn't been any dear, while you've been away."

AT THE THEATERS

Karl Dane In "The Enemy" At The Arcade

The stage play, which took the dramatic world by storm, and was hailed as the drama's greatest contribution to the cause of world peace, forms a gripping and powerful tale for the screen, with Miss Gish as the tragic heroine, Paul, a dominant figure, while still losing none of her pathetic charm or fragile appeal.

It is a story of Austria, laid during and after the war, and is, incidentally, the most modern role Miss Gish has ever played, coming practically up to the present day. Primarily a study in human nature under the lash of war, it is told in many delicate intimate touches, together with a powerful climax in which Miss Gish rises to the heights of a Modjeska or a Bernhardt in the soul-grIPPING episode of the starvation, she cuts that "my baby is safe from the next war!"

A notable cast appears in the story, under the masterly direction of Fred Niblo, Ralph Forbes, famous for his work in "Beau Geste" and other plays, is seen as Carl, the husband torn from the heroine's arms by war, with Ralph Emerson, a newcomer from the stage as Bruce, her English suitor in the story of disrupted nationalities.

Frank Currier, as Professor Arndt, her father, and George Hawcett as the stern old war profiteer, have powerful character roles, and Karl Dane and Polly Moran add a comedy relief to the tense story. Fritz Ridgway gives a splendid character portrayal as Mitz, who faces disgrace to keep her child from starvation, and John S. Peters, a splendidly balanced performance as Fritz, her husband, an Austrian officer. Little Billy Kent Schaeffer plays the child role in a clever manner.

Comedy Pictured On Tropic Isle At Colonial

Some of the most picturesque spots in California were used as exterior scenes for the hilarious Fox comedy, "Why Sailors Go Wrong," now playing at the Colonial theater.

Most of the camera work was centered on Balboa Park in San Diego, which is noted not only for the tropical beauty of its foliage but for enchanting architecture of the most unusual sort, also. The roads in this park are lined with luxuriant trees; shaded fountains play in quiet patios and some of the most famous flower gardens in the world are to be found in the recesses of its grounds.

Other scenes were made at Laguna Beach, the beauty of which has attracted a large colony of artists and on a patrol yacht moored off famous Point Loma. These backgrounds give added interest to the picture and are proof of the fact that beautiful settings are essential in comedies as well as in productions of a more serious nature.

"Why Sailors Go Wrong" is one of the most hilarious comedies shown here this year, and is playing to capacity. Featured in the cast are Sally Phillips and Nick Stuart as romantic young lovers in whose interests Sammy Cohen and Ted McNamara meet with highly amusing adventures on a desert island.

Harold Lloyd Picture at Arcade Sunday

Again Harold Lloyd has registered a big success as a comedian and film producer. His latest Paramount released comedy entitled, "Speedy," arrives at the Arcade theater Sunday and from all accounts, it surpasses anything yet attempted by the versatile film star—if that is possible.

Characteristic of all Lloyd comedies, and perhaps the biggest factor of the screen comedian's success lies in his ability to inject good, wholesome and novel comic situations into his films. With "Speedy," Harold has come up to his standard, and many new and hilarious sequences are featured in the picture. Everything is new, and treated in a typical Lloyd manner.

The bespectacled comedian is said to be a stickler for authenticity in his pictures, which leads us to believe is the reason for the many interesting scenes of New York City incorporated within the film. Transporting an entire company to New York for the sake of authentic atmosphere is ambitious (to say the least), and helps swing the picture along in a delightfully smooth manner.

One of the surprises in this latest Lloyd effort, is the appearance of Babe Ruth himself, who figures in one of the baseball sequences. His appearance and subsequent performance adds to the already bright lustre of the comedy.

The great laugh in store for all those who see the picture, is the highly amusing sight of a horse drawn street car traveling through the heavily congested streets of New York with Harold at the helm, or in this case, the driver's reins. The antiquated mode of transportation is the subject around which Harold has built his bright story. Ann Christy is Harold Lloyd's new leading lady, and an accomplished actress she is. There is every reason to believe she will fulfill all that is expected of her in the future.

To anyone who would pass up this new Lloyd comedy, little could

Many Thrills Offered In "Sunset Legion"

Fred Thomson in "The Sunset Legion," the western star's latest Paramount production, appears at the Star today. "The Sunset Legion" compares most favorably with his previous Paramount productions, and his current production bids fair to exceed his previous performances.

Thomson enacts a double role in this picture. For one he is known only as a black masked rider of the plains mounted on a black horse, and the other as being an unassuming wayfarer, who is looked upon mostly as being a little "queer." In reality, however, he is a captain of rangers, that famous body of hard riding men, who have so admirably written several thrilling pages in the pioneer history of America.

It seems that a frontier town has been the victim of many injurious holdups, especially in the neighborhood of gold mines, and the citizens of the village are very much wrought up about it. A mass meeting is held following a dramatic hold-up by a gang of outlaws, and during the session a person, soon to be known as the "whittling cowboy" appears. Meanwhile, however, the citizens and bandits alike, have become aware of a mysterious stranger who always rides a black horse and is likewise black masked.

Events follow one another in rapid fire like manner; following the arrival of the cowboy, with the mystery, and subsequent round-up of the gang serving to inject many thrilling and dramatic moments in the picture, which has won so many fans for Fred Thomson, and his horse, "Silver King."
